5 More Assail Wollner Alibi In Asheville's Co-ed Murder

3 Witnesses Now Aligned Against Concert Violinist in Case.

Pass Key Assumes New Importance

Instrument Not of Type Used by Employes of Hotel, Police Say.

By the Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., July 20.—Investigators marshaled five more witnesses today—making eight in all—to attack the alibi of Mark Wollner, concert violinist, for the night Helen Clevenger was slain in her hotel room here. Meanwhile, the pass key found in the New York University co-ed's door assumed new importance as a possible clew.

Sheriff Laurence E. Brown said the key was not of the type used by hotel employes. He refused, however, to describe it.

"The most important development in the case has not been disclosed yet," the sheriff said. He would give no inkling of its nature.

The city and county each offered $200 reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderer, and the State matched the amount, making a total of $600.

P. H. Branch, manager of the Battery Park Hotel, in which the 18-year-old Staten Island girl was found shot and stabbed Thursday morning, said the hotel doors, when locked from within, could not be opened from the outside except by use of an emergency pass key. He said he was supposed to have the only such key in existence.

Door Was Unlocked.

The door was unlocked, Prof. W. L. Clevenger, of the North Carolina State College, at Raleigh, said in telling of the finding of his niece's body when he went to awaken her for breakfast. In the lock on the outside, a pass key was found, while the regular key was found some time later beneath a radiator. Branch said his key had not been out of his possession.

Deferring his plan to question Wollner this afternoon, Brown turned to further grilling of Daniel H. Gaddy, night watchman at the hotel.

Brown said jail officials reported Gaddy was "in a highly nervous state." He had explained previously that the watchman was not suspected of participating in the killing of the co-ed, but was believed to know more than he had told of events in the hotel the night of the crime.

The names of the five additional witnesses, said to have given statements telling of seeing Wollner at various places in Asheville between 9:30 p. m. Wednesday and 8:30 a. m. Thursday, were not revealed. The time of the slaying was fixed at 1 a. m.

At Lodgings, He Says.

Wollner, who has appeared on many radio programs and in the cities of three continents, told officers he was at his lodgings all last Wednesday night. His account was corroborated by Mildred Ward, 19-year-old daughter of his landlady. She was detained by sheriff's deputies yesterday, and has been subjected to intermittent questioning since.

Comparing the killing of Miss Clevenger with the attack-slaying of Nancy Titterton in New York recently, Brown remarked that it had taken the New York police two weeks to solve that crime, and expressed confidence the Clevenger case would be cleared up within a similar period.

Wollner has been held incommunicado. So far as could be learned he has made no effort to obtain a lawyer.

Brown said Wollner, whom he referred to as "my suspect," had been questioned only casually for about an hour after his arrest Saturday night. At that time, he said, the violinist declared he had not been in the Battery Park Hotel, which is across the street from his studio, within the last six months.

Girl Saw Him, She Says.

A 16-year-old girl was quoted as saying she was returning from a dance about 2 a. m. Thursday and saw Wollner.

Brown said a previous report that Miss Lavada Whitaker and Mrs. Roy Baker, who live next to Mrs.

B. R. Buck Tries Poison Suicide; Former Broker

Has Small Chance of Life; Dealer Pleaded Guilty in '29 Fund Misuse.

Benjamin R. Buck, identified as a former Washington stock broker involved in embezzlement cases here and in Baltimore a few years ago, was reported by police to have swallowed poison yesterday "with suicidal intent."

He collapsed in a second-floor bathroom in his home in the 5500 block of Ninth street northwest, where he was found in the late afternoon by his daughter, Mrs. George Belt.

Mrs. Belt called police and an Emergency Hospital ambulance was summoned for the 50-year-old former grain and stock broker, who was arrested and tried here in 1929-1931 on a $10,000 embezzlement charge.

Physicians at the hospital said his condition was "serious." Police said he swallowed a capsule of poison of a sort almost certain to produce death.

Buck, once a widely known figure in the Capital's brokerage circles, was listed on hospital records as unemployed. Members of his family who followed the ambulance to the hospital declined to see reporters, but Buck's neighbors said he had been out of work for a considerable period.

Buck's first arrest came at a time when the District Attorney's office was making a drive on bucket shops here.

He was taken into custody in the fall of 1929, indicted on a charge of embezzlement and after a long legal battle pleaded guilty to the charge early in May of 1931, throwing himself on the mercy of the court and winning probation.

In November, 1933, Buck, according to Baltimore police records, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland House of Correction following conviction of embezzling approximately $20,000 from Dr. Paul M. Allis, of Lewiston, Pa. Maryland authorities said he was recently released.

Boy, 18, Surrenders In City in Murder Of Uncle Year Ago

An 18-year-old youth, wanted for murder in the Tennessee mountains of his uncle more than a year ago, slept in his cell at the First Precinct station last night preparatory to beginning his trip with a sheriff back to the scene of the crime of which he is accused.

He surrendered to Policeman Al G. Heath Sunday and gave his name as Halloway Grimth, of Lenoir City, Tenn.

"I'm wanted," he told the patrolman. "I'm wanted by the sheriff down in Tennessee."

Then the boy, who said last night he would waive extradition when he is formally arraigned in police court today, told a story of wandering through many States, of homesickness and of waking up in Washington Sunday morning to find he had been robbed of his all—$30. He did not discuss the slaying, and merely told officers he was tired.

"I haven't admitted doing it yet," he said.

Throng to See Famous Civil War Struggle Re-enacted; Ceremonies Begin at 1:30 P. M.; Dr. Freeman Will Be Narrator.

While thousands of Washingtonians made final plans to drive into Virginia today to witness the re-enactment of the First Battle of Manassas, the 2,000 soldiers who will wear the Blue and the Gray bivouacked peacefully in the same camp last night, following dress rehearsal of the battle yesterday afternoon.

Today at 2:30 p. m. the men will take their places on opposite sides of the little stream called Bull Run and will fire upon each other, reproducing in faithful detail the bloody struggle between the North and South which took place exactly 75 years ago.

The battlefield, situated on United States Highway Route 211 and on Virginia State Route 234 about 30 miles southwest of Washington, will resound to the crackling of muskets as the two armies representing the Union and the Confederacy alternately advance and retreat.

The Firt Battle of Manassas, the first major conflict between the North and the South, ended with the Union forces retreating to Washington, but not until after both sides had suffered heavy losses.

Among the spectators, as guest of honor, will be the 92-year-old Mayor of Danville, Va., Harry Woodring, who, as a boy in his teens, fought in the battle and saw his comrades in gray die around him.

Mayor Woodring, still vigorous and one of the few survivors of the struggle three-quarters of a century ago, was on his way to the scene of the historic fight last night. He slept in Culpepper, and will arrive there about noon today.

Today, as on that afternoon in July, 75 years ago, the quiet Virginia countryside will echo to the sounds of battle.

Smith Confers With Hamilton On Landon Aid

But Former Democratic Nominee Won't Speak for G.O.P., Says Paper.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 20.—The Sun says former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic Presidential nominee in 1928, was in conference in New York City today with John D. Hamilton, Republican National Committee chairman.

In a copyright story by J. Fred Essary, chief of the Sun's Washington bureau, the paper says:

"Gov. Smith himself authorized the information that he and Mr. Hamilton had met and that they had discussed the politics of the campaign from all its important angles.

"But nothing was forthcoming from the former Governor as to the course which he will pursue in the next few months. He is not yet ready to talk for publication."

"Mr. Hamilton begged the New Yorker to join actively in the fight to defeat the re-election of President Roosevelt," the story continues. "The Republican leader wants Mr. Smith to take the stump for Gov. Landon, as former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts has agreed to do.

"This writer is convinced, however, from all he could learn in New York today that Mr. Smith will make no speeches whatever under the auspices of the Republican National Committee.

"It is equally improbable that he will make any speeches directly urging the country to elect Gov. Landon. But it is in no sense unlikely that he will make one or more speeches warning the country against the perils of giving Mr.

Security Board To Set Up Index Of 30,000,000

Pensions Unit to Register All Workers to Avoid Pension Pay Errors.

The largest registration and identification project in the country's history, a project which includes assignment to each of 30,000,000 Americans an account number to be retained for life, is being prepared for by the Social Security Board.

The procedure is designed to bring all the eligible workers of the country into the old-age retirement system provided for in the social security act.

On the heels of the Townsend pension plan convention in Cleveland it was learned the Administration is already well advanced on plans to start its own retirement project, a fact that may be emphasized by Administration forces through the political campaign.

Registration of the hosts of eligible workers has been set tentatively, it was learned, for early in November, not later than November 15. Each worker, upon being registered, will be given an emblem, bearing his or her serial number, to serve as an identification tag and a record of the worker's account number in the security board's records.

"The object of this number," says a memorandum from the offices of the board issued in response to questions, "is the prevention of errors which might occur through the exact duplication of names, since there are many persons of the same

5 Nations Search Caribbean, Gulf For Missing Ship

Tampa, Fla., July 20 (U.P.).—Coast Guard cutters of five nations swept tropical seas from Jamaica to Yucatan tonight for trace of the missing motorship Nunoca, while superstitious seamen talked darkly of the "Jinx of the Kirkconnells" and feared for the 22 men, women and children aboard the vessel.

Commanded by Capt. Moses I. Kirkconnell, the 110-foot British motorship was unreported since she cleared Georgetown, Gran Cayman, with 13 passengers and a crew of 9 about 13 days ago.

Waterfront workers in Honduras and Gran Cayman recollected Capt. Kirkconnell is a member of a seagoing family which has lost four of its members in unsolved mysteries of the Gulf and pressed search for the missing vessel.

The Coast Guard, informed nine of the 13 passengers aboard the vessel are American citizens, authorized cutters to go beyond their jurisdiction and broaden the search to the Yucatan coastline.

Co-operating in the hunt were amphibians and cutters from Florida's Coast Guard bases, and cutters from Cuba, British Honduras, the Republic of Honduras and from Gran Cayman.

Motive of Dog Put Up to Court After It Caused Boy to Drown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Brockport, N. Y., July 20.—Silent testimony of an association which began when the Dawn Man whistled his wolf dog to heel 50 centuries ago will be in favor of Idaho, a shaggy mongrel pup, when he goes on trial tomorrow charged with leaping on Russell Breeze, who was swimming in the Barge Canal here, causing the youth to drown.

Through the mind of Justice of the Peace Homer B. Benedict, who will have to decide whether Idaho is just a frolicsome playmate or a vicious dog bent on attack, perhaps will flit reminders of that association—of great black Newfoundlands, village heroes for pulling youngsters out of the millpond, of the famous beasts of the monks of St. Bernard, of watchdogs, of flock protectors, of all the vast tradition of canine courage and sacrifice.

That will be Idaho's first defense, given without words. His second will be his master's love for him. On this score, Victor Fortune, 22, who has been summoned to show why the pup should not die as a dangerous animal, will say his dog is the good companion, that he likes to join in the fun of swimming parties, that he did not realize what he thought a game was tragedy.

There will be witnesses against Idaho, too. Many residents of this village of 3,000 are not on his side. Some of them will testify to their belief that he is vicious, that his intent was attack not play. But he will have defenders among the townspeople, many of whom have written Justice Benedict in his defense.

Dictatorship if Rightists Win Forecast by Hero of '31 Revolt

Franco Predicts Regime Progressing to Republican Government.

A temporary dictatorship, progressing to a republican form of government, if the Rightist rebels win, was foreseen yesterday for strife-torn Spain by Maj. Ramon Franco, air attache at the Spanish embassy, who is generally credited with setting off the spark that ended in King Alfonso's abdication and flight in 1931.

Maj. Franco's brother—Gen. Francisco Franco—is leading the rebelling Rightists of the Spanish army in the revolt against the Left Wing government.

The air attache was in the difficult position of being a representative of the government which his brother is attacking at home.

"Who will win, I do not know," said the embassy attache yesterday. "But my brother is not a monarchist. He does not wish the monarchy to be restored. I am certain of that."

He could be certain of little else, he explained. Since November he has been in this country and has not heard directly from his brother. Other letters since February, when the Leftists came into power, have carried an unmistakable undertone of discontent with conditions, he admitted.

If a dictatorship is established—and Major Franco thinks it will be if the rebels are successful—it will be only temporary, until a third republic can be formed, he believes.

His brother, referred to in several reports of the struggle as a Fascist, has no connection with either Mussolini or Hitler to his knowledge, Major Franco said. Asked if his brother, leader of the rebelling army elements, is a Fascist, he shrugged and said:

"I have not seen him since November. I only know he is not a monarchist. He is a military man."

Major Franco, who made a daring flight over Madrid to drop pamphlets proclaiming the first republic of Spain more than five years ago, thinks perhaps some of the subsequent turmoil might have been averted if that republic had been patterned after the government of the United States instead of after the parliamentary republic of France.

"That is only a personal belief," he declared. "But often I think how we made a mistake to pattern after France."

Spanish Aristocrats and British Are Evacuated by English Tug.

Churches Razed, Refugees Report

By the United Press.

Gibraltar, July 20.—Fifty British nationals and many Spanish aristocrats were evacuated from flaming Malaga tonight by the British naval tug Noel Birch.

The Britons were evacuated while naval artillery shelled and airplanes bombed along the Mediterranean coasts of Spain and Spanish Morocco. Stricken refugees poured into Gibraltar with horrifying tales of civil warfare in Spanish territory.

The evacuated Britons, taken aboard the tug at Marbella near Malaga, said the city now is completely in the hands of the government.

They reported without confirmation that a shell landed in the grounds of the British consulate during the bombardment of Algeciras.

Fighting in Algeciras.

Moorish troops loyal to the Moroccan rebels were reported rushing to Algeciras, where armed civilians supporting the Madrid government have started fierce opposition to the rebel occupation.

Loyal Spanish ganboats were expected to bombard Algeciras momentarily. British troops were ordered to erect heavy barbed wire barricades along the Gibraltar frontier.

The rebel radio station at Seville announced that Granada, capital of the Southern Province of Granada, surrendered to the rebel forces.

Two noncommissioned officers were killed and 20 civilians wounded when a loyal airplane from Malaga dropped seven bombs at Algeciras, in the hands of the revolutionists. The bombs apparently were intended for the customs house and the army barracks, rebel headquarters.

It was estimated tonight that 5,000 Spanish refugees from La Linea and Algeciras have arrived here in the last 24 hours.

Authorities housed many in old barracks. But hundreds were forced to spend the night in the open.

Arrivals said more than 200 were killed in sanguinary fighting at La Linea, nearest point to Gibraltar which was occupied by rebel Moorish troops from Morocco yesterday.

Four regular army sergeants and numerous leftist leaders were shot dead without trial by rebel troops.

Several Spanish warships from Tangier were bombarding Ceuta from the sea. The operations were clearly visible from Gibraltar.

Nine were reported killed at Algeciras when a loyalist airplane bombed the city. The sound of the exploding bombs was heard in Gibraltar.

Children Are Refugees.

Many half-naked, half-starving children are among the refugees in Gibraltar. Most of the refugees are living in gardens or wharf sheds, although a few have been taken into private homes.

Hundreds of communists, sympathetic to the left wing government at Madrid, strongly barricaded themselves in the Spanish section, fearing rebel aviators from Morocco would bombard them.

Meanwhile, troops in full war kit and with fixed bayonets, are patrolling the frontier.

Although the government announced the movement in Madrid had been crushed, the rebel radio station at Seville announced that officials held an urgent meeting at the capital to discuss the rebel's ultimatum. The ultimatum reportedly ordered the government to surrender within two hours or Madrid would be bombed.

Gibraltar was without green vege-

Government of Spain Insists Rebellion Is Being Crushed.

12,000 Monarchists and Invaders Are Declared Moving on Madrid.

By the Associated Press.

Ancient Spain remained a land of uncertain destiny last night, with the Leftist government insisting it was "completely dominating" a Rightist military rebellion and outside sources describing continued revolt and bloodshed.

With police at Hendaye, France, on the Spanish frontier, estimating 25,000 persons had been killed in fighting throughout Spain, it was certain, at least, the Madrid government was using every resource in its power to crush the revolution.

Rebellious garrisons in Madrid itself were smashed by artillery and airplane bombardment during the morning; hundreds of rebellious officers were imprisoned and loyal authorities said Gen. Francisco Franco, the rebel leader from the Canary Islands, had called for a seaplane to flee Seville.

The Reuters (British) News Agency reported at London early today that word received at Bayonne, France, said 8,000 Spanish Monarchists and 4,000 rebel troops were marching on Madrid from Pamplona.

The insurgent force, reported to be under the command of Gen. Mola, was said to be accompanied by an artillery regiment. Pamplona is about 200 miles northeast of Madrid.

Bombardment Reported.

From outside of Spain, in France, there were reports the city of Barcelona, in northeastern Spain, was being bombarded by government planes after the rebels had seized control in fighting which claimed 200 lives and wounded 3,000.

The Madrid government, describing the revolt as "Fascist," said during the afternoon the rebellion on the mainland was crushed except for Valladolid and Zaragoza.

Last night British reports from Madrid said a government radio broadcast described the revolt as "completely" smashed.

Although French sources heard the south of Spain and Barcelona were in rebel hands, the Seville radio station, which had been broadcasting rebel communiques for two days, suddenly was heard to announce government dispatches.

This was taken to indicate Seville might have fallen to the loyalists.

Sending Reinforcements.

In Morocco, where the revolt started Friday, the rebels announced they were sending reinforcements to the mainland. The government said invaders who landed in southern Spain Sunday had met vigorous opposition.

A fleet of seven warships, manned by loyal sailors who had imprisoned rebellious officers, lay off the international port of Tangier, ready to bombard rebel Morocco ports. Already, said advices from Gibraltar, four Spanish warships were seen shelling Ceuta.

A British tug evacuated 40 British citizens from the Province of Malaga. The city of that name was reported half burned, with continuous firing going on. It was thought possible Royal air force planes from Gibraltar would be used to evacuate British Nationals from the Spanish trouble spots.

Refugees in Gibraltar.

Seven thousand Spanish refugees, many of them hungry and half-clothed, were in Gibraltar.

As for the Hendaye police estimate of 25,000 dead, the officials said they based it on reports from refugees and others. There were no other advices to support that figure.

Former King Alfonso of Spain, after a quick trip from one Czechoslovakian castle to another, told the Associated Press he did not regard the revolt as aimed at restoration of the monarchy.

He did, however, regard it favorably. All he wanted for Spain, he said, was a peaceful Rightist regime supported by the army.

The republic forced Alfonso into exile five years ago, but he never has abdicated.

In Paris, persons close to the situation said they thought the rebel aimed at re-establishment of a dic-

District Faces Milk Shortage, Session Is Told

Marketing Group Warned Drought May Bring Price Increase.

Echoes from the drought-stricken Midwest were heard here yesterday as farmers attending hearings on a proposed dairy marketing agreement for the District area predicted a dangerous milk shortage and retail price boost in Washington unless "something is done quickly."

Describing crop and soil conditions in neighboring communities as "the worst in years," rugged dairymen filled the Agriculture Department auditorium with boos, catcalls and cheers as speakers rose to both condemn and plead for the marketing agreement as proposed by members of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association.

B. B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the association, said Washington's milk supply will be seriouly impaired unless dairymen receive adequate payment for their product to meet rising hay, grain and feed costs.

The local milk supply, he revealed, is rapidly decreasing. If it drops 3,000 additional gallons per day, Derrick declared, Washington will face a dangerous situation.

"We are dealing with an emergency," Derrick asserted. "Conditions have reached a point where we must act and act quickly."

A sun-bronzed farmer—J. V. Nichols, Purcellville, Va.—told of conditions in the "blue grass" country of Loudoun County:

"Things are serious. If we don't get rain—and a good hard rain—within the next few days, everything will be ruined. I've only had one cutting of clover and the rest ain't no good. I got to find something to feed my cattle."

Feed prices, due to the Midwest drought, have jumped beyond the reach of many dairymen in this

Cardinal Sued By Protestant, Charging Libel

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, July 20.—Two libel suits, seeking a total of $200,000 damages, were filed against Dennis Cardinal Dougherty and two prominent Catholic clergymen here today.

The suits, filed separately in Federal court and common pleas court, were brought by Joseph F. Rutherford, author and Bible lecturer, and the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society.

Other defendants were the Rev. J. Carroll McCormick, chancellor of the Archdiocese, and the Rev. James J. Clarke, of the Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament.

Both suits based their claims on a letter, allegedly written by Clarke and instigated by Dougherty and McCormick, Rutherford and the society contended the letter was sent to radio station WIP and its owner—Gimbel Brothers department store—protesting that Rutherford, in radio speeches, "attacks the Catholic Church, misrepresents her teachings and foments religious hatred and bigotry."

Rutherford, whose suit was filed in Federal court, claimed he was "injured in his good name, fame and credit" and that he was brought into "public scandal, infamy and disgrace."

The society's statement of claims asserted that the alleged attack on Rutherford, its president, had caused the radio station to cancel its contract for a weekly series of broadcasts on Biblical and religious subjects, causing the organization to "suffer injuries, losses and damages."

Kidnap Triangle Charged, Chicago Fines Capital Trio

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Despite protests of the husband that it was a "big mistake," Judge George B. Weiss of Women's Court today assessed fines of $2 and costs each upon George L. Clark, 37, his wife, May, 32, and Corpl. George Hill, 27, all of Washington, D. C. They were involved in what Clark termed a kidnaping triangle yesterday.

Mrs. Clark and Hill were arrested yesterday near Clark's automobile in front of a Chicago hotel, after Clark had charged Saturday that Hill kidnaped his wife. Clark charged that Hill beat him.

Police booked Mrs. Clark and Hill on disorderly conduct charges, and after Clark refused to sign other complaints against them, police booked him for the same offense.

Hill is attached to the medical division of the United States Army at Washington. He said they left Washington together on vacation and that he was due back this month. Clark said he and his wife formerly conducted a private dancing school in Silver Spring, Md., a suburb of Washington. They reside in Washington.

Film Firm Sues for $5,000,000; Says Rival 'Stole' Gary Cooper

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, July 20.—The cash value of Gary Cooper, tall, blue-eyed movie star, was rated at $4,000,000 today when Paramount Pictures Corporation sued Samuel Goldwyn, film producer, charging Goldwyn secretly raised the Paramount contract list and "stole" Cooper.

Paramount asked $4,000,000 actual damages, and another $1,000,000 punitive award.

A suit brought in Federal court charged that Goldwyn, or his representatives, secretly induced Cooper not to sign a new contract with Paramount, his present employers, when negotiations were opened on that subject last January. His present contract expires next December.

All this was accomplished, it continued, "by means of false and fraudulent representations and statements." Adolph Zukor, Paramount chairman of the board, personally accused Goldwyn of a "breach of good morals and ethics, and a violation of the law."

Goldwyn replied, "I haven't seen the complaint, but I do not understand any theory on which any such claim can be based."

Cooper himself tossed the task of talking into the lap of his manager, Jack Moss, who admitted he had signed the lanky actor to a Goldwyn contract before the Paramount agreement had run out. "It was just one of those things," he said. "I don't know of any trouble between the two studios."

The movie colony was inclined

Coughlin Claim of Union Party House Majority Termed 'Foolish.'

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—Democratic and Republican leaders here today minimized the possible effects of the new Union Party in the election this fall.

Democratic Chairman James A. Farley said he was not in the least concerned by predictions of the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin that the new party would elect a majority in the House of Representatives.

"Such a statement," he said, "is too foolish to be worthy of comment."

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., manager of the Republican campaign in the East, said he expected the Union Party's candidate, Representative William Lemke, to take very few votes from Gov. Alf M. Landon.

"If the Union Party has any influence in the East," he declared, "it will be to make the States doubly sure for us. However, we believe we would carry them, anyway."

He predicted that 75 per cent of the votes cast for Lemke would come from Democrats.

No Damage, Says Farley.

Commenting on the Townsend national convention in Cleveland last week, Farley said:

"There isn't anything that happened in Cleveland that will in any way be damaging to the Democratic Party."

He said he had no appointment to see Gomer Smith, vice president of the old-age revolving pension plan, who arrived here today, avowing his loyalty to the Townsend plan and at the same time declaring he would campaign for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

"I'm sure he can be very helpful to the President," Farley said when informed Smith is here.

"He demonstrated that he must be a man of ability to capture as many votes as he did in Oklahoma without any organization."

Smith recently was defeated in the Oklahoma primaries by a Democratic candidate for the Senate. He aroused the ire of Dr. Francis E. Townsend at the Cleveland convention last week by assailing Father Coughlin and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, a leader of the share-the-wealth movement, for criticizing President Roosevelt.

Assails Union Party.

Smith said at a press conference today he believed the only objective of the Union Party was to defeat the President or to prevent either candidate from getting a majority of the electoral votes, which would throw the election into the House of Representatives.

Farley, commenting on a charge made last week by Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton that the Democrats had injected the racial and religious issue into the campaign, said he regretted this issue had been raised.

"We will not be responsible, and we are not responsible, for anything of such a nature as stooping to inject racial and religious issues into this campaign," he asserted. "This is my attitude and that of the Democratic Party."

The Democratic chairman announced appointment of L. W. Robert, jr., secretary of the national committee, as head of the division to organize foreign language groups to campaign for President Roosevelt.

Both Farley and Martin said they expected to be here all this week completing their campaign organizations.

Lemke Discusses Filing.

By the Associated Press.

Representative William Lemke, Presidential candidate of the Union Party, said yesterday that he would be able to get on the ballot in all but about eight States.

In the Capital for a one-day visit following his appearance before the Cleveland convention of Townsend pension-plan followers, the North Dakotan made this comment on reports that filing dates had expired in a number of States prior to his candidacy.

He said he was "delighted" with the Townsend convention.

"As far as the Townsend people are concerned," he said, "they have always been with me—about 90 per cent, which is all I could ask for."

Lemke reported his campaign proper would not begin until after an August 16 "ratifying" meeting of his and other groups in conjunction with a convention of Father Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice in Chicago.

Perkins to Head U. S. C. G. School

Commander L. W. Perkins, stationed here with the United States Coast Guard, will be transferred August 1 to New London, Conn., to assume the position of head of the Coast Guard School there, it was announced yesterday.

Relieving Commander Perkins at his post in Washington will be Lieut. Comdr. G. B. Gelly, who comes here on July 25 from the Nike, Coast Guard ship station in Mississippi waters.

Commander R. T. McElligott, whom Commander Perkins is relieving at New London, will be transferred to command of the Mohawk, Coast Guard cutter, stationed at Cape May, N. J.

Man Shot by Policeman Is in Serious Condition

Ernest Smith, 21-year-old janitor, shot by police as he fled from a stolen car, remained in a serious condition at Freedman's Hospital last night.

A bullet which entered the back of his neck had not been removed. An operation, hospital attaches said, probably will be performed today or tomorrow.

Smith led officers a dizzy chase through the northwest section of the city Sunday night in a fleet limousine he allegedly had stolen.

Politics and People

By Franklyn Waltman

ALTHOUGH it is true that one speech necessarily does not win or lose a political fight, the address which Gov. Alf M. Landon makes Thursday night accepting the Republican Presidential nomination will in all likelihood be the most important utterance he makes during the current campaign.

WALTMAN.

Acceptance speeches, even by Presidential nominees, frequently are formalities incident to the campaign and comparatively little importance attaches to them. But this is not the case with the Landon acceptance address. Observers generally believe that on the nature of that speech and the manner in which the country reacts depends in large part Gov. Landon's prospects this fall.

The reasons for attaching extraordinary importance to this acceptance speech are several. The most important is that the country knows comparatively little of the Kansan's convictions from his own lips. Therefore this address will, as it were, be Gov. Landon's introduction to voters of this country. At the same time the speech will give the Democrats the first accurate gun-sight on their target. A serious slip might be fatal to the Republicans.

Still another reason is that there apparently are a large number of persons who are unsympathetic with the Roosevelt policies, but at the same time abhor the reaction for which the Republicans have stood so often in the past. The Republican platform, framed under "old guard" influence, with its contradictions, was no reassurance to these voters. And, of course, the inadequacy of the Republican platform is another reason why the acceptance speech is important. It should constitute the Landon platform.

* * *

In the preparation of his acceptance speech Gov. Landon is in the happy position of being without a specific record on most Federal problems. He has said little since his emergence as a national figure and what he has said chiefly has been in general terms and devoted to the enunciation of principles.

Thus, he can approach the task of outlining his political philosophy with an open mind and fresh viewpoint, able to take advantage of the errors of his adversary and without embarrassing past commitments on his part. Moreover, he owes his nomination to no man or group of men, aside from his own circle of devoted, personal friends. Few Presidential nominees have had so great an opportunity to be frank and candid as has Gov. Landon.

* * *

Gov. Landon's refusal to be specific in his declarations and to make commitments prior to the Republican National Convention did him no harm. Indeed, that course has been of benefit to him since he avoided compromising convinctions in order to win the support of one or another element within his party.

But casual conversation in recent days with run of the mine voters reveals a feeling that the time has come for Gov. Landon to state in specific terms exactly what he proposes to do should he be elected. Many of those who make such statements appear to have been impressed by the man, especially by his telegram to the Cleveland convention setting forth in advance of his nomination his own interpretation of three of his party's platform planks.

That action more than anything else Gov. Landon has done stirred popular interest in him and served as notice that the Kansan was not a party hack without convictions of his own and willing to run on whatever platform the compromisers within his party might adopt for him. That action further has served to bridge the gap in holding for Gov. Landon popular interest between the convention and the acceptance speech this week.

* * *

It is doubtful whether Gov. Landon actually has made any headway in his fight since the convention. It is true that several polls have shown him in the lead or closely challenging President Roosevelt. But those results were based on straw votes taken immediately after the convention.

It is true also that several Democratic leaders—Henry Breckinridge, Joseph B. Ely and former Senator William Cabell Bruce—have declared for him, but their decisions were made the day he was nominated. Likewise, it is true that Senator William E. Borah has announced his loyalty to the Republican ticket—but realistic observers never expected the Lion of Idaho would follow any other course.

The developments have had a psychological effect in making it appear that Gov. Landon is forging ahead. But they are deceptive. It is a safe bet today that before the campaign ends a number of other conservative Democratic leaders will declare for Gov. Landon. Those decisions have been made and the announcements are being withheld only for psychological purposes.

But to win Gov. Landon must appeal to several million voters who have not made their decisions—who neither dislike President Roosevelt nor adore him; voters who remain suspicious of the Republicans and who believe that principles are more important than personalities. Gov. Landon has said nothing since the conventions to cause this group to make their decisions.

Some of them have been surprised at the inept photographs published in the newspapers and magazines of the Republican candidate—such as throwing snowballs and eating with a napkin tucked under his chin—but they are willing to lay the blame for that on the photographers' desire for novelty pictures, or on the nominee's press agents, who seem afraid of offending the photographers. Some likewise have believed that Republican Chairman John Hamilton is talking too much and Gov. Landon too little—but again, they recognize that the formalities of a campaign year impose silence on the nominee until the news is broken to him that he is nominated in the century-old quaint American custom.

* * *

But once the acceptance speech is made these voters will become less lenient and judge the Republican nominee more realistically. They will want to know where he stands and with whom he associates. It is entirely possible that Gov. Landon Thursday night may nail down—or blast—his chances for election.

Landon Speech Ready.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 20.—Gov. Alf M. Landon completed a 3,500-word acceptance speech today and planned two days of relaxation with his family before Thursday's ceremonies formally designating him the Republican Presidential nominee.

A close adviser, in discussing the address in which Landon will open his campaign to oust the New Deal, said from 35 to 40 minutes probably will be required to read its 3,500 words.

This confidante said the address would contain no bitter criticism but would represent a pretty comprehensime treatment of present-day problems. Probably half a dozen of these, he said, would be discussed in some detail, while other problems of a more complex nature would be left for detailed treatment in the future.

By comparison, the Landon adviser said President Roosevelt's acceptance speech in Philadelphia fell just short of 2,000 words, while Calvin Coolidge accepted the Republican nomination in 1924 in approximately 7,200 words. There was no exact information on what problems Landon would emphasize. Observers expected special attention to be paid agriculture, relief, employment, Government finance, money, tariff, monopoly and the Constitution.

Coincident with completion of the acceptance address, Landon wound up a series of pre-notification conferences with lengthy discussions of banking and political problems.

Tomorrow Mrs. Landon, 19-year-old Peggy Anne and John Landon, his 79-year-old father, arrive from Estes Park, Colo., to join the governor for two days of rest at home before Thursday's ceremonies.

Landon's next official engagement was a luncheon Thurday with the Republican National Committee and members of the Notification Committee. That night at 8 p. m. the notification program will begin, with Landon likely to step before the microphone about 8:30.

With former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Landon canvassed the political outlook in Ohio, the 24 electoral votes of which are coveted by both parties.

Cooper told newspapermen Ohio is "a pivotal state" in 1936 and is "going Republican all the way down the line."

For more than an hour in his office, Landon discussed banking and currency problems with Representative John B. Hollister of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee. Later, Hollister went to the executive mansion for a further talk.

Another caller was Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of the late Charles Curtis. During Curtis' Vice Presidency, she served as his official hostess at Washington social functions.

"I am going to campaign for the Governor," Mrs. Gann said. "I am glad to go to work for Mr. Landon."

Henry W. Anderson, Richmond, former Republican candidate for Governor in Virginia, visited briefly. He described the nominee as "a very good candidate and a level-headed man" who had a good chance of carrying Virginia, North Carolina and Florida.

Cooper, after his conference with Landon, said the "real" campaign issue was whether the country should follow an "increasing debt and discriminatory tax program as the Government should cut expenses, pay debts and live within the income.

"That is what you call common-sense policy," Cooper said. "Here we have been joyriding in the dark with an increased debt of $15,000,000,000 in three and one-half years and a program of scarcity advocated as the road to abundance."

A. F. L Rebels To Decide Stand On Trial Order

12 Leaders of 1,250,000 Workers Begin Secret Conferences Today.

By the United Press.

Twelve spokesmen for more than 1,250,000 workers will begin secret conferences today to determine whether to ignore or obey orders to stand trial before the executive council of the American Federation of Labor on August 3, on charges of fomenting "dual unionism" and "insurrection."

The so-called "rebels," who comprise the committee for industrial organization, incurred the wrath of the council by their independent efforts to establish single large unions in mass production industries to embrace both skilled and unskilled workers. Their activities clashed with the federation's traditional craft union policy or segregating employes into individual units according to their trade and skill.

The final decision of the "insurgents" will go far toward determining the fate of labor's "united front." Strong pressure was being brought upon John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and head of the committee, to oppose any action by the group which would make more difficult or even impossible the attainment of a peaceful solution of the controversy. The CIO unionists snubbed an invitation by the council to appear and defend their refusal to disband their organization. A second snub, friends of both factions argued tonight, would embarrass conciliation efforts.

May Again Refuse.

The possibility that the "rebels" might again refuse to appear in person before the council, but would prepare lengthy briefs in defense of their activities, was being discussed in labor circles last night. Such a decision, it was pointed out, would serve to keep the door open to a compromise agreement which would make it possible to drop the charges.

Several compromise proposals which would enable both groups to surrender from earlier positions without loss of prestige have been brought forward. The most favored suggestion, and one which has support within the federation council contains three salient points:

1. The council would "spot" three or four industries in which the industrial unionists would carry on their experiment.
2. The C. I. O. would be disbanded.
3. The international unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. would aid in financing the organization drive in designated industries.

Sidesteps Issue.

A similar plan, but one which did not call for the abandonment of the C. I. O., once was agreeable to Lewis. Lately, however, he has side-stepped any commitment on such a proposal and, with his aids, roared opposition to any suggestion calling for the scrapping of the "rebel" organization. President William Green, of the A. F. of L., repeatedly has said that disbandment of the C. I. O. was the minimum concession which the council would accept from Lewis and his colleagues.

Peace-makers tonight speculated on another proposal which would bring C. I. O. activities to a stop for the period of a year to give the federation every opportunity to co-operate in the drive for industrial unions. If, at the end of that time, Lewis and his aides continued to be dissatisfied, they could resort to the use of their organization again.

Pay Held Larger.

A statement issued yesterday by the American Iron and Steel Institute declared that steel mill pay envelopes were more than 18 per cent larger than the average for all manufacturing industries.

The steel worker's average pay was put at $26.38 in March of this year, while the average for all industries was $22.25.

"Between 1929 and 1933 dividends to steel stockholders were reduced more than 94 per cent—from $189,000,000 to $11,000,000," the statement added.

"In 1935, when total iron and steel pay rolls exceeded $550,000,000, stockholders received less than $39,000,000, equivalent to only 7 cents for each dollar in pay rolls.

"The prices received from the sale of iron and steel likewise failed to keep pace with the industry's wages.

"Out of every dollar received from the sale of steel products, 41 cents goes into pay rolls, while dividends account for only 1½ cents. The remainder goes for raw materials and other expenses."

Milk Shortage Predicted

area, it was reported. In one instance, food rose from $25 a ton to $43, within a few weeks.

At present, Derrick pointed out, members of his association are receiving 26½ cents a gallon for Class 1 milk. In order to cover producing costs—to pay the dairymen so he in turn can meet mounting feed prices—Derrick suggested that local milk distributors pay 30½ cents per gallon. The association, he added, sells directly to the distributors.

The proposed marketing agreement includes the 26½-cent rate, setting this as the standard for Washington's entire market.

Nonmembers of the association, however, would have no assurance of receiving this rate, it was pointed out.

Coleman C. Gore, a Leesburg, Va., milk broker, cited this fact in urging the hearing to be postponed for 30 days in order that independent producers could have more time to study the agreement and file information on their operations.

"Three hundred independent shippers on this market only learned of this proposed agreement Friday morning," Gore said. "This agreement will mean the destruction of 200 or 300 shippers of the Washington market."

Gore kept up a running fire of sarcastic comments, refusing to answer questions until he finished. At one point, H. J. Gerten, of Manassas, Va., interjected to say:

"I stayed up lots until midnight—and my brother stayed up with me—trying to figure out what this proposition is going to do to me. I can't answer the proposal until I know—and I haven't figured it out yet."

Explains His System.

Soon after the meeting convened, Alden A. Potter, who described himself as a small milk producer from Cabin John, Md., took the floor to conduct a two-hour "filibuster" against the propoed agreement.

He charged that price fixing—as proposed in the agreement—tended to increase production and create a surplus from which the larger milk concerns made huge profits. A militant anti-New Dealer, Potter threatened at times to throw the hearing into disorder with his remarks.

In answer to a query Potter said he owned six cows, which produced 70 quarts of milk a day. He said he took care of the overproduction problem by "drinking a quart of milk or selling a cow." He added:

"This meeting and this plan perpetrate essentially a fraud. The little fellow has about as much chance of getting any consideration as a snowflake in the dust bowl."

Someone far back in the auditorium interrupted to say:

"If this representative of half a dozen cows is going to take an hour or more to talk about them, I'd like to know about it—we got to get home to our own cows."

And Potter retorted:

"It doesn't take more than one cow to make an economic fact."

The meeting was called at the suggestion of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association and was presided over by officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

P. L. Miller, principal agricultural economist of the dairy section, AAA, explained the proposed agreement as "more of a program for the betterment of farm prices."

Sessions will continue today.

$11,380 in Vaults Of Takoma Park

The mayor and town council of Takoma Park, Md., met last night and approved the annual report of the treasurer of the town.

J. Wilson Dodd, treasurer, reported the town now has $11,380 in its treasury. Total receipts for the year, he reported, amounted to $59,180, and disbursements were $64,204, but a carryover of $16,404 from the past fiscal year kept the books from the red side of the ledger.

Tax collections, Dodd reported, amounted to $44,838, while special assessment collections were $8,210. Other collections were minor items.

Principal disbursements were $7,700 for police expenditures; $14,851 for street repairs; $10,064 for garbage collections and street lights, and $2,154 for playgrounds.

The council also approved the action of the mayor and the town safety council in barring entrance to the springs located there, but made it clear that the barrier does not mean persons no longer can go to the spring to get water. It merely means that no cars can be driven past the barrier.

Spain Crushes Rebellion in Madrid, Moves to Smash Invaders in Other Cities

Ships, Planes Join in Battle Against Moors

1,000 Mutineers Seized in Fighting in Capital; Fleet on Guard.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Madrid, July 20.—Spain pounded out a military uprising in its Leftist capital with artillery and airplane bombardment today, announced confidently it was smashing revolution throughout the country and rushed a loyal peasant army to a rebel stronghold.

In an official radio broadcast, civil guards in Zaragoza, one of two sections which the government admitted still was troublous, were ordered to give up their arms to advancing peasants.

Zaragoza is in northern Spain.

Tonight's broadcast urged government forces and armed militiamen recruited from Leftist ranks to ferret out Fascists said to be attempting to mingle with workers in order to "confuse the Republican triumph."

Rebels Fail to Land.

The government announced Moroccan rebels, who seized the Spanish zone in Africa over the week-end, had failed in an attempted landing at Algeciras.

The warship Cervantes bombarded rebels at Cadiz when it learned Moorish troops of the African Foreign Legion had been sent to the peninsula.

In Seville, civil and assault guards were said to be backing the government while loyal airplanes bombarded rebels in the city. The government contended the civil government in Seville was still holding out.

A fleet of submarines loyal to the government reported for duty off Malaga, watching the sea to prevent any further attempt to land rebels from Africa. Military planes were reported to have left Alicante en route to Seville.

Published reports from Melilla, in Spanish Morocco, said the populace and loyal artillery regiments were fighting the insurgents. An attempted uprising at Badajoz, in southwest Spain, was declared smashed.

Account of Fighting.

An authoritative account of the morning of fighting in the capital which culminated in the suppresion of revolts in the La Montanna and other garrisons, became available tonight.

The insurrection began amid the engineering regiment at La Montanna when the undersecretary of war, Gen. Fanjul called out the unit to support the movement in Morocco "against Russia and for the good name of Spain."

As soon as authorities learned of the incident, an assault guard tank was sent to the barracks and precautions were taken at other military centers.

At 5:30 a. m. action was opened against the barracks at La Montana and at 6:30 airplanes began to fly over the garrison, dropping leaflets which urged the soldiers to remain loyal to the republic.

The artillery, manned by assault guards, opened fire on the rebels with a trench mortar, rifles and machine guns.

Continuous Fire.

Rifles and machine guns kept up a continuous fire until the battered insurgents hoisted the white flag at 10:45 a. m.

Already, soldiers in the barracks had rebelled against their Fascist officers and, upon surrendering, fraternized with the loyal forces.

When the loyal forces poured into the barracks the bodies of several officers were found at the inside gates and numerous wounded were given first-aid treatment.

Fascist civilians also were discovered inside the barracks, published reports said, and the soldiers of the regiment asserted it was chiefly the officers and these civilians who had fired on the government forces.

Fire Into the Air.

The soldiers themselves declared they had fired mostly into the air. More than 1,000 prisoners were taken, and Carabanchel barracks, likewise rebellious, was captured by the loyal troops.

An insurrection at Getaff airdrome was quickly mastered by a fleet of planes from Cuatro Vientos Airfield, which bombed the rebels.

The Vicalvaro artillery regiment barracks at Maria Cristina surrendered also.

Dispatches from Portugal, meantime, said the Rightist Gen. Sanjurjo had been killed in an airplane accident while flying to Spain to aid the rebels.

France to Aid Nationals.

Paris, July 20 (AP).—Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos informed the mayor of Toulouse tonight France was sending two naval vessels to Barcelona to return a group of French athletes stranded in the vicinity of the Spanish city.

Conflicting Reports.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

After the morning hours of fighting in which insurgent garrisons in Madrid had been pounded into submission and "traitorous" officers seized by the hundreds, authorities announced the rebellion on the mainland "completely crushed," except at Valladolid and Zaragoza.

(At Irun, Spain, on the border, British tourists said armed Leftist civilians were considering marching to Madrid to repel insurgents said to be advancing from the south.

(In Morocco, said Paris reports, 9 were dead and more than 150 wounded.

Gen. Francisco Franko, the "man on horseback" of the Rightist revolt, which spread from Spanish Morocco to the Peninsula in swift and bloody week-end hours, was reported by the government to have demanded a seaplane at Seville, intending to flee.

During the afternoon the government radio said:

"The triumph of the Popular Front is absolutely complete. We have imprisoned several hundred chiefs and officers, including Gen. Franjul, head of the garrison in Madrid.

Workers En Route.

Thousands of workers, the government said, are en route from Huelva to Seville under the aegis of the Popular Front to fight for the republic against the rebels.

In other proclamations, the Government declared the garrison at Alcala de Henares, near the capital, had surrendered and said the body of Gen. Garcia Herran, a rebel leader, had been found at Carabanchel.

An official manifesto urged a return to normalcy by the citizens and demanded that bakers go to work to provide bread for loyal soldiers and civilians.

A moratorium was decreed for all commercial debts, a 2,000-peseta ($280) limit was placed on bank withdrawals and many stores were closed.

Royalist newspapers were confiscated, and authorities said they would be directed by republican newspapermen. Throughout the government stressed the republican nature of its announced victories and contended the rebel movement as "Fascist."

Officers' Bodies Found.

Madrid, July 20 (U.P.).—The bodies of 18 army officers, apparently suicides, were found in the Montana barracks tonight after loyal forces recaptured it from the rebels.

The dead included two lieutenant colonels, Gen. Joaquin Fanjul, an alleged leader of the revolution, was badly wounded and was unable to leave the barracks. He was taken prisoner.

King Edward Delays Vacation on Riviera

London, July 20 (AP).—King Edward, it was learned tonight, may delay his vacation on the French Riviera for a few days.

The King, who tonight completed his first six months on the throne, was understood to be contemplating returning to London to conduct state business after Sunday's dedication ceremony at the Canadian monument erected on Vimy Ridge.

There was no question, authoritative sources said, of calling off the vacation entirely. The King has arranged to occupy the Villa L'Horizon of the American actress Maxine Elliott, near Cannes.

tables and fish as thousands of Spanish vendors who sell their wares here every day failed to cross the frontier. Hundreds of homes were without servants.

Those who crossed the frontier were allowed through the gates only one at a time. Each was examined closely.

Refugees said La Linea, closest Spanish town to Gibraltar, was strewn with dead. They said Fascists are now in complete control of the city, but that large governmental forces were advancing to attack. The loyal forces reportedly were en route from Malga with several field pieces to blast out the rebels if necessary.

Commandante Eleuterio Sanchez Rubio, who has been a refugee in Gibraltar since the proclamation of the second republic in 1931, was appointed military commander of La Linea by the rebel forces.

British Tell of Clashes.

Gibraltar, July 20 (AP).—British officers arriving here tonight from Marbella, in the Spanish Province of Malaga, said government forces numbering more than 10,000 still had possession of Malaga City, Marbella and adjoining towns.

Revolting Moroccan troops, however, held control of towns near Gibraltar, said the officers who reached here on the tug Noel Birch.

They asserted much blood had been shed in many streets which they saw. Three bridges between Malaga and Marbella were blown up to prevent the approach of rebellious Spanish foreign legionnaires, they said.

Government Offensive.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

The government took the offensive last night to crush the Fascist-Monarchist revolution in Peninsular Spain.

Civil guard posts in northern Zaragosa Province were ordered to arm the populace for a march on the provincial capital, Zaragosa, held by rebel forces. The rebels also were in control of Valladolid in the north.

Britons and Spanish aristocrats were evacuated from Malaga by the British navy. The city was in flames.

Signs that Spain's Fascist revolt against the Red Popular Front government was collapsing were seen at Perpiguan, Franco-Spanish frontier, today when revolting troops quit fighting upon receipt of news that the armed masses were successful in quelling the rebellion at Barcelona.

Gen. Jose San Jurjo, famous Monarchist leader, was killed in an airplane crash while flying to Spain from Portugal. Gen. Garcia de la Herranz was killed in the Madrid fighting.

Fighting was heavy near Cadiz and other southern coast cities and towns.

Drastic censorship prevented any messages not approved by the ministry of the interior from leaving Spain. Frontiers were closed tight.

Losses were believed heavy. Two hundred were reported killed in a night of horror at La Linea.

The United States embassy in Madrid invited Americans to take refuge there. It warned members of the American colony to remain off the streets of the beleaguered capital.

The French interior ministry heard reports that all men under 30 have been ordered mobilized in Spain.

The rebels remained in control of Spanish Morocco and the Canary Islands. The situation in the Balearic Islands was not known.

2,000 Are Dead At Barcelona, Travelers Say

150,000 Guns Distributed to Citizens to Fight Rebels, They Report.

By the United Press.

Geneva, July 20.—From 2,000 to 3,000 persons were killed or wounded in fighting between Fascist rebels and popular front government forces at Barcelona, first travelers arriving here by airplane from the Catalonian capital reported today.

They said that apparently the Madrid government had mastered the revolt in Catalonia.

Refugees asked the United Press not to reveal their identity in order to protect friends who helped them to leave Barcelona.

They said the air force, civil guards and shock police remained loyal to the government when the army revolted, but they were not sufficient to put down the movement. The government was obliged to arm the populace to overcome the rebels.

They said the government distributed 150,000 rifles and revolvers among the civilians.

Airplanes were still bombing rebel strongholds, particularly in the Barcelona barracks near the seafront, when the refugees departed at 2:30 p. m.

They said many churches were destroyed by bombs and fire.

Barcelona authorities reportedly were sending 50,000 troops to Zaragosa to help quell the revolutionary movement in the north.

U. S. Agents Hunt New Public Enemy

The name of Maurice (Blondie) Denning, described by Federal agents as "one of the most notorious bank robbers at large," was placed high on the mythical list of public enemies yesterday when the Federal Bureau of Investigation sent out 250,000 "wanted" notices for his arrest.

These Denning notices, officials pointed out, are the first to be posted by Director J. Edgar Hoover since the bureau's recent roundup of four "public enemy" kidnapers cleaned up the bureau's "wanted" list of widely-known criminals.

Hoover, in anouncing an intensified Nation-wide search for the 28-year-old Afton, Iowa, man, said Denning was under indictment for robbery of national banks at Hawarden, Iowa; Dell Rapids, S. Dak.; Superior, Nebr.; Hudson, S. Dak.; and Smtih Center, Kans.

He has been identified with three State bank robberies, Hoover pointed out and is suspected of robbing five other banks.

It is known, Hoover asserted, that Denning's gang plundered the National Guard Armory at Windom, Minn., August 23, 1934, and added that "other members of the gang have been disposed of."

Homestake Gold Ore Averages $14.39 a Ton

Piere, S. Dak., July 20 (AP).—The Homestake Mining Co. of Lead, S. Dak., has paid the State $198,722.80, representing the 4 per cent State tax on the value of ore produced during the three months ended June 30.

A report accompanying the check showed production during the quarter of 345,132 tons of gold ore, valued at $4,968,070.10, or an average of $14.39 per ton.

Vacation With Pay For WPA Workers

By the Associated Press.

Orders authorizing vacations with pay for several thousand Works Progress Administration employes were issued yesterday by Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator.

The order applied to WPA supervisory and white-collar employes who previously had been barred from vacations because they are paid from the same pay roll as the rank and file of relief workers.

The order directed that vacations and sick leave with pay be provided under the same conditions as others of the WPA administrative staff on regular pay rolls.

This was made possible by an administrative order which officials said met the objections of the Comptroller General's office. Former Comptroller General J. R. McCarl had ruled that leave with pay was not authorized by the work relief appropriation.

Officials said the order did not provide vacations or sick leave for the more than 2,000,000 needy carrying out WPA projects.

Spain's Riff Hero Dies in Plane Blast

Lisbon, Portugal, July 20 (AP).—(Delayed by censor)—Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, 64-year-old national hero of Spain's long war with the Riffs in Morocco and confidant of former King Alfonso XIII, was killed today in an airplane accident 15 miles from here when flying to Spain.

The short and burly war veteran, who has been living at Estoril, Portugal, since leaving Spain two years ago, was reportedly the choice of Spanish revolutionary leaders for president of the republic in event their uprising proved successful.

The plane in which he took off exploded at a height of 20 feet in Cascaes Bay, west of Lisbon.

Nanking Troops Pour Into Canton

Canton (Tuesday) July 21 (U.P.).—Nanking troops poured into Canton today to enforce the central government's decree abolishing the Southwest Political Council and to stamp out the rebellious movement in Kwangsi and Kwangtung Provinces, of which Canton is the administrative center.

The troops consisted of former soldiers of the Kwantung army who rebelled and joined the Nanking government. Officials denied that any Northern troops had entered the city. They also denied reports that Japanese bluejackets had landed.

The vanguard of the Nanking forces began arriving shortly after 2 a. m.

Bourbon Allies Not in Revolt, Alfonso Asserts

Movement Is National One, He Asserts in Attack on Leftists.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Marienbad, Czechoslovakia, July 20.—Former King Alfonso of Spain tonight authorized the Associated Press to say he does not consider the Spanish revolt to be a movement toward restoration of the Bourbon monarchy.

"The monarchists and republicans are fighting together against the Leftist regime," said the former monarch, reached at the Metternich Castle in Koenigswart.

"The present revolutionary movement in Spain is not a fight of monarchists or of republicans—for or against restoration. It is a national movement."

Alfonso said what he wanted for Spain was "rescue from the Leftist government, from a regime of daily murders and disorders."

"My only desire," he said, "is inauguration of a regime of peace and order and the coming to power of a Rightist government supported by the army."

Three Indicted For Bannister Extortion Plot

Ex-Husband of Ann Harding Says He Paid $1,800 in Divorce Tangle.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—The extortion of $1,800 from Harry Bannister, theatrical producer and former husband of Ann Harding, the actress, was charged in two indictments returned against three men in General Sessions Court today.

The indictments named Harry Hechheimer, attorney, arrested in Concord, N. H.; Jerome A. Jacobs, New York City attorney, and Raymond Derringer, of New York City.

In Supreme Court, Justice Louis A. Valente refused to release Max D. Krone, private detective, from Tombs Prison on a writ of habeas corpus. Krone was arrested in May and indicted in connection with a reputed extortion ring said to have made victims of Alfred E. Smith, jr., son of the former Governor, and others.

To an assertion by Krone's counsel that his client's present bail of $50,000 was prohibitive, Assistant District Attorney Eugene Finnegan said Charles "Lucky" Luciano, recently convicted vice "king," had been held in $350,000 bail and described Luciano's offenses as less obnoxious than those charged against Krone.

"Blackmail is more repugnant," Finnegan told the court. "It is almost as bad as murder."

The district attorney's office reported Bannister gave $1,800 to Hechheimer, Jacobs and Derringer in 1934 for the return of affidavits reputed to relate to the divorce proceedings then pending between Bannister and Miss Harding. Later, the indictments charged, the defendants sought to obtain an additional $1,000.

Bail for Derringer and Jacobs was set at $50,000 each and at $2,500 for Hechheimer, who evidenced willingness to aid the prosecution. Date of arraignment was set for Wednesday.

Polly Moran's Future Life Up To the Weather

May Change Her Mind About Divorcing Husband If It Gets Cooler.

By the Associated Press.

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 20.—Polly Moran, film comedienne, may change her mind after all about divorcing her husky husband, Martin Malone, lawyer and real estate man—especially if the weather cools off.

Polly, back from a cooling weekend yacht trip, was in a forgiving mood. She said she hoped things wouldn't go too hard with Malone at a preliminary hearing July 29 on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

She refused to sign a complaint against Malone, but police accused him of holding a pistol against Miss Moran's head and threatening to shoot her early one morning last week.

"He's really a good fellow at heart," the actress said. "If a couple of other men hadn't plied him with drink, as the saying goes, things probably would have remained lovely at our little home.

"Last week I fully intended to set about getting a divorce, but I've decided now to wait until after his preliminary hearing before making up my mind."

The comedienne was asked if there was any possibility of an immediate reconciliation. She had a ready answer:

"Say, I wouldn't have a man around the house in this hot weather—not even if he were King Edward VIII."

3 Democrats Oppose Murray In Vote Today

Montana Senate Contest Finds 4 Candidates in Each Party.

By the United Press.

Helena, Mont., July 20.—Four of Montana's most seasoned political campaigners will seek the Democratic nomination for the nUited States Senate tomorrow in a primary election in which Democratic and Republican voters will choose their nominees for national, State and municipal offices.

His opponents include Congressman Joseph B. Monaghan, a fellow townsman; S. S. Stewart, associate justice of the State Supreme Court and a powerful figure in Montana politics for 25 years, and Chief Justice Walter B. Sands of the State Supreme Court. The issues between them are mainly local.

Elected in 1934.

Murray, a Butte lawyer, was elected in 1934 to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh.

Four men are seeking the Republican nomination. They are T. O. Larson, Choteau; L. Ray Carroll, round-up; High Egan, Lewiston, and Jess Stevens, Great Falls.

Only one national candidate is assured of nomination. H. L. Hart, Helena, is the only Republican who filed for Congress in the first district which embraces 17 Western counties. Seven Democrats are in the race for the nomination. Monaghan, now a candidate for the Senate, represents the District.

... 8 Run in Second District. ...

In the Second District, three Democrats and five Republicans are in the field. Roy E. Ayers, Lewistown, Democrat, did not seek reelection, filing instead for the gubernatorial nomination.

Ayers is opposing Gov. Elmer Hoyt and three other Democrats for the gubernatorial post. Two Republicans are in the field.

Election officials expect the largest primary in Montana history. There are 251,807 persons eligible to vote in the State's 1,237 precincts.

to believe that sentiment played an important part in Cooper's alignment with Goldwyn.

Gary, friends said, got his first movie chance through Goldwyn, ten years ago last month. Arriving in Los Angeles from his native Helena, Mont., Cooper vainly hunted a job as a newspaper cartoonist, and eventually landed in Hollywood as a cowboy-extra in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," a Ronald Colman-Vilma Banky vehicle.

Goldwyn picked Cooper from out of the crowd, gave him a second lead in the film, and saw him go on to become one of the most important players in the movies.

Gary's intimates said the actor has long hoped for a chance to go back to Goldwyn, using his now great popularity to his benefactor's advantage. He has been under contract to Paramount since August, 1926.

Salary, it is understood, did not influence the switch. Cooper is reported to receive "more than $100,000 a picture."

There is no provision against "star-raiding" in the statutes of the Producers Association agreement, or the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Eden and Envoys Confer on Locarno

London, July 20 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden carried on negotiations today with Ambassadors Charles Corbin, of France, and Baron Emil Captier de Marchienne, of Belgium, to arrange preliminary Locarno power security talks as defense minister Sir Thomas Inskip assured Parliament all steps were being taken to increase Britain's fighting strength.

Eden also requested Sean Lester, Irish high commissioner in Danzig for the League of Nations, to furnish a full report on the situation there as a result of the anti-Jewish and other decrees issued Saturday by Dr. Arthur Karl Greiser, Danzig Senate president, to crush Nazi opponents.

Eden's talks with the ambassadors here were to decide the date and scope of three power talks in preparation for a meeting of all Locarno powers to discuss a substitute for the repudiated Locarno treaty.

Cooper Loses Suit to Regain Savings Bank

Court Accepts Insolvency Report of Comptroller of the Currency.

Action of the United States District Court in refusing to order the Comptroller of the Currency to turn back the United States Savings Bank to its stockholders, was upheld in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday in an opinion written by Associate Justice Harold Stephens.

The action was brought about in a suit filed by Col. Wade H. Cooper, one time president of the bank, and a majority stockholder to force the Treasury to relinquish the bank and its remaining assets. He contended the bank was able to pay off all its debts, while, to the contrary, the Treasury charged there were insufficient assets on hand to pay all the creditors and depositors.

In the Appellate Court's opinion the situation resolves itself into a legal tangle in which "the comptroller determined the bank was yet insolvent, whereas the president of the bank contends it had regained its solvency. This mere contradiction standing alone compels the court to accept the official determination of the comptroller.

"Takes Comptroller's Word."

"It has been held by a long array of authorities that where the Comptroller of the Currency has held a bank to be insolvent and has appointed a receiver for it, the court will not substitute its judgment for the judgment of the comptroller unless it appears by convincing proof that the comptroller's action is plainly arbitrary and was made in bad faith."

The court held there was no showing of bad faith on the part of the comptroller, who appointed a receiver after the bank was closed during the March, 1933, banking holiday. It has since paid 80 per cent of its deposits, and holds assets securing at least in part, the remaining 20 per cent.

Col. Cooper won his first fight to regain custody of the bank when the then District Supreme Court upheld him in his efforts to prevent the United States Savings from becoming a member of the Hamilton National Bank, through the sale to the Hamilton of 50 per cent of its prime assets.

Lost Reorganization Fight.

Later on Col. Cooper lost an attempt to require the Treasury to approve a plan of reorganization he formulated for the bank. The plan was rejected, it was said, because it required depositors to waive their immediate right to a percentage of their claims.

The third legal battle was begun when, due to the appreciation of real estate and securities remaining in the bank, Col. Cooper believed the time ripe for asserting the bank could pay off all its debts and have a margin left over. That was the suit terminated yesterday when the Appellate Court held that the comptroller could retain custody and could continue liquidation.

Col. Cooper, at one time president of three Washington banks, owned 56 per cent of the stock of the United. The bank paid huge dividends prior to its closing, and since then has paid depositors some $1,286,000.

Icebergs Missing in Sea Zone For First Time in 23 Years

Ships in Danger Line South of 48th Parallel Have Not Been Menaced This Season; Coast Guard Ends Patrol Month Earlier.

By the Associated Press.

Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, yesterday reported a puzzling dearth of icebergs in the North Atlantic.

For the first time since the guard started keeping an eye on icebergs 23 years ago, no "berg" crossed the danger line this year to menace North Atlantic steamer lanes, Waesche said.

The danger zone is south of the forty-eighth parallel, an imaginary line extending east and west across the Atlantic Ocean 30 miles north of St. Johns, Newfoundland.

The absence of icebergs enabled the guard to wind up its north Atlantic ice patrol on June 8, more than a month earlier than usual.

"There is no definite explanation," Waesche said. "The most plausible answer apparently can be found in the phenomena or mystery surrounding a weak, slow moving, small in volume Labrador current."

Only 65 icebergs were reported north of the North Atlantic steamer lanes this year. The Coast Guard took over the job of protecting North Atlantic steamer lanes from them in 1913 several months after the Titanic crashed on April 14, 1912, and sank with a loss of 1,500 lives.

Since 1913 the number of icebergs that floated south of the forty-eighth parallel averaged 420 a season, Waesche said.

Lee Boulevard Work Delayed By U.S.Demand

Virginia Opposes Certain Proposals Made by Government.

Despite the fact that the Secretary of War has signed an easement granting rights of way over Government property for completion of the Lee boulevard to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, there are some questions to be cleared up before the State will proceed with the project, it appeared yesterday.

In granting the easement, the Government still wants to maintain jurisdiction of that part of the boulevard passing over Government property, it was learned. This is not meeting with the approval of State highway department.

The Government also seeks the right to provide additional approaches to the highway should they be deemed necessary.

The Cherrydale school playground yesterday was awarded the "star banner" by the local school board as having the largest attendance and shown the most improvement during the past week.

The banner was presented by Miss Clara B. Wheeler, supervisor. The school winning it for three consecutive weeks will hold it for the season. Attendance during the past week was 1,053.

The Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, will meet Thursday night in the clubrooms on North Washington Boulevard at Clarendon.

Bids will be opened Saturday at 11 a. m. in the office of County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan for remodeling and reconditioning the courthouse. Drawings and specifications can be obtained from the offices of Upman & Adams, architects, 744 Jackson place, Washington.

U. S. and British Film Firms Merge

New York, July 20 (AP).—American film producing and exhibiting companies, instead of only one as heretofore, will share a minority interest in British Gaumont Pictures, Ltd., under consolidation plans announced today which may have a far-reaching effect on the film industry in both nations.

Announcing the deal, which the boards of directors of all companies concerned must approve, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of Twentieth-Century-Fox Film Corp., said all will mutually co-operate in the British concern's development of television. British-Gaumont officials claim to control television patents far in advance of anything in America."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is the American company which would be the new participant in British-Gaumont interests, taking over half of Twentieth-Century-Fox's 49 per cent share in the Metropolis and Bradford Trust Company which holds 57 per cent of the British company's voting stock.

Police Abandon Theory Slain Man Was Terrorist

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Detectives tonight dicsarded a theory that William Keane, 28, slain as he tried to escape ten police squads which surrounded him in a nurses' dormitory, was the South Side terrorist who in recent weeks criminally assaulted several women in their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Ure Henry viewed Keane's body at the morgue and said he was not the man who robbed them July 1 and attacked Mrs. Henry in their apartment.

Attack Laid to Prisoner.

Mount Vernon, Ga., July 20 (AP).—Deputy Sheriff Willard Burch said authorities tonight arrested a 35-year-old colored farm laborer accused of attacking a 17-year-old white girl and dropping her into an unused well. He was booked as Robert Davis. After placing the prisoner in the Lyons Jail, officers spirited him to another, unannounced prison, Burch said, when a crowd began to form in Lyons streets.

Realty Session Slated Tonight At Alexandria

License Law Discussion on Conference Program; Trice to Speak.

More than 150 real estate brokers and salesmen will gather at 7 p. m. today in the George Mason Hotel for a conference with the Virginia Real Estate Commission. There will be a "dutch treat" supper, and the discussion of the new license law is expected to start at 8 o'clock.

The conference is the first of a series of meetings to be held throughout the State, for the purpose of acquainting at first hand the realtors with their "duty and responsibility to the general public."

The Virginia Real Estate Association is co-operating with the State regulatory body in its efforts to bring to the attention of the public the fact that the license law is for the protection of those unable to protect themselves against "unscrupulous and unprincipled real estate brokers."

The secretary of the commission, Otto Hollowell, of Norfolk, will introduce Commissioner T. V. Trice, who will be the speaker.

The commission, it is understood, has practically unlimited powers in the granting or refusing of licenses to conduct a real estate business in Virginia. District brokers operating in the northern Virginia section are required to have the approval of the commission before offering to rent or sell real estate in Virginia.

The Alexandria Chapter, American Red Cross, will start classes in home hygiene and care of the sick on August 3. In order to obtain a certificate it will be necessary for the student to have 30 hours of class work, which will be divided into two-hour periods, on Mondays and Thursdays, from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. Classes will be limited to 15 students.

The aims and objectives are:

1. To develop in the student an appreciation of mental and physical health, and a desire to build those habits that will safeguard them.

2. To teach the fundamental relationship between individual health and cleanliness, sanitation and arrangement of homes.

3. To build a basic understanding of the principles of prevention and control of disease.

4. To teach efficient and healthful methods of meeting the normal problems of the home—such as the care of the baby, preschool and school child, and the aged.

5. To develop some practical knowledge in care of the sick under home conditions and according to the physician's directions.

6. To develop an intelligent understanding and an attitude of interest and co-operation in the solving of community health problems.

The classes will be under direction of the Red Cross nurse, Mrs. Virginia Lamond. A fee of $1 will be charged for cost of materials for the course. The student must purchase the text book, for which 75 cents is charged.

The new hours for the sale of beer and wine, recently adopted by that State A. B. C. board, became effective at midnight last night. They provide for opening at 5 a. m. and closing at 2 a. m. during the summer months, and closing at 1 a. m. in the winter.

The Alexandria dealers will not be affected in the summer, as they are now permitted to remain open until 2 a. m. to conform to the hours in the District. However, in the winter their hours of sale will be curtailed one hour. This, the dealers claim, will work a considerable hardship on them.

The law requires that all tables shall be cleared at the closing hour, it being illegal to purchase drinks before closing time and remain and consume them later.

The new ruling does not affect private homes.

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Bishop Coadjutor of Richmond, who is now engaged in a confirmation tour in the deanery of northern Virginia, is now a guest at the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic Church, the bishop administered confirmation at Fairfax Sunday morning and at Warrenton Sunday night. Fairfax Funds Show Increase In '36 Balances

Residue Considered Most Satisfactory in Years; Surplus High.

A sharp increase was shown in the balances in the various funds of Fairfax County at the close of the last fiscal year, Dr. F. W. Hudleson, county treasurer, announced yesterday. The balance in the general county fund was $33,739.80 and that in the school fund, $56,862.52. During the previous year the treasurer's books showed a balance of $18,249.91 in the general fund and $25,257.67 in the county school fund.

County officials consider the balances the most satisfactory in many years, with sufficient funds to maintain ordinary county functions until taxes are paid this fall.

During the past several years tax rates were lowered until the county balances had been depleted.

In addition, the treasurer announced that balances in other funds at the beginning of the current fiscal year were:

Fire protection, $2,621.12; Confederate pensions, $2,407.00; dog tax, $4,949.88; Dranesville district road debt fund, $107,840.64; Falls Church district road debt fund, $130,321.96; Mount Vernon district road debt fund, $11,838.10; Providence district road debt fund, $30,139.40; Daniels trust fund, $42.44; town of Falls Church schools, $3,717.51, and school debt fund, $41,299.98.

Total disbursements during the 1935-36 fiscal year totaled $403,022.31. The county closed the fiscal year with a surplus of $425,730.39, which includes the special magisterial district road and school debt sinking fund, which are restricted accounts. This is an increase of $91,596.17 over the previous year.

All members of the Fairfax County Board of Health have been reappointed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Circuit Court of Fairfax County. They are Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax Station; Dr. William Meyer, of Herndon; Dr. William P. Caton, of Woodlawn, with W. F. P. Reid, of Groveton, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and County Clerk John M. Whalen, ex officio members.

Greenbelt H. S. Now Favored By School Unit

Prince Georges Officials Hear Explanations of RA on Project.

Enlightened by explanatory statements from the Resettlement Administration, Prince Georges County school officials yesterday appeared to be more in favor of accepting the new high school which the Government is constructing at the Greenbelt (Md.) project.

The Marylanders recently painted a black picture for the future of the school. They declared they would not be able to accept it because of improper construction and the probable lack of maintenance funds.

So the Resettlement Administration answered the objections as follows:

There would be sufficient tax revenue for maintenance purposes because a total of $7,000,000 in assessable property would be added from the Greenbelt project.

The modern oil-heating equipment for the school will be more efficient than the coal plant which the school board has under consideration; the sum of approximately $500 per year for ash removal will be eliminated, and the necessity for construction of a service road to the building and a coal bin in the building would be removed.

Referring to the charges that "it would be unfair to make the school the business manager for the heating of the entire community center," the officials in Washington said it had been clearly agreed there would be separate pipe lines and a separate meter for the community center.

They declared that the agreement, consummated among State as well as county school officials, called for one building for the entire community center as a means of saving construction of additional walls.

Prince Georges County police yesterday called for a rabies test for a dog which attacked and injured Peggy Detherage, 5½, of Forestville, Md., on Sunday night.

The dog, "Shep," said to be owned by George Alvey, a neighbor of Mr. and Mrs. Ashby Deatherage, Peggy's parents, is being held in confinement at the home of County Policeman William Gray, Suitland, Md. He will be removed today to Dr. Mark O. Welch, State veterinarian, at College Point.

Police said, however, the drive will be continued. They were not as chagrined as the riding public would expect. The policemen said they were just as well satisfied, so long as the speeding is kept down.

Montana Fires Sweep 20,000 Timber Acres

By the Associated Press.

Helena, Mont., July 20.—More than 900 men fought today to check roaring flames that have devoured about 20,000 acres of valuable timber in central Montana forest as the sun sent the mercury soaring above the 100-degree mark.

The worst of the fires was in the North Moccasin Mountains near Lewistown, where about 10,00 acres of timber described as "the best in the vicinity," have been destroyed by the lightning-caused blazes.

Undersheriff H. L. Linn said Deputy Fire Warden Archie Thayer, of Idaho, had arrived to supervise the fire fighting in the rough, almost inaccessible mountain country.

In the South Moccasin Mountains another lightning-caused fire has swept across a 5,000-acre forest area, Linn said.

"It will take several days to bring the blazes under control," he said. "Only a few ranchers have been available to fight them until today. Thayer will recruit men from WPA rolls to help."

Supervisor W. B. Willey said about 350 men are fighting fires in Lewis and Clark National Forest. More than 4,000 acres of timber lands have been burned over, he estimated. The official said he expected the fires to be brought under control today or tomorrow.

Camp Destroyed.

Newberry, Mich., July 20 (AP).—A timber fire destroyed camp six of the Newberry Lumber and Chemical Co. today and isolated camp eight where 100 men are quartered.

The company's sawmill here was shut down and a crew of 100 men in addition to 25 CCC men from Camp Superior left on a logging train for Camp Halifax, the nearest approach to the fire. An airplane equipped with radio was expected tomorrow to direct the work of the firefighters.

Police to Honor Buell Stanley, Retired Officer

Former Director of Traffic Will Be Buried Today in Herndon.

Flags above the city's police stations will fly at half-staff today in honor of Buell Stanley, a sergeant of the Metropolitan Police for many years, who died Sunday in Detroit, Mich. He will be buried this morning at his ancestral home in nearby Virginia.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, supetintendent of police, ordered the flags flown at half-staff in his honor.

Stanley was a familiar figure for many years to pedestrians and motorists where he directed traffic at New York avenue and Fourteenth street.

Stanley's career was varied and colorful. Before he became a policeman he was an actor and played with Charles B. Hanford and Robert Downing and others of the old-time theater.

After spending his childhood in Herndon, Va., where he was educated, he was a soldier in the Spanish-American War, serving in Company K of the District volunteers. Following his return from Cuba, he toured the United States with Hanford's troup of Shakespearean players.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Detroit. His body was sent here after the ceremonies for burial in Chestnut Grove Cemetery, Herndon.

Since his retirement, Sergt. Stanley had been living with his daughters, Mrs. Louise Rowlet and Mrs. Mabel Bushing, in Detroit.

They were taken to the consulate and later installed in the pension.

As yet theAmerican mbassy has not been made a refuge for United Stats citizens, diplomats restricting themselves for the present to advising their nationals to remain indoors.

Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

Madrid Reassures Its Diplomats Here

By the United Press.

Spanish Ambassador Don Luis Calderon received a cable message of reassurance last night from his home government in Madrid, stating that the rebellion on the continent is being quelled.

Senor Calderon translated the message as follows:

"The Spanish government has the upper hand in the situation. There is still some fighting in isolated towns in Spain, but it is decreasing in intensity.

"In Madrid the government never lost control of the situation. This morning troops at the Montana Barracks in Madrid revolted, but they quickly submitted."

The embassy learned also that the Madrid government is broadcasting reassuring news of the situation hourly in Spanish, English, French and German. Two such broadcasts were picked up here by embassy officials.

Texas U. Auctions Oil, Gas Leases

Austin, Texas, July 20 (AP).—Col. E. Waters, of Skedee, Ok la., veteran auctioneer, hawked oil and gas leases today on thousands of acres of University of Texas land in the first sale by that means since Texas entered the Union with 165,000,000 acres of public domain.

While the cry of "going, going, —" resounded, the board for lease of university lands watched hundreds of thousands of dollars roll into its treasury for leases on west Texas land. Some of the tracts were near oil production and some were merely wildcat territory.

Leases were sold on 8,372 acres in Ector, Crane, Andrews and Upton counties for $300,000. In the event of production, the university will receive one-eighth royalty. Cash bonuses paid varied from a top of $48,000 for 160.9 acres to a low of $1,000 for 160 acres.

Two Comets Visible To Naked Eye Reported

Cambridge, Mass., July 20 (AP).—The Harvard University Observatory tonight reported two comets were visible to the naked eye in the evening sky. An observatory bulletin termed the phenomenon "an extremely rare occurrence."

The two bodies are the Peltier comet, visible in the northern sky, and the Kaho comet, visible early in the evening low in the western sky.

In The Best Tradition.

In a small Virginia college town the other evening a few impromptu remarks were made which because of the nature of the occasion, the character of the speaker, and the content of his thought, are richly deserving of publicity, even though publicity was here avoided rather than sought.

This is not the less true for the contrast between those extemporaneous observations and the carefully promoted political ballyhoo which the radio is this summer laying down like a suffocating blanket over the minds of the electorate.

Senator Glass, at Ashland, did not weigh his words with a view to their effect upon the emotions of his auditors. Although himself a candidate for re-election he made no effort to sway his constituents by promises, by bombast, by meretricious appeals of any kind. As an old-fashioned Democrat, speaking in an old-fashioned way, he recalled Patrick Henry's remark that "popularity gained in devious ways cannot last." And the Senator frankly warned his audience against voting for him if Virginia has fallen so low "as to desire to be represented in the United States Senate by a rubber stamp."

In the course of his short address this veteran statesman made several trenchant observations. He pointed out that the evil of special privilege under government is not eradicated merely by extending the vicious circle to take in millions of beneficiaries.

He noted the dangers to careful local government, and indeed to the whole Federal system, which is involved when funds taken from one community are squandered in another without any insistence that the uncontrolled expenditure be either essential or economic.

He reiterated, as essential for a successful democracy, the famous principle which Edmund Burke laid down when he said that a representative must never compromise his own intellectual integrity, no matter how strident the demands of pressure groups or the insistence of party leaders.

But the underlying importance of these impromptu remarks by Senator Glass lay in their insistence on the value of the critical attitude, never more important to good government than is the case today, and never more difficult to achieve without suspicion of partiality and concealed intent than in this election year.

"Patrick Henry," said the Senator, "never identified himself with any political party. He was for liberty."

Carter Glass has been a life-long Democrat. But he rightly believes that liberty, and the critical attitude necessary to sustain it, are far more important than any formal party regularity.

Manassas Redivivus.

As was the case precisely 75 years ago, a number of Washingtonians will pack up picnic lunches today and drive out beyond Centerville to watch the fun. There is going to be some shooting between the boys in blue and boys in gray, though happily this time with only blank cartridges. If the heavens have due regard for the proprieties, the day will be as blazing hot as it was in 1861, leading many a jaunty Union volunteer to fall out of line with an absence of discipline which was destined to play its part in the unexpected outcome.

Today, of course, the result of the encounter has been settled in advance. Now it is known that what everyone assumed would be a sort of light-opera skirmish turned out to be a Northern disaster and that the bloodiest war the world had yet seen was begun in earnest at the First Battle of Manassas or Bull Run (depending on where you learned your Civil War history).

Today, when the brigades of Evarts, Bee and Bartow melt before the Union attack and rush in confusion across to Henry House Hill, they will have no doubts of the ability of Gen. Jackson, to stand "like a stonewall" and turn the tide in their favor. Today, when the Thirty-third Virginians start their counter-attack, they will have no qualms as to whether Jeb Stuart's cavalry will succeed in prying open the opposing ranks with a dashing charge. Today, Beauregard's troops will know for a certainty that Johnston, just unloading from the railway, will arrive in time to stave off the last Union thrust. Tonight no 6,000 dead will be counted in those Virginia fields.

Instead of the headlong flight 75 years ago, the throng of onlookers will this evening ride back to Washington in calm and comfort. Perhaps some of them will not even be distressed by the crass commercialization which is steadily seeping further out toward Warrenton. Gas stations, hot-dog stands and billboards are monuments of bad taste which could well be spared from this historic ground.

When The Army Strikes.

After years of fundamental political instability, dating back at least to the period of the Primo de Rivera dictatorship, Spain now finds herself gripped by what is obviously the most serious revolutionary movement in a long series of abortive risings and counter-risings.

Nearly two years ago a widespread communistic attempt to seize the reins of power from the Conservatives was suppressed by drastic measures. The current rising is even more serious. It represents a military coup d'etat; a well-organized army effort to take control from the regularly established Left Wing movement now in office. If it succeeds, a Fascist dictatorship in Spain, with or without restoration of the monarchy, is almost inevitable. If it fails, it is difficult to see how the government could avoid treating this mutiny with the severity which such a rising demands if the civil power is to remain paramount.

The civil war in Spain, with all its concomitants of brutality and internal destruction, must unfortunately be regarded as symptomatic of difficulties which spread far beyond the confines of the Iberian republic. Even making all allowances for the Spanish revolutionary tradition, and for the absence of an important stabilizing middle class in that country, it is clear that what is involved is nothing less than a life and death struggle between anarchy and constitutional government. In the past few years a heroic effort has been made to establish a liberal Spanish republic. But the forces which rely on the arbitrament of force are seemingly proving too strong for a country weakened by the political debility now affecting nearly all of the continent of Europe.

In France, particularly, the chaos across the Pyrenees will be regarded with apprehension. The "Popular Front" government of Premier Blum is not very dissimilar from that which successive premiers at Madrid have lately been unable to make effective. The stability and patriotism of the French people, as well as all the skill and common sense in the leadership of the various French factions, will be needed to insure that somewhat similar conditions do not encourage there the disastrous cataclysm now let loose in a sister Latin republic.

At The Watergate.

The throng that gathered at the Potomac watergate on Sunday evening was in itself evidence that the music-lovers of the community are welcoming with gratitude the continuation of the outdoor programs, provided this time by the Washington Summer Concerts Association. When it was announced several months ago by the National Symphony Association that no concerts would be given this summer, because of a deadlock in negotiations with the musicians' union, there was a general feeling of disappointment. Regret was freely expressed that the city would have to go without the musical enjoyment to which it had become so pleasantly accustomed last year.

The news that the musicians themselves would undertake to give the concerts on a co-operative basis was received with a lively sense of anticipation. As well as one could judge from the mood of the first audience, the public, thankful to have its concerts during the torrid season, is maintaining a strictly neutral attitude toward the disagreement between the symphony organization and the players. The cordiality manifested toward the orchestra was a token that the crowd wishes the musicians well in their venture. And the necessary support would seem to be forthcoming, if attendance continues in the same proportions.

The substitution of a platform on the river bank for the barge and reflecting shell used last summer has resulted both in the diminution of seating facilities and in a lessening of audibility for those who cannot find places directly in line with the orchestra. It would be advisable for the association to remedy the acoustical shortcomings, preferably by the installation of an amplifying system.

An Institution Is Threatened.

Sandlotters all over the country will hear with amazement that the Amateur Baseball Congress is paying all expenses to the Berlin Olympic games for two amateur umpires. Aside from the provincial prejudice against giving umpires any greater rewards than empty pop bottles, there are grounds for misgivings over exposing a traditional American institution to insidious European influence.

Only in the United States could a drab blue serge suit, a whisk broom, and the duty of dodging foul tips be imposed on a man possessing the authority of an umpire. It is true that in England cricket umpires seem to be stationed near the batsman principally to hold the three scarves and two sweaters which he invariably discards. But athletic arbiters on the Continent habitually show traces of dictatorial ambitions and a profound distaste for losing their dignified immobility.

As our umpires here have never acquired either the English mannerism of anonymous and self-effacing service, or the officious attitude peculiar to the totalitarian state, neither have they ever come to expect popular respect for their judgments. A cross-eyed fan in the leftfield bleachers, after dividing his attention between a put-out and a hot dog, can discuss the umpire's decision with all the assurance of a New Dealer explaining the shortcomings of the Supreme Court. The American umpire takes such indignities for granted. He may no longer be satisfied after observing the divinity which doth hedge a Nazi referee.

But let the isolationists worry. The state of the Nation will remain relatively tranquil as long as a single American umpire can shout "Batteries for today" without dislodging his chew of tobacco.

What Farmers Think.

Ever since 1912 The Farm Journal of Philadelphia has taken a straw vote in Presidential campaign years to test political sentiment among the agricultural section of the electorate. It claims that since 1916 these pre-election forecasts have been uniformly correct, even down to the outcome in individual States. This record, as well as the fact that the ballots cast in the present poll have been collected on the sampling principle of the Institute of Public Opinion by personal visits, make the results more than ordinarily significant.

There were 25,307 votes for Gov. Landon, while President Roosevelt received 20,869 votes. Moreover, the Governor has a plurality in considerably over half the 32 States covered, although, in some cases, the actual differences were so small as to be meaningless. Mr. Landon's very decisive lead in New York and Wisconsin is more noteworthy, as well as his strength in those parts of the Middle West where it had been supposed the AAA benefits would have made many friends for the Administration.

The poll is too incomplete, and election day too far away, to warrant any definite conclusions from this preliminary survey. But it does serve to show that the farmer is not being unthinkingly led by hopes of subsidies and benefits to mortgage his vote to the Administration.

Equally notable is the fact that the few scattering returns for that self-styled friend of the farmer, Representative Lemke, are even more negligible than the support given the Socialist candidate for President by the farmers. Yet presumably Mr. Lemke's chief strength lies in these farm States.

It does not seem at all likely that the attractions of the Union Party for the average farmer will be greatly enhanced by its alliance with the Townsendites. On the contrary, the events of the past week, exposing the incredible ignorance and amazing imperviousness to reason of the believers in the Townsend pension plan, are likely to alienate the farm population.

Men who earn their living by tilling the soil are less susceptible to Utopian dreams of easy wealth, and less inclined to share the hard-won fruits of their own toil, than the voter who knows nothing of the effort involved in creating wealth of any kind.

La Argentina.

With the death of La Argentina, the world loses not only a great dancer but also an unrivalled interpreter of traditional aspects of the Spanish temperament. For many of the steps she had revived were the result of years of research in Iberian life of another era. To Broadway she brought the most colorful dances of her land—the flamenco, the jota, and the bolero. Born of a Castilian father and an Andalusian mother, she was clicking castanets at an age when most babies are still occupied with rattles.

La Argentina's passing, at the height of her fame, leaves a gap similar to that felt after the death of Isadora Duncan and Anna Pavlova. Each of these dancers was completely individual and technically perfect in her own sphere. Pavlova, the Russian, specialized in the ballet; Duncan, the American, mastered interpretative dancing of Greek origin; and La Argentina gave to the world the colorful folk-steps of her native Spain.

Pavlova was an eccentric and more admired than understood. Isadora Duncan led a stormy existence and was as much criticized as lauded. But La Argentina was loved by the people of Spain both in her private and professional life. Not only did she glorify their humble folk ways, but her contributions to charity won for her the Rosette of Isabella the Catholic, the first order bestowed by the Spanish Republic. She was truly a dancer of the people as well as for them.

But how could the meek inherit the earth when there wouldn't be any lawyers here to draw up the papers?

It adds up to the same thing: An ignorant person is proud because he thinks he knows so much; a wise person is proud because he knows he knows so little.

International Morality.

Sir Arnold Wilson in the Hungarian Quarterly.

"We know no spectacle" wrote Macaulay in his review of Moore's Life of Byron, "so ridiculous as the British public in one of its periodical fits of morality" . . .

When French public opinion supported the criminal folly of the occupation of the Ruhr in 1923, that of other countries was dormant: no archbishop said a word: "the oracles (of the pulpit and the press) were dumb, no voice, nor hideous hum, ran through the arched roof with words deceiving." We let matters take their course. The massacre of Armenians by the Turks after the armistice in vast numbers scarcely aroused any emotions. The French had a free hand to suppress the Druze in Syria. The foul slaughter of Assyrians by the military forces of Iraq, a member of the League, aroused only a passing interest, though the British government had accepted "moral responsibility" for them."

Letters To The Editor.

Animals In Summer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During these torrid summer days when human beings are striving to keep cool and quench their thirst with all sorts of cooling beverages, lets forget ourselves a little and remember the thousands of feathered friends, the poor creatures in the markets awaiting slaughter for man's needless flesh appetite, the poor cats and dogs in dozens of dirty, littered-up back yards and alleys throughout our proud Capital City, and the busy horses toiling in our hot streets.

Everyone with the least bit of lawn and shrubbery which attracts the cheerful little birds should have a bird bath. Every park should provide for its pigeons and squirrels. Those who will eat meat should boycott dealers who do not keep their livestock out of the hot sun and get them needed water. Motorists who deliberately block horse fountains, despite traffic regulations, even though mostly trash wagon horses use them, are extremely selfish. As for the poor alley cats, lost and stray dogs, it is everyone's duty not only to provide them with food and water, but to keep yards, alleys, and sheds free from junk so that homeless cats need not have to exist and multiply in such trash, making it difficult for such organizations as ours to rescue them and their pitiful little ones.

Please bear in mind that all unwanted surplus animals should be sent to the Animal Protective Association, where conscientious provision is made for their safe, happy future, depending upon their individual circumstances; also that all lost and deserted cats, dogs, or other creatures should be brought or immediately be reported to this organization.

The Animal Protective Association is at present located at their summer kennels, four miles out on Bradley boulevard, Bethesda, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4924.

New York Survey.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial on "Promoting Temperance" you cite figures to show that there is improvement in the local condition. But there is nothing in those figures to show that the drink evil is not increasing. In this connection will you kindly publish certain facts assembled by Dr. Charles F. Reisner, of New York?

A survey of the State shows: The sale of the coffee bean, as reported by the Stock Exchange, decreased $1,000,000 during the fiscal year after repeal. Milk sales in the State were off 37,400,000 quarts in 1933; 59,160,000 quarts in 1934, with the decrease unarrested. Meanwhile, the brewers in New York City were clearing $3,000,000 a month, and promising that they would increase the sale of beer 50 million barrels in the near future. One New York city (Little Falls) has one drinking place for every 264 residents, according to the State liquor board.

Decrease in the use of coffee and of milk, with enormous increase of the fortunes of the brewers, does not argue that the people are becoming less addicted to intoxicants. Until that is accomplished we are not becoming less drunken, but more so. And that argurs ill for the future of our Nation.

Theater Names.

To the Editor of The Post—May I, through your columns, congratulate the residents of Washington on the opportunity extended them by the management of the Fox Theater for the selection of an appropriate name for that "stately pleasure dome" of F street?

For a number of years I have believed that the greatest dearth of imagination extant is exemplified in the names bestowed on theaters all over the country. The Nation is littered with Imperials, Majestics, Plazas, Strands and other hackneyed names. The drabber the theater, the more surely it answered to some peerless name such as Regal or Royal or Elite. The South hasn't a hamlet without at least one picture show known (ahd oh, so originally) as the Dixie.

Hotels wallowed in this unimaginative mire until a few years ago when it dawned upon them that there were other names. But not so the theaters; they have not yet awakened to the fact that they can throw off the trite for the distinctive. In this general denunciation I must except one theater—this is in the lovely little city of Thomasville, Ga., and known by the individually appropriate name, "The Rose," for Thomasville is the city of roses of the South.

Let us trust the managers of this contest will bring discrimination to bear upon their selection of the name that will replace the outmoded title, Fox.

Reaction To Pegler.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We always—well, nearly always—enjoy reading Westbrook Pegler's column in The Post. However, as with most "breezy" writing, his contains much "wind," which seems to blow now in one direction and then in another, at the dictates of a rather unstable mind!

I think that the most asinine of all of his outbursts appeared in The Post of July 15, in which he pictures the relations between the bold, bad and bald Mr. Farley and the "frank, sincere" Mr. Roosevelt, "innocent of sordid political motives." It is a most pathetic picture he presents, of a man so innocent and so unsuspecting of the ogre's vile purposes and so uncomprehending of the villainy already accomplished that he should never have been allowed out of the nursery.

Mr. Pegler is apparently a great admirer of Mr. Roosevelt and seems to favor the continuance of the rule of this pathetically innocent man, so basely deceived by his trusted friend and subordinate. My own reaction is that if he were equally guilty with Mr. Farley of all of the acts of which Mr. Pegler writes, he is still more worthy of his position than if he is so "innocent" that he did not know what he was doing when he did it and did not later realize what he had done. Mr. Pegler may be a good columnist, but he certainly is not a good press agent.

Communism's Requisite.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Communism today is by the outward and visible sign of the inward craving and lust for the material riches that some one through ability energy, diligence and thrift has accumulated. It is the outcropping of envy, covetousnees and greed, the desire to possess what the other man has acquired usually through his own industry. When all people are filled with the spirit and love of Jesus Christ, when envy, jealousy and hatred are superseded by sacrificial love, each man preferring his brother man before himself, then the world will be ripe for communism and not before.

'The Direction Of The New Deal'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent contributor attacks President Roosevelt as a menace to freedom and the New Deal for reckless spending and its alleged regimentation. The contributor classifies the President along with Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini. Such a classification is erroneous; aside from the strictly constitutional aspects fascism strives with force to suppress freedom of opinion and to strengthen the entrenched status quo, which tends always to make workers poorly paid serfs. In Stalin's case the historical facts are different. He is the product of a revolution the aim of which was and is to promote the general welfare of all workers or theoretically to distribute wealth to all those who produce it.

Mr. Roosevelt belongs to neither of these two groups so far as ultimate aims are concerned. He has upheld profit taking; in other words, this is a confession of belief in the American satus quo of owners of land and industry, who exploit land, labor and consumer. Any rational person knows that President Roosevelt did not mean that every American is an economic royalist. The term realistically applies only to a certain small but powerful number of a small percentage of the population who own farms and plants where others are employed.

The President has never attempted to regiment or socialize a single industry on a national scale. His power is limited and inhibited under the Constitution from doing so. His greatest innovation, the NIRA, was intended to abolish child labor, which 150 years of States' rights has not done, and to set up machinery whereby business men could maintain, presumably, fair and decent standards of production and treatment of labor. Aside from constitutional questions, the NIRA was foredoomed to failure because it attempted to reconcile irreconcilable units of production, the small producer and the large corporate producer, and both of these as against labor and consumer. It did not co-ordinate the essential factors in mass consumption and machine production, which will determine the future of economics and politics indefinitely.

The vital question to millions of Americans since 1929 has been not whether they had liberty or regimentation, but whether they had food, clothing, shelter, health and self-respect. Liberty is and has always been a dearly bought luxury for the masses of the people. It is a principle that works best among equals and becomes a sham when one has to barter it to obtain work or to earn his livelihood. Liberty for Mr. Investor is today quite a different thing from liberty for Mr. Employed and Mr. Unemployed. For the latter, liberty means simply he can accept work on the terms offered or face starvation, which is in fine no liberty at all, but tyranny

The American business men have had six years in which to organize the re-employment of the 10,000,000 unemployed. They have failed utterly of showing any serious effort to do so. Consequently, since the Federal Government could not constitutionally enter into the fields of private business on an appreciable scale, the least the Federal Government could do has been to feed, clothe and shelter the unemployed as best it could. Any one who believes that the American workingman is entitled to a high standard of living knows well that the total expenditures for relief have provided only a very low standard of living for those on relief.

Let the critics of the present Administration point out just what remedies they have to re-employ the unemployed and to correct certain economic practices that are contrary to equity, liberty, a decent standard of living for workingmen and security of work. The general direction of the New Deal has been to do these very things, however inadequate its constitutional powers and the machinery it set up. I hold no brief for the New Deal as a fundamental contribution, but I know of no plan of the Republican Party that is as beneficial generally to the American people.

The Post Impressionist

Of Genius—Unappreciated.

Post Office, Tuesday.

ASIDE from the "cause" of Rex v. Mahon, G. A. (otherwise, the case of the Director of Public Prosecutions against the fellow who the other day brandished, or threw, a most ill-advised revolver at King Edward VIII), England has been more wrought up over a Bishop and a scenario writer than it has been wrought up about anything since—oh, since its gallant defense of Ethiopia. The chief dramatis personae of the church-and-screen affair are the head of the Diocese of Chichester and a man (more or less) named James Bunting.

Your Post-Impressionist considers it a pity that little of this controversy has percolated into our own national press. So he proposes to supply the lack.

It won't take long. The facts are short—though not sweet.

* * *

No, the affair doesn't involve any problem of movie morals. It doesn't ever remotely approach the question of cinema censorship. The motion-picture element is entirely accidental; there is, so to speak, no reflection upon the screen.

The Bishop simply called the attention of his fellow-countrymen to the existence of a Fifth Commandment. And for what he deemed an infringement thereof, he denied Holy Communion to that young man who happened to be a scenario author.

* * *

The Bishop's fellow-countrymen were surprised. In effect, they said: "The Fifth Commandment? What's that?"

Perhaps you're a bit puzzled, too. Perhaps most Americans would have to do some unusual Bible consulting to find out what the Fifth Commandment is.

Well, we'll save labor. The Fifth Commandment, according to all Anglican and most Protestant notation, is the one about honoring your father and your mother.

Forgetfulness of it, in these days, is not confined to the British Isles.

* * *

The parents of genius James Bunting were found dead in a gas-filled room. The evidence indicated that one or the other of them was guilty of the gas. But the evidence further indicated that the gas was turned on because other things had been turned off. The couple were in dire poverty.

* * *

The point is that they hadn't always been poor. They seem to have been, once, well-to-do.

However, their son, being a genius—and, it would appear, that most exacting sort of genius: the unrecognized genius—needed money. So, because they loved him, they gave him money.

Before the unfortunately necessary coroner's jury, the genius admitted that his parents had supplied him with money, indeed, over a considerable period after his arrival at years of presumable discretion; supported him, and then some. From time to time, they had given him funds totalling a vague figure placed between $15,000 and $20,000.

In other words, just about everything the couple possessed . . .

* * *

It would further appear that, finally, young Mr. Bunting's genius gained some degree of recognition. Anyhow, he was—so the coroner's jury found—in a position whence he could have assisted his now stricken parents financially.

And he didn't.

And the coroner's jury—British coroner's juries are notoriously unsympathetic toward genius—returned a verdict with a rider that criticized him for his course.

And, as we have already told you, the Bishop of Chichester thereupon refused James Bunting the major Sacrament of the Anglican Church.

* * *

To this columnist's mind, the odd thing about the whole case isn't the action of James Bunting. The action of James Bunting is far from unusual, even outside of the genus genius. James Bunting was just demonstrating, in his expansive literary way, the rights of youth, as a goodly portion of the youth of both England and America today interpret those rights.

Not long ago, an anonymous writer in The Forum (wasn't it?) proposed that, after they'd reached a certain age and dependence (after, in short, they were unable to help their offspring any further) all parents should be sent "over the hill to the poorhouse." And, among such of the younger laity as interest themselves in ethics, there is a growing school of Biblical critics which quite apparently believes that crafty copyists (aged, of course) deliberately corrupt the text of the Fifth Commandment. They say it must have ordered parents to honor their children.

No, sir! To this columnist's mind, the odd thing about the Bunting case is the Bishop of Chichester, because he has courage enough to tell the young people of his diocese that the Fifth Commandment has never been altered—and hasn't yet been repealed.

* * *

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Origin Of Discontent.

If these dispatches sometimes seem just a trace impatient about things it may be due in part to the sort of reading which your correspondent receives in the mail. This reading includes quite a few books, but most of them are angry books telling how Andrew Carnegie, Andy Mellon, the Astors, Vanderbilts and Rockefellers got their money in the first place or relating the experiences of some one who was slapped over the head with a bat and kicked down a flight of stone stairs by the Fascist or Nazis. There have been a couple among the many which revealed that certain forms of breakfast food are not really made of cereal but from cedar shavings or ground cork, flavored with poison.

One says your correspondent's favorite toothpaste is just a dirty gyp, produced at a cost of about $3 a ton but retailing at 25 cents a tube. A couple of books on glands are specially upsetting, for they contain pictures showing what happens to a person when some gland that nobody knows much about goes haywire for no apparent reason. You are just going along minding your own business, getting to bed early and living right when all of a sudden something happens to a gland and your face blows up like a souffle and you go around barking like a dog. The pictures prove it and it is no fun to catch a glimpse of such a book on the shelf and be reminded that today might be the day it happens.

Among your correspondent's books there are several which explain all about money and international trade, with diagrams of the taxpayer's dollar, proving that in the fiscal year 1945 the taxes will take it all and the insurance companies will not be able to pay off the endowment policies which people are counting on for their old age. There are books telling too late, unfortunately, what a lot of crooks Warren G. Harding had around him and how an innocent little boy who has shot a few people in playful stickups is thrown into the company of hardened offenders in the prison and taught to chew tobacco and swear.

A popular theme among bookwriters nowadays is the venality of the press, and this is not cheerful reading, either, to one who makes a living in the newspaper business, for it looks as though any department store owner can call up and get a man fired any time just by threatening to withdraw his ad. Or the editor may get a fellow to write a lot of downright, malicious lies about someone or sit down in cold blood and fake a story about a Communist uprising in England.

It seems pretty well proved that old man Carnegie and old Neil Vanderbilt and the early Goulds did a little monkey business when they were getting theirs, and old man Rockefeller probably was a very tough trader before he began to hear the rustle of those angel wings and got religion. But that is water over the dam now and there is no particular point in harping on the subject unless we are going to pass some laws to steal it back.

* * * *

The kind of books your correspondent ought to be reading is Joel Sayre stuff and Anita Loos stuff. Mr. Sayre wrote "Rackety Rax" and "Hizzoner the Mayor," and Miss Loos did "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and then didn't do anything else. But on searching the bookshelf for these books your correspondent discovers that someone else must have liked them, too, and now they are out of print and nobody is doing anything like them. Somebody also liked Mr. Stribling's book, "Teeftallow," and a book by a man named Bernstein called "L'Affaire Jones," and these are obsolete numbers, too. The nudist book, profusely illustrated, is gone also.

Publishers never send your correspondent that kind of book. They send sore books, full of indignation, which view with alarm and stir up ill feelings, which is then unavoidably communicated to a series of daily essays which earnestly wish to perceive the silver lining and preach the all-conquering power of love. They send such things as "Our Lords and Masters," "The Brown Network," "Europe Under the Terror," "Storm Over the Constitution," "Under the Ax of Fascism," "The duPont Dynasty," "American Messiahs" and "Compulsory Spending."

And then there are those little butchers' paper magazines full of serious thinking and the standard outrages of the day and foreign names and words. Idealogy and Totalitarian, and hundreds of handouts about leagues against things which are going to hold meetings and demand that steps be taken.

A gloomy diet on the whole and just as a fish-duck tastes of perch, a writer who feeds on wrongs and crying shames is bound to strike a note of discontent once in awhile.

Colladay Returns From Landon Tour

Edward F. Colladay, national committeeman for the District of Columbia, returned yesterday from a 10-day trip to Maine in the interest of Gov. Landon. Colladay met Republican leaders from a number of counties in the State and said he was heartened by the reports received.

During his Maine visit Colladay addressed a radio audience of 150,000 in a State-wide hookup and spoke to outdoor audiences at Fort Fairfield and Caribou. Six hundred persons attended the meeting at Fort Fairfield and 2,000 at Caribou.

While Colladay devoted his speeches to extolling the merits of Gov. Landon and Col. Knox, he spoke in laudatory terms of Senator White, Representative Brewster and the entire Republican ticket. The meetings were arranged for Colladay by Miss Marion Martin, national committeewoman for Maine.

U. S. Corn Crop Believed Saved; Heat Is Routed

Cooler Temperatures and Rains Restore Life to Middle West.

By Sidney Olson.

Corn, the greatest "money crop" of the Nation, appeared to have been saved yesterday by rains and cooler temperatures that routed the Midwest's heat wave after nearly 4,550 lives had been lost and more than $300,000,000 crop damage had been done.

Right on the deadline set by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, the saving rains swept over wide areas, in some places in North Dakota turning even to hail that ripped through the scanty remaining fields and put snowshovels in the hands of farmers who had sweltered for three weeks in 100-degree tempratures.

Meanwhile, Federal officers in charge of the drought relief program in Washington turned their attention to obtaining intersystem railway freight rate reductions on feed shipments from Southern States to the Northwest drought area.

The $30,000,000 cattle-purchase program was set back again, as officials hesitated to set the vast and complex machinery of the program in motion unless the situation finally compels action.

The subject of study by the Agriculture Department's drought committee yesterday was a proposed agreement between Southern and Western railroads to reduce rates for the transportation of cottonseed cake and cottonseed meal to fatten breeder stock necessarily held on farms.

In discussing the matter with traffic managers of the Western Carriers Association, Jesse W. Tapp, chairman of the drought committee, and Francis R. Wilcox, president of the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation, suggested the intersystem rate reductions.

The day's drought developments included unofficial estimates that Iowa, premier corn State, would have a near-normal crop, with around a 95 per cent production.

Relief Announced.

Aubrey Williams, deputy Works Progress Administrator, announced a $100,000 relief allotment to employ North Dakota farmers in harvesting grain and livestock feed on public lands.

Representative Lemke, of North Dakota, Union Party candidate for President, announced as his solution of the drought problem of the future the creation of from 250,000 to 300,000 artificial lakes in the West.

With its deadly clutch over the Great Plains States broken, the drought and heat wave centered chiefly in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. There the heat continued at near-record highs. Two other widely separated States—California and New York—reported drought damage. In New York State, authorities began to work seriously over possible milk and water shortages. With the water supply shrinking steadily in many counties, preparations were made to shift water-purification machines from county to county to combat possible disease spread. Milk production was down about 3 per cent in the State.

Rail Rule Postponed.

During the day the Interstate Commerce Commission postponed until February 20, 1937, a proposed rule which was to have become effective yesterday. Its principal feature was a requirement that livestock shipped at reduced rates from drought areas to feeding points be shipped back by rail. The commission suspended the rule to investigate its possible effect on the public interest.

After heavy profit taking during a downward plunge, the corn price in the Chicago market climbed slowly. It closed only ⅞ to 1¼ cents below Saturday's high. September delivery stood at 84⅝ to 85.

Gov. Philip La Follette released in Wisconsin a survey, according to the Associated Press, that showed the State's pasturage had been cut by 80 per cent for the season by the drought. He announced plans to speed a State-Federal seed and feed distribution program.

69,000 Now Employed.

Williams' order of yesterday, putting 4,000 farmers to work in Colorado as fast as possible, following the designation of several counties in that State as drought areas, brought the total employment quota up to 69,000 for the primary drought States. In the Southern States an additional 20,000 jobs also have been authorized.

Williams announced that about 24,000 farmers made destitute by the drought were working on WPA projects in the five principal drought States of the Central West. They are engaged in labor on 350 water conservation projects involving an expenditure of about $5,000,000. The projects include dams, reservoirs, artificial lakes, irrigation ditches and farm-to-market roads.

Autos Will Use Railroad Bridge

Baltimore, July 20 (AP).—Both trains and automobile traffic will use the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Bridge at Harpers Ferry when it is converted for use as a road span, Nathan L. Smith, chief engineer of the State roads commission, said today.

The bridge, one of two railroad bridges at the point, is used for only a few freight trains. Smith said that about two a day will use the bridge after it is floored for vehicular traffic.

The railroad company is now deciding what type of signal should be installed on the bridge to keep it clear of automobiles when trains are approaching. The signal decided upon will be installed by the commission. Smith said it was likely that some sort of automatic warning bell, of the type used at grade crossings, would be utilized.

Suits to Regain Hotel's Control Lost on Appeal

Walter F. Smith Blocked in Cases Involving LaFayette.

Walter F. Smith, one-time operator of the Hotel LaFayette, yesterday in the United States Court of Appeals lost two suits he had brought in an effort to regain control of the property and to avoid payment of $7,875 in back rentals.

Smith, it was shown, was unable to meet the rental of $2,625 a month late in 1932 and the lease, which had several years to run, was turned over to a Maryland corporation. The court held, though, that the rentals had accrued prior to the date when the lease was accepted by the Maryland corporation and that he was liable for it.

Smith also sought to enforce a contract he held for lease of the property for ten years, a lease that was sold at foreclosure. The Appellate Court said it was testified that there was no value to the lease at the time.

Smith alleged the Maryland corporation had accepted the lease before the rental allegedly in arrears had begun to accrue. However, in the opinion of the court, the corporation was absolved because Smith held all but two shares of its stock and also that the transfer to the Maryland company was not consummated until September, 1932, which was after the rentals had piled up.

Woman Loses $66 InConfidenceTrick

The age-old confidence trick—the pocketbook switch—was worked again yesterday, Sadie Johnson, colored, 40, of 486 K street southwest, lost $66 to two colored men who promised "to divide their money in the pocketbook with her."

The woman told police the men showed her a purse with a lot of money in it at Eighth and E streets southwest. She said they told her to put her money in the pocketbook, which they said they had found, and they would divide it equally.

She was told not to open the pocketbook until they had gone. When she looked for her money she found a wad of paper.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Elmer Twitchell's Platform.

Supplementary planks in the platform of Elmer Twitchell in his candidacy for the Presidency were issued today from the Twitchell headquarters under an abandoned flivver. Elmer thinks his chances of landing in the White House are excellent, if only from the fact there are so many candidates running that the voters are bound to get confused and vote wrong. The new planks follow:

1. Simpler colors for men's shirts. Mr. Twitchell is satisfied there is a strong feeling in America against the present tendency to allow the awning makers of America to dictate color schemes in men's wearing apparel. His slogan is, "Back to plain shirts!"

2. Federal inspection of lettuce in restaurant salads. "I think the lettuce situation in American lunch rooms is very bad," says Mr. Twitchell. "Maybe we can't insist that every leaf be crisp and green, but in every salad there should be at least two leaves not resembling garbage."

3. A return to sanity in women's hats. "Somebody has been playing a cruel joke on American women for the last several summers," declares Elmer. "I don't know whether the women care, but if I can correct this evil it will get me the male vote."

4. Golf handicaps. Mr. Twitchell goes boldly after the golfing vote of America by promising a revision of club handicaps everywhere, and a rule prohibiting any man from going around in tournaments with a handicap of 35 or more.

5. The battery water crisis. Mr. Twitchell thinks he voices a growing opinion when he declares millions of American auto drivers are in a constant state of exasperation because of trying to guess under which seat the batteries are. He pledges himself to take up with the auto makers of America the question of inventing a gadget by which water can be put in the battery (wherever the darn thing is) by an outside tube.

6. Capital punishment. Mr. Twitchell declares flatly in favor of the electric chair for auto drivers who drive rapidly through mud puddles in crowded districts.

7. Smaller golf bags. "The two-passenger, four-door golf bag must go!" This is the Twitchell war-cry. He sees no reason why a golf bag should resemble a steamer trunk, a camping kit or a trailer. There are four million men in America who were once caddies. They will vote as a man for Twitchell.

8. Shore dinners. No President has ever done anything about shore dinners. That something should be done is obvious. The first thing Twitchell will do will be to have legislation enacted requiring that the little necks be bitten off little neck clams before they reach the consumer.

9. Dress suits. Elmer is for prohibition of dress suits except at weddings. At a wedding nobody is expected to be really comfortable.

Loved By Lincoln

By William Lyon Phelps.

Petroleum Nasby.

A brief, illustrated, entertaining biograph of this famous American humorist has just appeared, written by Cyril Clemens, and published by the International Mark Twain Society, at Webster Groves, Mo. It has a Foreword by Irvin Cobb and an Introduction by Carl Holliday.

The name of Petroleum Nasby will be forever associated with that of Abraham Lincoln, for during the days of the Civil War, Lincoln read the jokes of Nasby with intense relish, and used to read them aloud sometimes to members of his cabinet, who did not always share the President's enthusiasm.

Lincoln, however, was grateful to Nasby not merely for the entertainment he derived from his writings, but because in them he found relaxation and relief during his almost overwhelming responsibilities.

Josh Billings, Petroleum Nasby, Artemus Ward, Bill Nye, are not read very much in the twentieth century, but they are quoted fairly often, and their names are certainly familiar to hundreds of thousands of Americans. Thus a modestly brief biograph of Nasby should be assured of a warm welcome. We should like to become acquainted with the writer whom Lincoln loved.

* * * *

Nasby's formal education ended when that of many others had hardly begun. At the age of 10 he quit school forever and entered newspaper work, with which he was to be identified all his life. He walked 14 miles to the office of a Cleveland newspaper, asked for a job, got it, and was apprenticed for seven years. In 1861 he used for the first time his pen-name Petroleum V. Nasby, little knowing how important petroleum was to become in the world in the next century.

In 1865 he took the editorship of the Toledo Blade and the last of his Nasby letters in this newspaper appeared only a few weeks before his death.

I. C. C. Order to Reduce Fares Ignored by 56 Small Roads

Costs of Publishing New Rates Would Erase $17 Passenger Revenue for Year, One Laggart Line Argues.

By the Associated Press.

A survey disclosed yesterday that 56 tiny railroads, either uninformed of the order or acting in the belief it did not apply to them, had ignored the recent Interstate Commerce Commission ruling slashing passenger fares.

The roads' failure to comply was shown in a check-up on results of tne commission's order fixing basic fares of 2 cents a mile in coaches and 3 cents a mile in Pullmans, effective June 2.

Averaging about a dozen miles in length, the roads were said to be situated mostly in the South and West, and to have very little passenger traffic.

One of the lines said it did only $17 of passenger business last year, and added mere publication of new rates would eat up all that revenue.

"Our passenger business is almost nil," said another, citing revenue of $56 for the first six months of this year.

Others told the commission they had accommodated occasional passengers in the cabooses of their freight trains.

Officials said that although practically all the roads operate intrastate lines, they are subject to I. C. C. jurisdiction because they engage in interstate commerce by transporting passengers to junctions at which they take other trains to travel beyond State boundaries.

No punitive atcion is planned, officials said, adding all the laggard roads which have been contacted have expressed a willingness to accept commission jurisdiction.

F. B. I. to Train Nation's Police At School Here

Hoover Announces Plan to Teach Methods at D. C. Session.

The police school of the Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday became an academy to train teachers for police schools in cities throughout the Nation with the opening of its third session.

"In this way the benefits of the National Police Academy will reach directly and indirectly the thousands of police officers throughout the United States who do not have the opportunity to take the course of training in Washington," commented J. Edgar Hoover, director, yesterday.

Development of the training center as a "normal school" of police work will be accompanied, Hoover said, with a new plan under which the Federal Bureau of Investigation will assist in instructing members of the local police schools by sending special lecturers and equipment to aid in more specialized types of subjects.

The upper age limit of 46, Hoover recalled, had been set for the policemen-students" in order that an early retirement will not limit their services to their departments."

The bureau will require each student to take the full course of training and "adopt a strictly business-like attitude," Hoover pointed out.

Capt. Dampman Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at Fort Myer Chapel tomorrow afternoon for Capt. Paul E. Dampman, U. S. Navy, retired, veteran of three wars, who died in Naval Hospital Sunday after a long illness.

Capt. Dampman, who lived at 3640 Kanawha street northwest, was retired from active service in 1928, because of injuries he received in line of duty.

During the 24 years he spent in the Navy he was awarded the Cuban medal, the Mexican Campaign medal, the Cuban Pacification medal and the Victory Medal with Fleet Clasp.

Born in Reading, Pa., Capt. Dampman was graduated from U. S. Naval Academy in 1904. He served on the U. S. S. Wyoming and the U. S. S. Arkansas during the World War.

Services tomorrow will be with full military honors. Lieut. Comdr. Joseph H. Brooks, U. S. Navy chaplain, will conduct the services.

Hazen and Sultan Will Inspect Jail

An inspection tour of the old District Jail soon will be made by Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Dan I. Sultan. They want to see whether it should be remodeled or replaced with a new structure.

Commissioner Hazen, who last week received a letter from the corrections committee of the Council of Social Agencies characterizing the jail as "obsolete and outmoded," said yesterday:

"The Commissioners promised Congress some time ago to make a thorough study of conditions at the jail, but they have not had time. However, Col. Sultan and I will visit the jail at the first opportunity and make a complete investigation as to its needs."

Virginian Seized In Assault-Death

Waynesboro, Va., July 20 (AP).—Police Chief R. L. Switzer today announced the arrest of Raymond Carroll, 29, of Waynesboro, on a warrant charging him with assault on Pauline Parry here August 19, 1934, that resulted in her death three months later.

Switzer said Carroll was held in August County jail in Staunton to await a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice W. Terrell Sheehan here.

Carroll was among those questioned before in the lengthy investigation into the death of the young industrial plant employe.

The girl was returning from a carnival to the home of Carroll's mother, where she had lived for a number of years, when she was struck on the head, dragged into a cemetery and left critically wounded. She died in a hospital November 13, 1934.

The girl's brother, James Parry, and Ernest Carter, were tried March 8, 1935. Both were exonerated by Sheehan.

Teachers Meet To Study Work Of NYA in '37

Coming from many sections of the Nation, educators gathered here yesterday at the invitation of the National Youth Administration to conduct a five-day conference on details of the 1937 program for student aid.

The visitors were welcomed in a brief address by Deputy Executive Director Richard R. Brown, and then settled down to a thorough analysis of the plan under which an estimated 310,000 young men and women between 16 and 25 years of age are to be given financial assistance through the coming school year.

Recommendations of the country's leading educators, Brown stated, would largely determine the policies to be followed.

Twenty-three men and women were on hand for the opening session yesterday, and invitations have been extended to nearly twice this number.

Those present yesterday included Homer P. Rainey, chairman of the American Youth Commission; Reid Hunter, of Atlanta, Ga.; R. J. Walters, dean of the University of Denver, Denver, Colo.; H. C. Jaquith, president of Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill.; the Rev. George Johnson, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; R. A. Tolbert, dean of the University of Florida; P. W. Gas Firm Seeks Reorganization

Boston, July 20 (AP).—The Cities Service Refining Co. of Boston asked Federal District Court today for authority to reorganize under Section 77-B of the Federal Bankruptcy act. Its petition was one of the largest ever filed here.

Company officials declined to comment on the cause or significance of the petition, which listed both assets and liabilities at $24,792,502.

The only official comment forthcoming was that on August 17 a hearing would be held on issuance of a permanent order. At that time a spokesman said, the corporation would present to the court a plan for rehabilitation.

The company has a large refining plant at Braintree and operates stations in all New England States except New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Funds Pledged For Municipal Power Projects

Important Share of PWA's New $300,000,000 Promised.

By the Associated Press.

Public Works Administration officials predicted yesterday that municipal power projects would receive "an important share" of PWA's new $300,000,000 fund.

Recalling that $76,000,000 was allotted in the previous PWA program for municipal power systems, they aid Secretary Ickes frequently has expressed determination to extend this phase of the New Deal power program.

The law authorizing Ickes to make loans, and grants up to 45 per cent of a project's cost, contains a general provision that work so aided must be finished within a year, but projects held up in the courts are exempted.

Officials said this exemption was prompted by more than 50 injunction suits tying up municipal power allotments. These injunctions are expected to remain in force until the Supreme Court gives its decision in a test case. The court has agreed to rule on the Duke Power Co.'s fight against a PWA allotment to Greenwood County, S. C., this fall.

Officials declined to say whether any municipal power projects were included in a $60,000,000 batch of PWA work recently submitted to President Roosevelt. They said, however, that communities had furnished evidence showing that 141 power projects could be carried out almost exclusively with relief labor. The President held up the PWA program to give preference to projects which would give most employment to relief workers.

On The Air Today

The crusade to improve radio broadcasting through the presentation of educational programs of quality has advanced another step under the direction of the Educational Radio Project of the United States Department of the Interior.

The latest series will be known as "Interviews With the Past" and is being prepared in finished script form for the use of local stations rather than for network presentation. Joint announcement of the series' completion comes from United States Commissioner of Education J. W. Studebaker and James W. Baldwin, managing director of the National Association of Broadcasters.

It is interesting to note that the test steps in perfecting the programs were taken here in Washington with the co-operation of pupils of McKinley High School. (Most of the activities of the project have since been moved to New York City.)

"Interviews With the Past" are imaginary interviews by a group of reporters for a school paper—the subjects being Benjamin Franklin, William Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth, Napoleon Bonaparte, Catherine of Russia and George Washington. Passages placed in the mouths of these historical figures are taken faithfully from exact language recorded in history.

* * * *

The work being done by the Educational Radio Project should receive the close attention of every listener. The vast majority of listeners are unaware that organizations are springing up over the country with the light of the zealot in their collective eye. The purpose of such groups is to force radio broadcasting, as it now exists, into a compromise with educational forces.

I have seen outlines of one of these well-meaning groups through which the daily schedules of radio stations would be altered to set up as much as one-fourth of the day's hours on the air in the interests of educational matters. Education, in this sense, refers to a wide variety of subjects. In fact, almost anything that is not now commercialized on the air falls under the broad heading of "education."

A typical proposal would divide the broadcasting schedules of four stations, such as we have in Washington, so that when two of the stations are broadcasting commercial programs the other two would be airing educational programs. The latter might consist of anything from a report on civic affairs to how young high school graduates can equip themselves for vocational careers.

Such a division would be arbitrary. Advocates of such a plan argue that at the choicest periods of the listening day nothing but programs tinged with commercial greed are offered. Hence nothing of constructive worth comes out of an industry which primarily should be turned to the public's interest in a substantial and permanent way.

The Educational Radio Project is experimenting right now on effective ways to get educational benefits from radio. I prefer the project's methods to those of inspired reconstructionists who would revolutionize the entire radio broadcasting set-up to the detriment of everyone concerned—including your listening pleasure.

Troops Pour In As Dardanelles Pact Is Signed

By the Associated Press.

Montreux, Switzerland, July 20.—Ten nations gave final approval late tonight to a new Dardanelles convention, permitting Turkish troops to enter the area surrounding the straits, demilitarized since 1923.

Fifty thousands Turkish foot soldiers and cavalrymen, accompanied by motorized artillery, began moving into the zone shortly after midnight, enthusiastically cheered by the populace, said a dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey.

Japan, one of the signatories of the Lausanne Treaty under which the zone was demilitarized, was the only nation to make reservations in signing the convention.

She reserved complete liberty of interpretation of an article in the convention concerning passage of warships engaged in punitive missions for the League of Nations or in carrying out regional pacts.

Under article 19 of the new agreement, the straits—which separate European and Asiatic Turkey—will be closed to warships of belligerent nations unless they are serving under League mandate or helping a victim of aggression under a mutual assistance pact concluded within the League's framework and to which Turkey is a party.

Japan, as a non-member of the League, declared she cannot necessarily be bound by such arrangements.

Observers interpreted the Japanese statement as meaning that in the event of a Russo-Japanese war, Japan reserves the right to protest against the departure of a Russian fleet from the Black Sea by authority of the League.

The ten nations which signed the convention with gold pens given by the Turkish government were Great Britain, France, Russia, Japan, Greece, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Turkey and Australia.

$100 Posted to Aid Missing Girl Hunt

Gloria, 15, left her home, 831 Eighteenth street northwest, June 6. She had not been seen since.

At police headquarters yesterday, Mrs. Carter, haggard and worn with grief, told Detective Sergt. Hoyle D. Secrest of the efforts of herself and her husband to find the missing girl. Every clew has been run down in vain, she said.

The girl is thought to have left home because of over-work due to school work and the study of music. She is an accomplished pianist and violinist. Her father is a music instructor.

Horse Coming Back On Maryland's Farms

College Park, Md., July 20 (AP).—Old Dobbin has served notice in Maryland that farm machinery can't keep him down.

For the first time in 16 years the State's horse population shows an increase, J. A. Ewing, agricultural statistician, said the number of horses in the State had risen from 80,000 last year to 81,000 this year.

Warren E. Tydings, manager of a Knoxville farm, said he believed horses were coming back into favor on farms because farmers had found them more economical than machinery.

LaborImported In Wire Strike, U.S. Informed

Strikebreakers Brought to Sterling, Ill., Bittner Informs Kerwin.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Leaders of the movement to unionize the steel industry said tonight they had sent a protest to the U. S. Department of Labor against alleged "importation of strikebreakers from other States" to break a strike at the Northwestern Barb Wire Co. plant in Sterling, Ill.

Van A. Bittner, Western regional director of the union drive, said the men now working in the plant were "imported." He asserted this was in violation of a law passed at the last session of Congress against importing "strikebreakers" from other States.

He said he had forwarded his protest to Hugh Kerwin, head of the division of investigation, U. S. Department of Labor, and that Kerwin had promised to send an investigator to Sterling.

All Reported Quiet.

At Sterling company officials claimed 50 per cent of their 1,400 employes were at work today. Private guards and special deputies reported "all quiet" as strikers picketed the plant.

Two strikers, Milton Childers and Ernest Sandusky, both of Rock Falls, Ill., were sentenced to 30 days in the Whiteside County jail by Judge I. L. Weaver in Sterling City Court on charges of contempt of court.

They were alleged to have threatened Elmer Welker, a workman, last Thursday, in violation of an injunction restraining them from acts of violence.

Chattanooga Workers Demonstrate.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 20 (AP).—Organized labor threw its whole strength here today behind a strike of candy factory workers for union recognition with a mass demonstration which temporarily delayed arbitration.

There was a single outburst of violence when 8 policemen picked up a nonunion girl worker and carried her through the milling throng of union men and sympathizers into the plant, operated by the Bennett-Hubbard Candy Co. Pickets and sympathizers tore most of her clothing from her body.

Virginia Bootleg Sale Matches Legal Output

Richmond, Va., July 20 (AP).—On the basis of the stills and bootleg liquor destroyed in Virginia in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1936, T. K. Sexton, director of the A. B. C. board's inspection division, today estimated illicit operators sold nearly as much whisky as the State stores did.

Sexton said his inspectors, with Federal and local officers, seized 1,675 stills and the equivalent of 205,525 gallons of liquor. The latter was about 10 per cent of that reaching the consumer, which he computed at approximately 2,055,250 gallons. The board sold 2,300,000 gallons.

Labor to Support Rayon Mill Unions

Richmond, Va., July 20 (AP).—Joseph Rossano, of Norfolk, president of the Virginia Federation of Labor, pledged the co-operation today of members of the federation in efforts of the Synthetic Yarn Federation and the United Textile Workers of America to organize 55,000 additional workers.

Half of Virginia's approximately 10,000 rayon workers, including upward of 5,000 in Roanoke, already are unionized, Rossano said.

Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the U. T. W., announced in Washington that the drive, opening August 1, would embrace various plants of the Viscose Corporation, Du Pont, Industrial Corporations, American Enka, Tubize Corporation and American Bemberg in eight States.

The campaign, he said, would tie in with the drive to organize woolen and worsted industries.

War Training In CCC Urged By V.F.W. Chief

By the Associated Press.

Milwaukee, July 20.—James E. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, urged the Disabled American Veteran's convention today to work for establishment of military training in Civilian Conservation corps camps.

He suggested that all veterans ask President Roosevelt to introduce military training and discipline in the camps "to inculcate in them the necessity for adequate national defense and to combat pacifist propaganda."

Advocating an alliance of all veterans' groups to "fight for Americanism against subversive elements," Van Zandt proposed a campaign for legislation by Congress providing deportation of all aliens who advocate overthrow of the present form of government by force of arms.

He also urged prosecution of American citizens who advocate such overthrow.

The convention opened this morning with a conference on rehabilitation of disabled soldiers. Committees were named to draw up resolutions for liberalization of laws providing aid to disabled veterans and their dependents, and for preferred employment of such veterans in Government service.

Capt. Larter To Take Post At Ft. Myer

By Dudley Harmon.

Capt. Harry Larter, founder of the Museum of Field Artillery at Fort Sill, Okla., the only one in this country, will arrive at Fort Myer on August 1 to asume duty there. He was stationed formerly at Fort Sill, and now is training students of Virginia Military Institute at Fort Hoyle, Md. Mrs. Larter and their two children already are residing at Fort Myer, where they arrived three weeks ago.

Capt. Larter is somewhat surprised at the success of his Oklahoma museum, which grew out of an interest in field artillery he has had from the time he was a student at West Point. The museum includes guns and cannons of many periods and from several countries. Some of them he acquired in a thorough search of the country between Washington and Ticonderoga, N. Y. The rest were donated by individuals and National Guard units.

So large is the collection, it has outgrown the original building in which it was housed at Fort Sill, and several hundred tons of artillery are now stored in the East until loans can be obtained from the Government to build an addition.

Not satisfied with assembling the artillery collection, Capt. Larter also gathered a collection of Indian relics, which is housed, appropriately enough, in one of the oldest buildings at Fort Sill, where the wild Apache chief, Geronimo, was kept prisoner during the Indian Wars half a century ago.

"I started the Indian collection because I wished to develop among the citizens there an interest in the history of their section of the country," said Capt. Larter. "Fort Sill was originally an Indian reservation, and many members of the Comanche, Apache and Cheyenne tribes still remain. With other members of the post, I used to go on exploring expeditions, on which we unearthed skulls, metal ornaments, and implements of war such as spears and arrowheads."

Capt. Larter's most exciting discovery was of dinosaur bones, which were unearthed and which the veterinarian of the post put together. The first few were uncovered by soil erosion, and Capt. Larter and his friends dug for the rest.

In addition to being a collector of artillery and Indian relics, Capt. Larter is also an artist. His favorite medium is watercolor, and he has done many sketches of his fellow officers in uniform.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Husband Spanks Wife, Past 30, Whenever She Disobeys; She Asks How to Cure Him of Habit.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a little past 30, have been married 10 years and am a sensible and really a rather dignified woman. But to my husband I am just a child who is to be taken care of, petted and punished as he decides. It doesn't make sense in these days of women's freedom and I have often told him so, but he says it makes plenty of sense as far as he is concerned. He believes in obedience by wives and in bossing by husbands.

* * * *

I'm sure could get a divorce from him, because he makes me obey as if I was a naughty, little girl. When I do things he has told me not to do he turns me over his knee and spanks me—hard. He is awfully good in most ways and I don't want a divorce. He is honest, clean and faithful. We have no financial worries, and all we ever had were caused by my extravagance. So I don't want a divorce. I just want to find a way to make him treat me like a grown-up.

* * * *

It may sound like a joke to you or your readers, but I assure it is no joke for a grown woman to be told she can spend exactly $10 and no more; or that she must not smoke cigarettes; and, worse still, to be spanked if she breaks such rules. Yes, literally spanked. It is far from funny. I have never heard of anyone else having such a husband. Maybe you have and can advise me what to do. Please don't just laugh at me, but try to see my problem as a serious one and advise me as to what I can do.. Hopefully yours, M. J. S.

Possible Cures.

DEAR M. J. S.: Maybe your husband treats you like a child because he is convinced that you, in your secret heart, really enjoy being treated as a child. Perhaps you entered into the spirit of the thing wholeheartedly during courtship and early marriage days, and have only recently begun to grow sick and tired of the silly business. Now, if you really don't care to be treated like that, there is only one way to convince him he is off on the wrong track, and that he had better mend his ways. And that is to stage an adult rebellion against his mistaken tactics. You will have to be stubborn and you will have to be courageous.

* * * *

There are any number of ways in which such a rebellion might be staged. You can, for instance, do as you like in the matter of smoking cigarettes and spending $11 or $12 or even $15 instead of $10, and let him go on smacking you until he realizes the futility of such punishment when administered to an adult—because if he cares for you he cannot and will not carry spanking to the point of brutality. Or you can tell him—and mean it—that if ever again he lays hands on you, you are packing up your things and getting out not to return until you have his promise that he will thereafter treat you in a manner becoming to your years. Or you can consult a lawyer and learn what legal redress or protection you have in the situation, and follow the lawyer's advice. You can do anything which comes to your mind to do, which may serve to convince your husband that you mean business in the matter of being all washed up on this spanking nonsense.

* * * *

As I see it, the most important thing to do is to make up your mind, irrevocably, that you are done with being spanked and otherwise treated as a moron; and once your mind is made up, that fact will not fail to register on your husband's consciousness. The person who is genuinely up in arms against any type of injustice to which he is subjected, does not need to be instructed by another as to how to stage a rebellion. His own subconscious will suggest to him ways and means of making manifest his uprising. M. H.

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

"A PENNY for your thoughts, sweetheart."

"I've been thinking that if only the marchioness would give her consent, we could run the castle as a kind of glorified guest house. There's a lot of money being made now in that sort of way and, after all, Phil, we'll have to do something. We can't go on as we were doing before Ruth Starling came along. Do you think it's a mad idea?"

"In some ways I think it's a good idea. But I wouldn't be in too great a hurry about it; one couldn't start that kind of thing in winter could one?"

"I suppose not; still it ought to be started while we still have some money."

"You're after my 2,000 pounds," he cried gayly.

"Well, yes, I admit I am. For half that money we could put in some kind of central heating, to say nothing of three or four bathrooms in the castle."

He said nothing to that. But told himself that it was strange Iris should understand so little of Lady Cicester's character as to suppose the old lady would allow Perranuth castle to be turned into a hotel.

"If you really want to catch that first express I'm afraid we ought to start," he observed.

"I'm quite ready now, though I must write a note to Ruth."

Less than an hour later Philip Trefane came back to find no sign, as yet, of Ruth Starling. He had come in by a back way, near the kitchen, through what was called the postern gate. And he trod softly, while walking quickly down the passages leading to the lobby and so to the great hall, though he would have had to make a great deal of noise before any sound he made could have penetrated to Ruth's bedroom far up in the tower.

When just inside the hall, he turned round and locked the door leading into the lobby.

He went through into what had been his wife's bedroom. The place looked curiously bare, but the air still seemed impregnated with the delicate scent he always associated with the woman who was to him lover, friend, and at times mentor, though she never overdid that last part.

Philip Trefane felt he could back himself to accompqlish successfully any deed of darkness on which he had set his mind. And now his only fear was lest Iris should ever suspect even a glimmer of the truth. Even so, if she ever did divine the truth which lay behind what was about to happen this morning, surely she would know it was for her sake that he had done anything he might have done?

When back in the sitting room, he spent some minutes absorbed in what was a not overeasy, indeed what in a sense was actually an arduous task, for he had to do alone what was generally done by two men. Yet when he had accomlished his task, nothing in that pleasant peaceful room looked other to what it had looked when Iris had walked across it on her way to breakfast in the hall which lay beyond. Yet stop—there was one difference of a slight kind. The round mahogany table which generally stood in the center of the room on a square Persian rug had been moved to one side. But the rug lay where it had always been.

As Philip went into the hall his forehead glistened with sweat, and irritably he told himself that he must be in poor condition. Quickly he unlocked the door, for it was now 11 oclock—time for Ruth to come down to breakfast. So he began to heat the water for her coffee.

His clever Iris had found an excellent new machine which was not only foolproof, but made admirable coffee in litertily three minutes. The water was just boiling when the door opened suddenly and, in spite of himself, he started violently.

"I overslept!" she exclaimed. "But I do feel better for my long good night."

He was holding the coffee pot in his hand, and he felt his hand begin shaking. Hastily he put the pot down on the table and observed: "Iris is gone. She went off quite early, for she wanted a couple of hours extra in London to get everything o. k. in the furnished house."

"I'm sorry I didn't see her off."

Upside Down Cake Is Ideal Summer Dessert

The housewife who is striking for shorter kitchen hours during the summer months will be delighted with the basic formula for the upside-down cake pictured above, for the recipe is large enough to provide for two other desserts with a cake basis as well. The batter, which is all mixed at the same time, can be stored in the refrigerator for use on the two succeeding days.

Planning Menus Week Ahead Reduces Hours in the Kitchen

Plan Also Saves Considerable Time and Prevents Frequent Trips to the Grocery and Other Stores.

HOW MANY women really plan menus for a week in advance? Not many, perhaps, but those few who have acquired the habit have many interesting things to say about the advantages such a system affords.

In the first place menus can't be planned ahead unless the housewife first takes an inventory of the stock in her refrigerator and on her pantry shelves. The result of such an inventory is a neatly compiled list of staples and an order to the groceryman once a week for such supplies instead of many hurried trips throughout the week. It is more advisable, especially in warm weather, to purchase fresh foods daily or at least several times a week.

In the summer the housewife does not wish to spend much of her time in the kitchen, and here again a list of menus for the week can be an advantage. She can plan, for example, to set aside one day for heavier cooking. On this day perhaps she will plan to have a roast, a large one, so that on the two succeeding days the left-oxer meat can be served sliced cold and in salad form. This relieves her of the necessity of cooking meat more than three times during the week at the most Vegetables, too, may be cooked in larger quantities on one day. The first day the vegetables may take the form of an interesting combination for a hot platter, the second day the leftover portions may be served in a tempting salad.

The dessert problem for days in advance is also solved by planning a week's menus in advance. Take the special recipe for cake, for example, that may be baked in three separate batches. The first day one-third of the batter may be turned into delicious cup cakes. Proper refrigeration will keep the rest of the batter in perfect condition for baking on the two days to follow. A fluffy George Washington pie may be her selection of dessert for the second day, and a delicious fruit upside-down cake for the third.

All this work can be accomplished in one morning, leaving leisure time for a greater part of the week to follow. The cook, too, will appreciate such a systematic outline for the work she is expected to accomplish.

Here is the recipe for the miracle cake mentioned above. It is mixed in quanity enough for three separate dessert, each one serving at least six portions.

Miracle Cake.

4 2-3 cups sifted cake flour
4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup buter or other shortening
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, well beaten
1½ cups milk
2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and mix well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Divide batter into thirds, keeping out one portion and storing the other two portions in the refrigerator for baking as cottage pudding, George Washington pie, upside-down cake, or cup cakes. Whenever time permits and for any of the suggested variations except upside-down cake, the extra batter can be placed in the pan for baking, then covered closely with a damp cloth, then waxed paper, both of which should be tied on securely with string and placed in the refrigerator for storing until ready for baking.

Spiced Pecan Cakes.

2½ tablespoons molasses
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1-3 miracle cake batter recipe
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup pecan meats, finely chopped
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Add molasses and spices to about 1-3 of miracle cake batter and beat well. Pour into 16 large—or 24 medium-sized greased cup cake pans, filling them 2-3 full. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degress F.) 20 minutes or until done. Before removing from oven, combine melted butter and sugar, add pecans, and mix, sprinkle mixture on top of cakes and bake two or three minutes longer. These spiced cakes are excellent served with milk and fruit for a luncheon dessert.

Salads Men Like Is Theme Of Post's Recipe Contest

HOW DO WASHINGTON husbands and bachelors like their salads? This is the question that Dorothea Duncan, Food Editor of The Post, is asking this week. And the question will be solved very shortly, for this week the theme of The Post recipe contest is salads and only men are eligible to enter their favorite recipes for this dish.

Cash awards will be offered for the five best recipes. The first prize is $5, the second $3, and the three remaining prizes $1 each. Don't be timid about signing your name to your favorite salad recipe—don't make your wife do it or your recipe will be disqualified.

This is a chance for the men who do not like the salads served at their favorite restaurant or at home to come out and take a bold stand in favor of the kind they do like. The printing of the prize-winning recipes next week will prove to the public in general just what men do or do not like about salads.

To enter this contest merely write out your favorite salad recipe and send it to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. Mail your entries in time to reach this office by Saturday morning.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

When Infection Destroys Bone.

Physicians and parents can do much if they will keep the possibility of bone abscesses in mind when dealing with illness in growing children. Youngsters are more prone to disease if they are undernourished, lack sufficient sunshine, or possess a low resistance. Injuries in the vicinity of joints may invite infection.

Let us assume that tonsilitis or some other bacterial invasion has poured microbes into the blood stream. Some of these organisms may lodge in a bony canal. The age of the patient so affected as a rule will be under 18 and the bones more commonly involved will be those of the thigh, the lower leg, and the arm.

What may happen? Bacteria will multiply, pus will form, and the pressure of the confined abscess be attended with great pain, which is more intense near a joint. The patient usually holds the limb rigidly, as movement causes suffering. The temperature is high, the pulse rapid, and the white cells of the blood will be found to be increased greatly in number. Curiously enough, the X-ray will not disclose the presence of the gathering pus, as it is only after the destruction of the bone has proceeded for ten days or more that a radiograph will be of value.

Hot packs, the use of salicylates, or any other remedy of value in acute rheumatism will prove unavailing, and the only treatment is to release the confined pus. Within recent years the method of management proposed by H. W. Orr has been accepted widely. He found that there was no advantage in keeping the wound surgically clean and that the presence of a foul smelling discharge carried with it certain healing qualities. After the abscess has been opened the limb is fixed in a plaster cast and the wound packed with vaseline saturated gauze. Fewer deformities and more perfect and rapid healing have followed the adoption of this procedure. The thing to avoid is the development of a chronic form of the disease, in which repeated operations may be demanded.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Hand Tonic Also Found to Serve as an Excellent Body Lotion.

By Mignon.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

THERE is a new "hand tonic," or so it is called, that is softening and, it seems to me, whitening for the hands. It is also one of the very finest lotions for a body rub that I have yet discovered. It comes in one of those new, very advantageous bottles with a small opening at the top, so that you have to shake the bottle a bit to get the lotion. The trouble with these wide-mouthed bottles is that when you want a little lotion you get a deluge—unless it's one of those slow pouring concoctions that you can manage.

It is very infrequently that you find a hand and body lotion in one, with a rich content, just the right consistency, apparently without perfume. This one has a pleasant scent which would indicate that it does have some slight touch of a fragrance in it.

A friend who was in a hospital for a rest cure had her nurse give her a light rub with this lotion after her morning bath and she said never had her skin been so smooth and white and soft as after the use of it. After all, there isn't any woman living who wants to have a fish-scale surface. Women are made up not of "sugar and spice and all things nice," as in times gone by, but of pride, mostly. It is the feeling that you are not a hard-shelled, unlovely creature that gives you the zip you need to encounter the world feeling you are quite as lovely as the next woman. It's what you feel, not what other people see, think and say, that makes you equal to the tasks ahead of you.

Friend Defends Mark Wollner From Charges

Suspect Opened Shop on Morning of Murder, Asserts Piano Dealer.

By the Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., July 20.—W. H. Rhymer, 65, at whose home Mark Wollner, German-born violinist, was taken into custody for questioning in the Clevenger slaying case, today declared Wollner's detention had done "irreparable harm."

Rhymer, who has operated a piano store here 16 years, said:

"I am Wollner's friend and I have known him for 13 months. He has always been a perfect gentleman in my presence. My wife also holds him in high esteem.

"He has visited my house continuously for the past 12 months. I certainly don't believe he has any connection with the case.

Opened Store Daily.

"If I thought for one minute that he is guilty, I would be one of the first to help the police convict him.

"He opened my store at 8:30 o'clock every morning during the week of the homicide, and stayed there until 11 a. m., when I came down.

"He opened the store Thursday morning (the morning of the slaying) and called me on the telephone to tell me he was there and not to bother to hurry down.

"While there he signed several dated collection slips, of which I have copies in the store.

"Normal and Sober."

"He was absolutely normal and sober at 11 a. m. Thursday when I came down to the store. I made a settlement with him that afternoon as compensation for his services.

"When I found out the police were after him in connection with the crime I located him by telephone and told him to come to my house at once.

"He did, and when I explained to him what the charges were, he said he was anxious to get to the station as soon as possible to clear himself.

Were Ready to Start.

"We were just about ready to get started when officers called and took him into custody."

Rhymer added that he had talked the case over with Mrs. Essie Ward, mother of Mildred Ward, and that both were convinced many persons who said they had seen Wollner on the streets early Thursday had their dates mixed—that actually it was Friday morning they had seen him.

Rhymer said Wollner once told him he had never fired a gun and had never carried one.

Columbia Heights Unit To Hold Annual Outing

The Columbia Heights Business Men's Association will hold its annual outing tomorrow on the grounds of the Sixteenth street reservoir. There will be a picnic, athletic events and games for both men and women. The program has been arranged by a committee headed by Leslie C. Rucker.

A greeter committee composed of past presidents, W. F. Dismer, B. A. Levitan and A. R. Swan will meet the guests. Surplus income from the picnic will go toward establishing a branch of the Boys Club of the Metropolitan Police in Columbia Heights.

9 Boys Suffer Burns When Acid Is Thrown

Troy, N. Y., July 20 (AP).—Nine boys were burned today when an acid solution showered them as they played in front of a downtown building.

Dr. J. V. Barrett said the solution was a mixture of water and acid. He said none was seriously hurt, although all were burned about the head or face.

Police were called to control a crowd that gathered in the street as the boys ran screaming from the spot. They said they were investigating the boys' story that a pail was emptied on them from a window of the building.

Driver of Truck Faces Manslaughter Charges

Welch, W. Va., July 20 (AP).—State police today preferred charges of manslaughter and driving while intoxicated against Harry Brown, 42, driver of a truck which rolled down a mountain side, killing one boy and injuring 12 others.

The mishap occurred Saturday night while Brown was driving the truck loaded with 27 boys and girls on a hayride. Seventeen-year-old Louis Barta was killed. The condition of those injured is improving.

name." Thus, John Smith may wander over the country unworried by all the other John Smiths, so far as his retirement benefits are concerned, since his number emblem will set him apart in the files of the board.

The preliminary procedure, set for November, it was pointed out at the board's headquarters, is only a matter of identification of individuals. It has no connection, it was made clear, with the taxes to be paid by employers or employes and is not designed for tax purposes.

Payment of annuities under the system will not begin until 1942, but calculations of the board point to payment of 300,000 lump sum death benefits as early as next year. These benefits to heirs of persons who have been taxed under the old age benfit plan start with the imposition of taxes next January 1. Persons reaching the retirement age of 65 before 1942 also will be eligible for lump sums.

The account numbers assigned to workers will be so designed that they can be used also by State administrations for unemployment compensation, so that each employe will need only one number for both purposes.

Meanwhile, the Internal Revenue Bureau ruled yesterday that national banks are exempt from the social security tax for unemployment insurance, according to the Associated Press. For months, banks had sought a ruling on whether they were subject to the tax of 1 per cent, which later increases to 2 per cent on payrolls. It was said Commissioner Guy T. Helvering had held the act exempts the Federal Government and its "instrumentalities," which he interpreted to include national banks.

Roosevelt Sails 15 Miles as Fog Delays Cruise

President Will Work Ship Back Up Bay of Fundy Toward Yarmouth.

By the Associated Press.

Aboard Schooner Liberty off Cape Negro Island, N. S., July 20.—President Roosevelt sailed his vacation schooner Sewanna 15 miles southwest from Shelburne Harbor, Nova Scotia, to this little North Atlantic island late today and anchored for the night.

Delayed this morning by a heavy fog that barred the door to the Atlantic from the pine-bordered Shelburne Harbor of eastern Nova Scotia, where he had remained since Saturday night, the President ordered another start in mid-afternoon when the coastal fog moved farther out to sea.

He now will work his way back around the southern tip of the province and head northwestward up the Bay of Fundy for Campobello Island, Nova Scotia, his July 28 destination.

May Make Yarmouth.

He probably will make Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, tomorrow if the weather is good.

Getting under sail shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, Eastern daylight time, the white-hulled Sewanna skimmed down Shelburne Harbor, under sunny skies. But as it reached the ocean about noon a thick curtain of fog dropped over the passage causing the President to order a quick turn-about.

The fishing for tuna, pollock and cod he had planned for the day thus was deferred until the second week of the vacation cruise beginning tomorrow.

Loafs Several Hours.

The President loafed in his cabin for several hours until the second start of the day was made.

Just before moving out under engine power, the Sewanna received a White House mail pouch by two Navy seaplanes from Bar Harbor, Me.

Speed boats continued to swish back and forth between the Sewanna and the escorting U. S. S. Potomac and Destroyer Hopkins while they lay at anchor in Shelburne Harbor. The three Roosevelt sons boarded the Potomac for a brief stay just before a sailor fell into the water while scrubbing the gray hull from a small boat. He was fished out immediately.

5 More Attack Suspect's Alibi In Co-ed Killing

Pass Key Assumes New Importance in N. C. Hotel Murder Inquiry.

Bessie Ward, Wollner's landlady and mother of his "alibi girl," had seen him enter the Ward home at 6:30 a. m. and leave about five hours later, was not quite correct.

Mrs. Whitaker, he said, told him she saw the violinist enter the house, but did not see him leave; Mr. Baker, on the other hand, did not see him enter, but was the witness who told of seeing him go out, with a pair of trousers under his arm, apparently over the protest of Mildred Ward.

Cutter Not Connected.

While the pass key was considered as probably an important bit of evidence, officers indicated that the long-bladed paper cutter, found in the hotel manager's office, apparently was unconnected with the crime.

At first it was believed the intruder might have picked it up in going through the office and used it in stabbing the girl in the face, but an examination failed to indicate that supposed blood stains on the blade were fresh.

The instrument was found in the office through which, witnesses at the coroner's inquest said, a shadowy figure dashed out and leaped a balustrade shortly after other witnesses heard screams in the hotel.

There also remained the rusty 32-caliber pistol bullet, which penetrated the girl's lung and was said to have been the direct cause of death.

Held Incommunicado.

On the fifteenth floor of the courthouse building, Wollner, Gaddy and Miss Ward were held separately, and were not allowed to receive visitors. An exception was made for Miss Ward's physician, who is treating her for tuberculosis.

Late today, W. H. Rhymer, piano dealer at whose home Wollner was arrested, went to jail and waited, he said, for an opportunity to talk with the violinist. Rhymer said he was prepared to put up $20,000 bond if necessary to obtain Wollner's release.

Deputies T. K. Brown and John Garrison made a search of the Ward home this afternoon, and also of Wollner's studio in the Arcade Building. They dug up several places in the Ward yard, but apparently found nothing. In the home, they examined an ice pick and a pair of scissors.

Capital Attorney Confers With Ex-Navy Flier's Kin on Spy Charge.

William H. Leahy, prominent Washington attorney, said last night he was conferring with members of the family of John S. Farnsworth and would probably make an announcement today whether he will be retained as counsel for the former Navy officer charged with espionage.

Leahy said he was conferring with Ward Farnsworth, the officer's cousin, who came here from Cincinnati, Ohio, the Farnsworth home, to arrange for counsel.

Mrs. Farnsworth said yesterday in Cincinnati that her husband had just returned from a long trip.

"We are terribly upset," she said. "There isn't anything more I can say about it. We are hearing about the case for the first time and up to now we have known little of what really happened.

Norfolk to Resume Work on Bridges

By the Associated Press.

Senator Harry F. Byrd yesterday said he expected the order suspending work on a free-entry bridge into Norfolk would be canceled tomorrow.

He quoted Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, as saying construction would be started on the Bowers Hill Bridge immediately after the suspension order was canceled.

The Senator called on MacDonald in response to a "request from Representative Colgate W. Darden, jr., Norfolk, and said the roads bureau chief told him the suspension order would be canceled if cancellation was approved by State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley. Subsequently a telephone conversation between Federal authorities and Shirley revealed a letter of cancellation approval was in the mail.

One-Man Car Ban Is Cited; Hearing Ends

Old City Statute Recalled as Roberts Fights Plea of Transit Firm.

Decision Is Expected to Be Made in Month by Commission.

The hearing before the Public Utilities Commission on more one-man cars for Washington was concluded yesterday. A month is expected to elapse before the Commission announces its decision.

The hearing was on the petition of the Capital Transit Co. for permission to add 40 one-man cars to its fleet of 71, a petition opposed by spokesmen for Washington's organized citizens.

A question mark in the form of an old statute hung over the hearing as it was concluded yesterday. This statute, passed in horse-car days, provided that every car be manned by a conductor as well as a driver. People's Counsel William A. Roberts and William McK. Clayton, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, reminded Commissioner Richmond B. Keech, who was presiding, of this 1892 statute, and on the strength of it asked that the application for more one-man cars be dismissed.

Keech said that the motion would be taken under advisement by the commission.

Cites 2 Points.

Roberts made two other points in asking for a dismissal:

1. That 20 of the proposed one-man cars, those belonging to a railway company in Providence, R. I., have not been purchased by the local company. (The other 20 are the new streamlined cars, which the company would convert to one-man operation.)

2. That the record establishes that one-man cars are not satisfactory in Washington.

Clayton, after pointing to the horsecar statute, also made two other motions:

1. That the North American Co., giant holding firm, of New York, which controls Capital Transit Co., be made a party to the hearing.

2. That one member of the Public Utilities Commission can not hold a hearing such as the one that ended yesterday.

Riley Elgin, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, has been ill ever since the hearing started and yesterday underwent an operation. Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan, the other member of the P. U. C., has been out of town on official business. Consequently Keech has conducted the hearing alone.

Keech overruled Clayton's challenge of his authority to conduct the hearing and also the motion with respect to the North American Co.

The last witness was C. C. Mayer, who made a vague remark about organizing a "strike" to "obliterate" the one-man car in Washington.

Fred A. Sager, chief engineer for the Public Utilities Commission, was the first witness. Appearing Friday, he submitted a report to show that the one-man car, while slower than the two-man type, had a better record for safety.

Questioned by People's Counsel Roberts, Sager admitted that, in handling accident reports, he had not segregated the figures for one-man and two-man cars, but had used the company's segregated figures.

"Probably Slower."

Sager also testified that the average age of the one-man cars here is eight years, while nearly half of the two-man cars are 26 years old. Roberts has contended that the one-man car is seemingly safer because, being cheaper to operate, it is better equipped and used more in nonrush hour periods and more on outlying routes.

Asked by Roberts if the new streamlined cars would be safer as one-man cars than with a motorman and a conductor, Sager declined to hazard a statement. He did say, however, that they probably would be slower.

Earlier in the day five motormen employed by the Capital Transit Co., appeared to testify that they favored the one-man car over the two-man car. Their testimony was an answer to that of a delegation of street car employes who last week denounced the one-man car.

A. C. Ray, one of those testifying yesterday, said at the outset that "No one asked me to come." Cross-examined by People's Counsel Roberts, however, he said he had talked to a company superintendent about appearing.

Ray, a traction employe for 20 years, said he had operated one-man cars for 15 years and that the experience had in no way endangered his health. He said he preferred the one-man car to the two-man type. The other employes, who agreed with him, were J. H. Hennage, William Brunner, T. R. Welch and L. Bolleger.

Frank S. Lerch, representing the Columbia Typographical Union, presented a resolution which characterized the one-man car as "dangerous" to passengers and "nerve-wracking" to the operators.

He advocated a 5-cent fare here, pointing out that the business of the railroads had increased after their fares had been lowered.

Red Cross Will Offer A Course in First Aid

The classes conducted by Mrs. Gertrude Cummings, former Army graduate nurse, will be held at 10:30 a. m. until noon for five and one-half weeks. Methods of bandaging, control of bleeding, care of wounds, treatment of shock, fainting, sun stroke and resuscitation will be taught.

The Post's Corner to Be the City's Busiest

Auto traffic waits while a street car makes the new right turn into Fourteenth street from Pennsylvania avenue. With the changed street car routing, Capt. Milton D. Smith, traffic bureau commander, predicts the corner will have the heaviest flow of traffic of any in the city.

Cummings Bars Hearing for 7 Fired Workers

Report Read to Central Labor Union; One-Man Cars Are Opposed.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings decided not to give the American Federation of Government Employes, Justice Lodge 21, a hearing on its charges of union discrimination against seven dismissed fingerprint employes, it was announced at the Central Labor Union, last night.

A detailed report of the discharge of seven men employed in the fingerprint division, Department of Justice, was read before the C. L. U. by two Federal Bureau of Investigation employes. The discharged men were members of Justice Lodge 21.

After reading the two-page report, the two men, who refused to give their names, asked for support of the individual unions and members of the C. L. U if such action should be found necessary in their "fight to the finish" for the reinstatement of the discharged fingerprint men. No action was taken at the meeting.

The C. L. U. reaffirmed its opposition to one-man street cars after hearing a report from W. W. Keeler, chairman of its public utilities committee. A vote of thanks for Keeler's work on the one-man cars was given.

In making his report Keeler said, "If the one-man cars are forced on us, I think we should go to the President and ask for dismissal of the two civilian members of the P. U. C." The suggestion, however, was not put in the form of a motion.

A report of the progress made during the auto strike was given by David Kaplin, who is handling negotiations between auto dealers and the union.

Sylvan Theater Program Tonight

A combined program will be presented at the Sylvan Theater tonight at 8 o'clock in the sixth summer festival of the present season.

The second half of the present season of summer festivals will be begun July 28, with a Shakespearean festival program by the Washington Community Players.

New 14th Street Cars' Routing Causes Slight Jams at Avenue

Capt. Smith Believes Four Policemen Needed at Intersection, Instead of Two; Hopes Situation Soon Will Work Out.

Directing traffic during rush hours at the intersection of Fourteenth and E streets and Pennsylvania avenue is too much for two policemen, Capt. M. D. Smith, of the traffic division, said yesterday.

Yesterday was the first day out-bound street cars turned right at Fourteenth street from the Avenue. Previously they had gone up a block to Fifteenth street to make the turn.

Capt. Smith stood for over an hour yesterday at the intersection to superintend the traffic. Three other policemen were there to help him.

Rerouting of the car tracks will make the intersection the busiest in the city. Twelfth street and the Avenue now is the busiest corner in the city, but Capt. Smith said that with the increase in street car traffic under the new routing system the traffic would be increased at the Fourteenth street intersection.

"Already," Capt. Smith said, "more than 4,200 automobiles cross this intersection every hour. That's just about as many as you would find in any intersection of any city in the United States.

"It's really more than two men can handle," he continued as he stood there watching how his police were working with the toughest traffic situation in Washington. Everything was working smoothly.

Need Four Policemen.

"We plan to have two men on the corner every day during the rush hours," he said. "But we really need four. All the other big cities in the United States have four men on busy intersections. We need it here."

But directing automobiles is not all the problem at the corner. The theme song of that intersection is "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

And nobody knows exactly which car to take to get home.

Every three seconds, a policeman's arduous task of untangling a would-be traffic knot at the corner is interrupted:

"Where do I catch the Takoma Park car now?"

Between questions from homeward bound pedestrians, Capt. Smith managed to say, however:

"That will straighten itself out in a week or so—this street car problem. People will be familiar with the new routes by then."

Cars which have been rumbling straight up the Avenue to Fifteenth street and turning there now are making that turn at Fourteenth street. Cars still using the Avenue, and cars heading both north and south on Fourteenth street all meet at the intersection.

Capt. Smith said he hoped some new light would be developed soon to straighten out the tangle.

"Still we need four men," he said.

Autos Are Problem.

The main problem at the corner is halting automobiles headed west on E street and Pennsylvania avenue in order to allow Fourteenth street cars to make a right turn. They have to take turn about. The street cars wait for the automobiles and the automobiles for the street cars.

The morning rush hour seemed to be heavier than the evening. It wasn't, though, police said. But in the late afternoon when the Government employes started pouring out of the buildings and headed home again, routine had become more thoroughly organized. People were beginning to catch the hang of the new routes. Conductors who that morning were unfamiliar with the new routes which had just gone into effect had become accustomed to them. The police were better organized.

Randolph Asks Flood Research In River Basin

Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, yesterday wrote President Roosevelt urging that he begin at once the suggestion of the National Resources Committee that the Potomac River Basin be a demonstration research area for flood control and soil conservation.

His letter follows:

"I wish to urge most earnestly your beginning at once the program in this important territory. There can be valuable surveys and studies made regarding flood control, undertakings which can be carried out, the new land uses and industrial development, the conservation of timber lands, soil erosion surveys and many other projects which could here be undertaken at a time when the need is paramount. I visited this territory personally and inspected the damages wrought by the severe floods last spring and I feel certain that this section can serve as a place where real constructive planning can be speedily inaugurated.

"I have been much encouraged by your favorable attitude toward the construction of a dam on a tributary of the Upper Potomac near Piedmont, W. Va. If this project could be undertaken and completed within the next two years, I feel sure the industrial development of the upper part of the Potomac River would be materially improved. It is my understanding that the Celanese Corporation would increase by several thousands the number of employes now there. This corporation employs approximately 8,000 at the present time at the plant near Cumberland. An adequate water supply during the dry summer months would result from such a dam.

"It is my further understanding that no added authority is needed to begin the rehabilitation of this large territory embracing more than 14,000 square miles with a population within its watershed of nearly 1,300,000 persons."

Secret of Life Brought Nearer By Discoveries in Chlorophyll

Discovery that chlorophyll, mysterious factor in the world's most important chemical reaction, is present in lettuce seeds was hailed yesterday by two Federal scientists as a step toward solution of this reaction, on which every form of the earth's life depends.

Without chlorophyll, the world would be but a ball of rock, sand and sea. With it, it is palm, pine, man and beast. This is because chlorophyll is the essential factor in the vegetable kingdom, the catalyst which makes it possible for the inorganic—water and carbon dioxide gas—to combine into the organic, the simple carbohydrate from which the millions of organic compounds are built.

The chemist can do many amazing things, but only chlorophyll, the green coloring matter of a leaf, a blade of grass, aided by the energy from the light of the sun, can make the organic of the inorganic. So without chlorophyll there would be no plants, no animals for man to eat, no life at all on earth.

Dr. Lewis H. Flint, of the Department of Agriculture, and Dr. E. D. McAlister, of the Smithsonian Institution, said they found that chlorophyll in the lettuce seeds responded to light in almost exactly the same way as chlorophyll in the leaf of a plant. By exposing the seeds to the right kinds of light, they said, they increased germination of dormant seeds by more than 400 per cent.

Yellow, orange and red wavelengths of light were found to be the stimulating rays, McAlister said, adding that those rays were absorbed to a much greater extent and apparently supplied the spark which sent the chlorophyll in the seeds into action and resulted in sprouting.

The discovery of chlorophyll in lettuce seeds brings the problem of chlorophyll action one step nearer solution, McAlister and Flint said, since it apparently must be present for growth even to begin. They suggested the possibility of further analyzing it by exact determinations of the quality of light reaching the earth from the sun.

The green pigment is present in the lettuce seed only in small quantities, McAlister explained, most of the coloring matter being carotin, or the yellow pigment most noticeable in carrots. A solution made from the seeds when viewed through a 4-foot tube showed a dominant yellow color with a tinge of green.

"The close analogy between the critical wave lengths of radiation influencing seed germination and the critical wave lengths of radiation absorbed by chlorophyll and allied pigments places a distinct emphasis upon what perhaps is a new and promising viewpoint," the scientists said.

Court to Bar Confiscation Of Pin Games

Points Out Firm Stood to Lose Large Sum if It Lost Plea.

An injunction prohibiting police from confiscating pin ball machines will be signed by Justice Oscar R. Luhring, in conclusion of a somewhat acrimonious bearing on the divergent views of whether the typical pin machine is a game of skill or a game of chance.

The injunction will permit stores where the machines are placed to operate them without molestation at least until a more complete hearing on a permanent injunction is held in District Court in October. In order to expedite a final ruling, Justice Luhring said he would order the case advanced on the equity docket.

Represent Government.

John J. Wilson, assistant United States attorney, and Elwood Seal, assistant corporation counsel, represented the Government in the fight to ban the machines they say are gaming devices. They were opposed by William R. Litchtenberg, who, representing the Pioneering Novelty Co., maintained the machines were for the amusement of the public generally and were not intended to be gaming devices.

Justice Luhring pointed out that the Pioneer company, which fought a single-handed battle, though it controls only 2,500 of the 7,500 machines operating in the District, stood to lose a substantial amount of money should he grant an injunction now against the machines only to have a later hearing develop that they were not, in law, gaming devices.

He said 50 persons would be thrown out of work, and that an investment of many thousands of dollars would be wiped out if an injunction was granted at this stage of the game. He suggested little, if any harm, would accrue through delay of a few weeks.

Called Amusement.

Lichtenberg, in an elaborate technical description of what constitutes a pin machine, said skill predominated in its operation. He said an expert player could almost always place the ball in the hole where he desired it, and could consistently amuse himself by taking slugs out of the slots.

The Government introduced an affidavit by Roy Blick, a member of the gaming squad, which tended to dispute those assertions. Blick said the "screw ball" feet of the machines, raised or lowered the inclination of the playing board, were frequently altered, that the machines, of which there are 150 types, were moved about with frequency, that the expulsion spring was often altered and that the pins and springs that sent the balls from side to side in the glass-enclosed board, were readjusted from time to time, thus throwing even a skilled player off his stride.

The formal order carrying out the injunction is expected to be signed as soon as the rival attorneys can get together on the wording to be contained in it.

Rum Shop Robbed Of $100 by Thugs

John Nicholopoulos, proprietor, said the men entered the shop about 10 p. m. He said they asked him for a bottle of liquor and when he turned to get it they ordered him to stick up his hands. Then they rifled the cash drawer, he said, and forced him into a back room.

Fidelity Board Soon Will Give Data on Inquiry

To Give Details on Firm's Condition and Suggest Future Action.

As soon as possible the trustees of the closed Fidelity Building and Loan Association will make a complete statement of the institution's condition to its depositors, together with suggestions for their future action, Dr. Ralph W. B. Bennett, president, announced yesterday.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Fred B. Rhodes, former head of the association and local attorney, would be arraigned on a larceny charge in connection with the disappearance of $13,000 from the institution, on August 3, when he will appear in police court.

It was the deficiency in funds and Rhodes' arrest which led to the closing of the association.

Will Suggest Action.

The statement issued by Dr. Bennett follows:

"Since the closing of this institution by the Comptroller of the Currency on Saturday, July 18, 1936, the executive committee of your board of trustees has kept in close touch with the situation, and will continue its best efforts for the protection of your interests.

"As soon as possible your trustees will make a complete statement of the condition of the association, with suggestions for your future action.

"Until the Treasury officials have completed their examination, complete detailed information necessarily is not available.

"The executive committee feels that it has sufficient information at this time to justify it in saying "that any impairment eventually determined, at the worst, will represent only a small percentage of the association's assets."

Arraignment Continued.

The arraignment was continued yesterday when Rhodes' attorney, William E. Leahy, explained he wanted to confer with Assistant United States District Attorney Henry A. Schweinhaut before going into court.

The charge against Rhodes was preferred by Schweinhaut, and it is now understood the case may be put to the grand jury in advance of the new arraignment date.

It was explained yesterday the charge is based on a $13,000 loan from the association to Rhodes. Officials said the loan was made through a "straw" party for construction purposes. Rhodes, it is alleged used the bulk of it to meet an overdraft on his account at the association.

Property Taken Over.

Rhodes yesterday declared the Treasury Department had full knowledge of the details of the loan last December 31, and that there was nothing irregular about the transaction.

He explained the property in question, located near Fairfax, Va., had been taken over by the association, and he had agreed to build houses on it.

Rhodes will contend that the overdraft on his account resulted from these building operations, and that the loan was made in this connection, it was understood.

The "straw" party to whom the loan was made, according to Rhodes, was a relative.

"Certainly there was no secret or concealment about that," said Rhodes yesterday.

The Congregation of the Resurrection yesterday purchased historic Green Hill, until recently the home of the late Col. E. Francis Riggs, chief of constabulary in Puerto Rico, assasinated as he returned from mass in San Juan February 23.

The congregation, a Catholic order, will use it as a national headquarters and school for the education of priests. Thirty priests and students will comprise the initial group to take residence in the manor within the next two weeks.

Famous as the home of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who designed the City of Washington for more than a century, the property was the French officer's burial place. In Revolutionary times it was known as Chillum Manor. It came into the possession of the Riggs family in 1824.

Representing the congregation in the transaction was Father Michael Jaclowitz, head of the order at Rome, and Father Startzynski, American head of the order and publisher of a Polish newspaper in Chicago.

Photographic Society Will Meet Tomorrow

The Washington Photographic Society, will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Mount Pleasant Library. The speaker will be William N. Mooreland, president, who will discuss types of cameras and their characteristics.

Barrymore Is Mourning Loss Of Old Friend

It is the historic Arch Street Theater, in Philadelphia, in which he first saw his father in "Romeo and Juliet," opposite the Polish star, Helena Modjeska. His grandmother, Louisa Lane Drew, managed the theater from 1861 to 1897. It is an important detail in the Barrymore tradition.

"I remember it as though it were yesterday," the youngest Barrymore declares. "I was just a small boy, but can remember how Booth and Barrett, Mansfield, Sir Henry Irving, all the great stars of the time, came there. My grandmother played Mrs. Malaprop in 'The Rivals' there many times. And we children used to watch Modjeska and our father, from backstage, on matinees.

"My grandmother always had her name over the box office, with the inscription 'Sole Lessee.' I didn't know what kind of a fish that was—until I was about 8 years old!"

Maurice Barrymore, John's father, was leading man for many great stars of the day, most notably Modjeska, who was a family friend, and who was Lionel's godmother.

Classic Seemed Modern.

"Their 'Romeo and Juliet,'" says Barrymore, "seemed modern because of the natural handling of lines. When George Cukor directed Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard in the screen presentation, this was the first thing that impressed me. I have seen the picture three times in the projection room. It is absolutely modern in effect because of this handling of dialogue. Shakespeare's words were not altered, yet the effect is as modern as a play of today. Of course, many of Shakespeare's expressions still live. Many of them, like 'A woman scorned,' or 'What the Dickens?' have come down the years and are regarded as slang, in a way. And because people regard slang as modern, they forgot that it could have been originated as far back as Shakespeare."

Miss Shearer's Juliet, Barrymore insists, compares with any he has ever seen, "and," he adds, "has the impression of fresh youth so vital to the role, the charm of girlhood, that in so many cases we missed on the stage."

Barrymore is next to go into "Camille" with Garbo, playing the role of Varville, under Cukor's direction. He sees in the production of the type of play a definite return to popularity of the "costume picture."

Wants to See "Tosca."

"Some day," he adds, "I would like to see somebody produce 'Tosca.'"

Regarding this he tells an amusing anecdote of his father. The elder Barrymore, in San Francisco, wrote a drama based on the original book, and produced it with great success. He then submitted the play to Sarah Bernhardt. Her manager returned it, and a year later a version of "Tosca" was used by the French star. At the time charges of plagiarism flew thick and fast.

"It was admitted," says Barrymore, "that my father's idea had been used—but the French producers insisted that the play had been much improved in their version.

This answer was brought back to my father by a newspaperman, who asked his comment on it.

"'Is the man who steals my walking-stick any less a thief?' demanded Father, 'because he built an umbrella on it?'"

Roadsiders

"ARIZONA." The Roadside Theater presents the drama in four acts by Augustus Thomas, directed by Harold A. Weinberger, with stage settings by Edith I. Allen and costumes by Dorothy Croissant. At the Roadside Theater. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

The saga of the great Southwest of 40 years ago—Augustus Thomas' thrilling "Arizona"—continues to present a lusty interpretation of an era of womanly women and manly men—although some of the latter did slip from grace, in more ways than one!

With George Farrington letter perfect in the part of Colonel Bonham—a role into which he originally stepped at three rehearsals' notice—and the other members of the cast romping through "a drama of love and intrigue in the U. S. Cavalry," this "modern" company is continuing to maintain the enviable reputation of the Roadside Group.

Among those in the cast are J. Edmond Veitch, Nelson Frankling, Elinor Cox Karsten, Virginia True, Betty Gray, Lansing Hall, Richard Kreuzberg, Marvin Beers, Jean Smith, Fred Haskin, jr., Edward Stevlingson, Deane Bryant, Frank S. Koonce, Milton Freedman, Harrison Libbey, Michael McKnight and Clarence W. Moore.

About the Showshops

WHEN that slightly blatant blackface exhorter, Mr. Charles "Slim" Timblin, stepped out of character and introduced Ernest Truex from the stage of Loew's Fox Theater on Sunday night, it was made transparently clear to those in the audience why the veteran Mr. Truex for years was looked upon as the stage's perennial juvenile.

• BELL.

He still possesses that youthfulness of spirit, voice and humor that made him so long the favorite juvenile lead of producers and audiences alike. It is perhaps only around the waistline—and not noticeably even there—that this agile star of "Spring Is Here," opening Friday on the stage at the Fox, no longer may lay claim to the lithesomeness of adolescent days. Every impression he projects across the footlights is of spontaneous youthful enthusiasm.

Even the case-hardened—and arterio, too, for that matter—old-timers in the audience last Sabbath evening found it difficult to reconcile Ernest Truex's presence in the casts of "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Wildfire" and "Girlies" in New York 'way back there in the years between 1906 and 1912.

It was hard enough to believe that it was he who appeared as Charles MacLance in the late David Belasco's production of "The Good Little Devil," at the National in 1913, in which the role of the little blind girl was played with simple charm and infinite pathos by Mary Pickford, or that this was the young fellow who made such a hit in "The Dummy," a melodramatic comedy by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, back in 1914, the year of the outbreak of the Great War with the calamitous incident at Sarajevo and the Germans' subsequent drive through Belgium.

But there he was, the same able fellow, scarcely a year older and certainly no less bubbling with pep than he was 22 years ago when he was accustomed to speak the famous tagline that brought down the curtain on "The Dummy."

After having won a handsome reward by turning up the criminal through pretending to be a deaf mute, the youthful character of Barney Cook was asked to disclose the first thing he planned to do with all that money.

"Count it," was the sagacious and humorous reply.

For those whose recollections do not go back quite that far in the theater, Mr. Truex perhaps can be identified as the gay young man who starred in both the stage and screen versions of "Whistling in the Dark" and in the celluloid version of "The Warrior's Husband."

If that doesn't recall him—but surely it must—then a reminder might be offered that it was Ernest Truex who had a great deal to do with the comic effectiveness of the Theater Guilds' production of "Jig Saw," a comedy of the New York penthouses, with which the National closed its season two or three years ago. If we had to be brutal about it, we could even go so far as to say that it was Mr. Truex who shared the disaster of "Gather Ye Rosebuds" with Walter Connolly season before last. But then, who is there that bats a thousand, anyway, in any man's league?

In this "Spring Is Here" business, which is by way of being a full-fledged musical comedy being produced by Gene Ford as the stage portion of the Fox bill for next week, Truex is surrounded by a clever company of "big time" principals and a chorus brought down from New York for this specific occasion.

In setting down these casual contemplations of the career of one of the theater's most amiable and most gifted gentlemen, it is impossible to escape the thought that Ponce de Leon should have consulted Ernest Truex in the matter of that fountain of youth and saved himself a lot of time and wasted effort!

• • • •

Reverting once more to the extraordinary run of "San Francisco" at the Palace, we have intended for days on end to remark upon the interest that has been manifested by the public in the enlarged first pages of the issues of The Washington Post of April 18, 19 and 20, 1906, displayed in front of the theater and in the lobby throughout the engagement. To a great many of the present generation of theatergoers, the San Francisco disaster is only a vague sort of legend of which they cannot have any first-hand knowledge or personal memory. Translated into terms of graphic newspaper reporting and set up right there before their eyes, to be read just as it was published, the catastrophe of 1906 takes on new meaning and a new sense of actuality. Those pages have been read and reread by crowds both entering and leaving the theater.

All of which reminds me, somehow, of the time I dressed one of the then F street windows of the Saks Fur Co., with an Alaskan fur-trading scene to emphasize the desirability of attending the Metropolitan Theater to view a James Oliver Curwood picture of the snow country. More people went to see the window display than went to the show! That, of course, is not the case at the Palace, but the nebulous analogy just won't down.

Hot on the heels—and this time I mean HOT—of Master Dickie Moore, juvenile screen player, one of Washington's favorite stage attractions is going onto the Steel Pier down at Atlantic City this Friday. That would be Ina Ray Hutton and Her Melodears. The air-cooling plants are all being stepped up to their maximum capacity for the duration of this engagement!

It was Ina Ray, incidentally, who contributed so largely to the success of the first of the Variety Club's annual "Showboat Cruises" last summer. This year's is scheduled for Saturday night, August 22, and is announced to occupy the period between the hours of 9 p. m. and 1 a. m. There will be dancing and a Water Carnival from 9 to 10. Promptly at 10 the Wilson Line's biggest steamer will nose out into the Potomac and the riot will be on. It is reported that a program of surprises is in process of formation. Tickets may be obtained at the modest fee of $1.50 per copy. The ticket committee already is functioning and is individually known by the names of Sidney B. Lust, Kemp Mohler and W. E. S. Wilcox.

Indians Start Sun Dance.

Fort Hall, July 30 (AP).—Prepared to go three days without food or water, a hundred half-naked Indian braves donned feathers and war paint on this southern Idaho reservation today for their annual "purification" dance to the sun. As they have done for ages, the Bannocks and the Shoshones again summoned their lame, halt and blind to the mystic thirst-hunger endurance rites beginning at dusk. The infirm thus hope to be healed by an appeased sun god.

Star Insurance Comes High and Is Hard to Get

Lloyd's Set Limit on Film Costs and Makes Risks Train Into Shape.

Hollywood, July 19 (AP).—Next to the American public, the most potent of all movie "critics" is an English corporation, Lloyd's of London.

Producers listen when Lloyd's speaks.

Sometimes they squirm, squeal and cry out in anguish, too. But they listen. For they lean on Lloyd's for protection against the hobgoblin risks of movie-making—most particularly, the illness or death of a star before a million-dollar picture is finished.

You can't make part of a picture with Joan Crawford as the star and finish it with Marlene Dietrich in her part. Lloyd's in a manner of speaking, bets with the producer that no such catastrophe will occur.

The average premium on a star, studio auditors said, is 50 cents per $100 worth of insurance. Thus, when a player or director is rated as a million-dollar "property" to the producer, it costs the producer $5,000 to insure him. For the movie "Dodsworth" Samuel Goldwyn took out six such policies, insuring Walter Huston, Ruth Chaterton, Mary Astor, Director William Wyler, Paul Lukas and Odette Myrtil.

Sets Limit on Cost.

The company, for example, does not believe any movie should cost more than $1,000,000. It will go that far—and no further. Most super-specials cost more than a million. It is understood "The Great Ziegfeld" cost $2,000,000. All Eddie Cantor musicals have a $1,500,000 budget. Lloyd's doesn't believe in such things.

What's more, the company rates a star's value to the producer differently according to the picture he or she is in.

The company might, in the case of "Dodsworth," Grant Goldwyn two policies on Walter Huston. Huston created the role on the stage, and could be considered the only man in the world, at this time, capable of playing the part as it should be played.

Directors can be insured if a Lloyd's "critic" deems them to be the only directors properly equipped to handle a particular film.

Preparations for the insurance examinations are often as rigorous as a boxer's training campaign. Edward Arnold said he had to work six weeks—tennis, golf, horseback, boxing—to trim off excess poundage before Lloyd's would grant him a policy during the work on "Come and Get It."

Coming to Capital in Costellar Film Roles

When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's expansive production of "The Good Earth," adapted from the powerful novel of Chinese life by Pearl S. Buck, is presented on the Capital screen this fall, the principal roles of Wang Lung and O-Lan will be played, respectively, by Paul Muni and Luise Rainer. They are effectively pictured above in the parts created on the stage of the National Theater a few seasons ago, in the Theater Guild's dramatization of the compelling story of a lifetime struggle by Earl Larimore and Mme. Alla Nazimova. Mr. Larimore was succeeded during the local engagement by Claude Rains, since famous in the films as well as on the boards. Nazimova triumphed last season in Ibsen's "Ghosts" and Miss Rainer was deemed the star of "The Great Ziegfeld."

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

The skeleton framework of a new Federal board to aid the Indians was completed yesterday by the Commission on Indian Affairs—enough members being appointed to start the new work for the financial betterment of the red men.

The President recently signed the bill creating this committee and giving it an appropriation of $45,000, a portion of the funds it will have to work with, thus adding another step in the program outlined some time ago by Commissioner John Collier for a new method of treatment of Indians.

The committee is the Indian Arts and Crafts Board, the main work of which is to handle the marketing of the Indians' superb textile work, woodwork, pottery, costume and silver work as well as any other handiwork of the tribes.

At present Collier is acting as chairman, a position he took temporarily in order to start the board to work. Another temporary member is E. K. Burlew, administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Interior. Both will resign in the fall when the summer vacationists return and they can fill their places with permanent members.

Other members are Dr. A. V. Kidder, of the division of historical research of the Carnegie Institution in Washington, Lorenzo Hubbell, Oraibi, Ariz., an old timer as a licensed trader of the Government with the Indians, and W. W. Beatty, director of education in the Indian Service.

The work of the board began yesterday with the dispatch of a field agent to look over the situation and see what can be done to co-ordinate the marketing possibilities for Indian handicraft. Collier will return to Washington tomorrow from a week's trip to Mexico, where he addressed a seminar of the committee on cultural relations with Latin-America held in Mexico City. He flew both ways for his speeches on what Uncle Sam is doing for his Indian tribes, although he would have liked to have driven over the new highway connecting the two countries.

The new board is created by the Oklahoma Indian general welfare bill which, Collier said, "brings to legislative completion that program which the Indian reorganization act laid down in 1934.

"The new policy now embraces 282,000 Indians or 85 per cent of all the Indians in the country. This has ended the announced effort to wipe Indian reorganization from the statute books and force Indian administration back to the earlier system.

"Indian arts and crafts are of the home and, of old, there was not a single tribe which did not practice strong, honest and beautiful crafts for ceremonial purposes, war-making use, domestic use or for trade.

"For a lifetime, everything has worked to degrade, discourage and kill Indian arts and crafts.

"The Arts and Crafts Board has been created to meet this situation and it legal powers are very wide. It will administer a trade-mark of genuineness and can grade as to quality, conduct research into technics and explore marketing possibilities not only in this country but in Europe."

The direct appropriation for operation is $45,000, but loan funds under the reorganization act can be tapped to supply tribes with capital for development of their art and for marketing operations.

Louis C. West, a Cleveland business man and welfare executive in numerous organizations of that city, has been appointed general manager of the new board. In addition to his welfare and business activities he has served as president of the Cleveland Archeological Society and of the Cleveland Philosophical Society.

Several important bills, said the commissioner, failed to pass in Congress this session; the Navajo boundary bill authorizing the fixing of the boundary of the reservation and the purchase of lands owned by the whites, and the Indian Claims Commission, a measure to create a special commission to investigate and settle all outstanding tribal claims against the government.

Hot weather hasn't deterred the employes of the Civil Service Commission, for they go to school a couple afternoons a week after working hours to hear lectures on the work of the various divisons of the commission. A recent lecture was given by Dr. L. J. O'Routke, chief of the research division, which has charge of finding ways of improving the service. Over 400 employes have attended the talks each of the two weeks it has been in session. No attendance record is taken, for classes are voluntary.

A week from today, the 28th, there's going to be another moonlight ride down the Potomac for the members of the In-Com-Co Club (the Interstate Commerce Commission). The last one early in the month was such a success that the members are demanding another.

Two-Way Three Bid.

The new two-way three bid has all the effectiveness of a masked or camouflaged battery. The enemy has no means of determining its power or scope until it is too late to set up the proper defenses. Whether the shell it throws turns out a dud or a high explosive, its menace remains real.

The fact that the three-bidder's partner, as well as his opponents, cannot know the true implication of the bid until the second round, works little or no hardship on the users. The partner can afford to investigate the meaning by holding the bidding open. At the worst he will increase the contract only one trick. But the adversaries are in a pretty dilemma indeed: Bid, and risk being slaughtered; pass, and risk losing a lay-down game. Note the huge value of the opening three-bid in today's hand.

East-West vulnerable.

	NORTH ♠ 10 6 4 ♥ Q 10 ♦ 10 9 8 5 2 ♣ K 9 3
WEST ♠ A 7 ♥ K 9 7 6 4 ♦ A J ♣ Q 10 5 2		EAST ♠ 5 ♥ A 8 5 3 2 ♦ Q 7 3 ♣ A J 6 4
	SOUTH ♠ K Q J 9 8 3 2 ♥ J ♦ K 6 4 ♣ 8 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 spades	Pass	3 no trp.	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

The contract was defeated four tricks but, in view of the honor distribution between the two defenders, criticism on the grounds of failure to double would be most unfair. A blighting redouble might be lurking in the bushes! Nor could either West or East have entered the bidding except at risk to life and limb. It is quite true that they could have made a grand slam by the successful finesse of the minor-suit kings and, that being the case that the theoretically correct contract would have been six hearts, on the percentage that at least one finesses would work. But this was one of those hands in which the greatest of experts would be helpless, hamstrung! Neither defender could be sure that South's bid was, this time, the "weak variety;" nor, for that matter, that North was not prepared to crucify any adverse four bid. Against the old type preemptive three bid, West might have taken a good deep breath and entered the bidding, but with South, as well as North, a potential sharpshooter, the risk was disproportionate.

Thus, the gain accruing to the opening bid, representing the difference between the 200 points lost and the 1,630 points that would have been lost had the opponents taken the rubber with a small slam, was 1,430 points.

Data on Traffic At Chain Bridge Given to Glass

Report Shows Vehicle Used Span Every 10 Seconds Last Sunday.

New figures for the discussion being waged over the capacity of the proposed new bridge to connect the District and Virginia were included in a report submitted yesterday to Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat.

The count, taken and submitted by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, indicated traffic over the antiquated Chain Bridge on Sunday, July 12, averaged a vehicle every 10 seconds. The rush hour average, furthermore, was one every 5 seconds.

As ranking member of the Senate District committee, Senator Glass is interested in the subject. For months his office has been following closely the controversy over whether old Chain Bridge should be replaced by another two-lane bridge, or whether the new bridge should have four lanes or more.

The floods of last March severely damaged Chain Bridge, and Congress authorized $350,000 for replacing it. The type, capacity and location of the proposed new bridge has been the subject of much discussion both in the District and in northern Virginia ever since the expenditure was authorized.

2 Nebraska Swansons In Battle Over Water

Lincoln, Nebr., July 20 (AP).—Leo N. Swanson, commissioner of public lands and buildings in Nebraska, turned off the water in the office of Harry R. Swanson, secretary of State, today and said the next move in Nebraska's newest water war was up to Harry.

Leo threatened Saturday to shut of the secretary of State's water supply if Harry did not offer to pay for 15,000 gallons of water—about $1.50 worth—used daily in Harry's home-made air cooling device.

Harry said he wouldn't pay for it, so Leo, who in private life is a plumber, had the water shut off. Harry pointed out it was cooler today, anyway. The two are not related politically or any other way. Harry is a Democrat and Leo a Republican.

Gore Reveals Chances To 'Sell' U. S. Judgeship

By the Associated Press.

Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, told newspapermen yesterday he had two chances to "dispose" of an Oklahoma judgeship appointment during his unsuccessful campaign for re-election in the July 7 primaries.

"I had two chances to dispose of it—one for $10,000 and another for all the money I needed," Gore said. "I turned them down. I was not willing to sell the United States judgeship to get myself re-elected to the United States Senate."

The reference was to a new roving Federal judgeship which was authorized by the last Congress. No nominations for the position have been made.

U. S. Liquor Bill Is Put Above Prohibition Days

Richmond, Va., July 20 (AP).—The United States now spends $3,250,000,000 for alcoholic beverages, compared with $2,400,000,000 a year in the "old days," D. Leith Colvin, of New York, Presidential candidate of the Prohibition Party, told the Virginia convention today.

The Presidential nominee spoke again at an afternoon session presided over by A. J. Dunning, jr., of Norfolk, senatorial nominee. James H. Edgerton, of Alexandria, the party's Vice Presidential candidate in 1928, introduced Colvin at the morning meeting.

Jack Sharkey Signs for 10-Round Bout With Louis in August

Furr's Bout With Ross Off Air

Officials Ban Broadcast to Aid Camp Fund Fight Receipts.

By Bill McCormick.

There will be no broadcast of Washington's first show of champions, in which World Welterweight Champion Barney Ross and District Welterweight Champion Phil Furr will tangle for ten rounds with all-time Champion Jack Dempsey as referee.

This was decided yesterday after many conferences between the promoters of the show, representatives of the summer camp fund, for whose benefit the outstanding bout has been arranged and the managers of the fighters themselves.

Several lucrative offers had been received for the broadcasting rights, but all concerned felt that the gate receipts probably would suffer more than the amount to be gained by allowing the fight to be aired.

All concerned are prepared for a record fight crowd for the District, but arrangements have been made to take very good care of any and all cash customers who may turn out for the fistic masterpiece.

Crowd at 30,000.

The layout, a newly-devised one, at Griffith Stadium, will accommodate a capacity crowd of 30,000, which would mean gate receipts in the neighborhood of $65,000. The record for the District is a $32,000 gate. A crowd of 15,000 is expected to toss approximately $30,000 into the till for this contest.

The Washington champion, who was scheduled to appear at the stadium yesterday in a public workout, decided that he would not do just that, when he learned that Ross and his handlers were also scheduled to put in an appearance.

Furr was very emphatic in his refusal to work out where the Ross campers could give him a thorough visual going-over, and hied himself away to his own little gymnasium, where behind locked and guarded doors he finished his training.

Four Rounds for Ross.

Working before a crowd of reporters yesterday, Barney went two fast rounds with Mickey Page and one with lanky Buster Wages, whom he again floored. Under wraps during the first two minutes, Ross uncorked a single left hook which put the Washington boy down and ended the round.

Finishing two rounds of rope-skipping, Ross spoke a few words into the mike, then slipped lightly into the showers. The champion appeared in excellent condition, scarcely drawing a deep breath during the entire sparring session.

Argentina's Polo Hopes on Upgrade

By the United Press.

Berlin, July 20. — Argentina's chances of winning the Olympic polo title soared today when it was announced that the United States was unable to marshal a team. The United States was not among the entries for polo which closed along with other sports tonight.

Five nations entered—Argentina, Great Britain, Mexico, Hungary and Germany. Eric Tyrrell-Martin and Hesketh Hughes, both stars of the British Westchester team, were not on the British squad. Their absence will weaken the British team and increase the chances of Argentina, which has entered a strong team.

Extra! Sparring Partner Stays With Ross

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., July 20.—Frankie Parker, of Lawrenceville, N. J., and Defending Champion Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., the top-seeded pair in the forty-fourth Longwood Bowl tennis tourney, gained the third round during today's showery opening day.

Parker, ranked seventh nationally, received a first round victory by default and then moved against Guy Cheng, former Chinese Davis Cup player, who was eliminated in easy fashion, 6-2, 6-1.

Hines opened against his last year's Longwood runner-up, the unseeded Norcross Tilney, of Ilewellyn Park, N. J., whose game was so hampered by the slippery going which followed a sudden and heavy shower that he suffered elimination, 6-3, 6-4.

Eight Defaults.

Eight defaults were posted during the opening program, including those of two seeded players, Gene Mako, young Los Angeles Davis Cup player, who was ranked third in the draw, and Bernard Welsh, of Rockville, Md., the National Public Courts chaimpion.

Among the others to gain the third round were Bob Harman, of New York, the fifth seeded, Walter Senior, of San Francisco, Henry Culley, of Santa Barbara, Calif., Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, and Harold Tenny, of Greenwich, Conn.

Jim Barry, Ex-Champ, Seriously Ill at Chicago

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Jimmy Barry, who retired undefeated as bantamweight champion of the world 39 years ago, was fighting the one battle of his life today which he may lose. Barry, now 66 years old, is suffering from bronchial pneumonia.

Almost a forgotten man in fisticana, Barry never lost a battle in the ring. In recent years he has been connected with the municipal courts in Chicago as a bailiff.

First Negro Golfer Plays in National

By a Staff Correspondent.

Bethpage Course, Farmingdale, Long Island, July 20.—George Johnson, young Schenectady (N. Y.) Negro, would like to be in golf what Jesse Owens is in track, Joe Louis in boxing and Ozz Simmons in football.

Said to be the first colored golfer ever to play in a National championship, Johnson topped two shots on the first hole, and played even 5s for 18 holes for an inglorious 90, 18 over par.

A few years ago in a Philadelphia Public Links qualifying test a controversy arose over the playing of two Negroes. They were disqualified, it is understood, and they got an injunction against the party ordering their withdrawal.

Nats Head West, Hope to End Bad Streak

By Shirley Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post.

En Route to Chicago, July 20.—There may be no place like home, but the Washington Ball Club, faring forth into the West, is taking great satisfaction in putting great distance between itself and Griffith Stadium.

With memories of their poorest home stand in years still entirely too fresh, the Nats are setting out hopefully for the West, where they envision a return to their first-division rating.

Losing the fruits of their last successful road trip which netted them 13 victories in 18 games by a dismal performance on the home heath, where they won but 6 of 15 contests, the Nats envision more personally prosperous times in the land of the drought.

Good Road Club.

Manager Bucky Harris, convinced that his team is a superior road club, as their records would indicate, was all set today to hail the end of the Nats' slump and predict a definite upswing in the club's success. Monte Weaver's apparent return to pitching form found Harris no less than elated, but his joy quickly evaporated with disturbing news from another quarter.

Capt. Buddy Myer's return to the lineup at the fag-end of the Nats' home stay was seen as the greatest single influence in a revival of the Nats' good fortunes, but Harris today learned that Myer cannot be counted upon as a daily performer at his second base post.

The Nats' captain, believing that he was nearing complete recovery from his stomach ailment, suffered a relapse early today, and to Har-

Anzac Netmen Win in Davis Cup Play

Australians Are Near to Challenge Round by Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Wimdledon, England, July 20.—Australia needs only one more victory in her series with Germany to gain the challenge round in the Davis Cup tennis competition over the Teutons today in their interzone final series when the veteran Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath vanquished Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Heiner Kenkel, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, in the doubles.

The series will be concluded tomorrow with two singles matches. A victory in one of them will send Australia into the challenge round against the cup-holding English team, starting Saturday.

Australia hasn't been in a challenge round in 12 years. In 1924, the last time, the United States whitewashed Australia, five matches to none, at Philadelphia. Also, it has been 17 years since Australia last won the coveted cup.

While the Germans co-ordinated beautifully, it was the wily Crawford's cleverness that nullified their efforts. McGrath substituted for Adrian Quist, who twisted his foot in his singles encounter against Von Cramm Saturday and has been ordered by his physician to take a ten-day rest, proved a helpful partner to the gray-haired star.

The Germans fought off set point three times in the tenth game of the opening set and stubbornly won the game, but the Australians captured the next two games. Von Cramm and Henkel overcame a 2—3 deficit and won the second set with some spectacular volleying. Crawford and McGrath won the third and fourth sets with comparative ease. Although they lost a 3—0 lead in the third and at one point trailed 3—4.

Unless there is an unexpected change over night, Crawford will oppose Von Cramm and McGrath will meet Henkel tomorrow in the windup.

Steamboat Racing Returns to 'Frisco

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, July 20.—Steamboat racing, the sport the Mississippi River made famous, will be seen on San Francisco Bay next Saturday.

Two bulky ferries, which for years plied placidly on the bay, are being put in trim to revive a competition which flourished in Civil War days.

Victor McLaglen, screen star, will captain the San Francisco Press Club-sponsored Natchez. As mates he will have Lieut. Gov. George Hatfield of California and Walter Mails, funnyman of the San Francisco Seals Baseball Club.

The Robert E. Lee will be skippered by Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco, with Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, manager of the Seals, as first mate.

Cooper Wins Purse in St. Paul Open

Defeats Metz to Capture Second Straight Championship.

By the United Press.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—Harry Cooper, of Chicago, as near the perfect golfer as any player in the post-Bobby Jones era, won his second straight $5,000 St. Paul Open golf championship today with a four-stroke victory over Dick Metz in the 36-hole playoff.

Cooper, outhit from the tees, but master of every stroke in his repertoire, posted a 66—69—135, while Metz, another Chicago star, had 71—68—139.

They tied at the end of the first 72 holes with 277, but the 32-year-old veteran quickly put Metz under his thumb in the playoff with his 66 and kept him there through the blazing heat of the afternoon.

Cooper's victory, his third since the St. Paul Open was started seven years ago, brought him a purse of $1,200. Metz received $750.

Five strokes back as he started his second round, Metz, a popular favorite with the gallery which turned on Cooper the moment he went ahead, opened fire with a barrage of birdies that clipped 2 strokes off the lead.

The 26-year-old professional laced his drives consistently past Cooper's and matched every iron shot the champion riveted dead to the pin. But Metz's putter failed him in the clutches and Cooper ran out his 4-stroke victory. The 63 broke the course record.

The slim, partly bald champion jumped into the lead early in the morning round and picked up 4 strokes at the turn. Metz, pressing on the tee, repeatedly found trouble.

Veteran Guy Bush Released by Bucs

Bush came to the Pirates along with Jim Weaver and Babe Herman in a big trade with the Chicago Cubs, November 22, 1934. The Pirates gave up Freddy Lindstrom and Larry French in exchange for the three Cubs.

Bush was reving his fourteenth season in the National League. From 1928 through 1934 he was rated one of the league's finest right-handers.

Javelin Hurler Gains U. S. Coaching Berth

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Aboard S. S. Manhattan, En Route to Berlin, July 20.—Coaching assignments calculated to give America's Olympic-bound track and field athletes the best available advice and featured by the appointment of one competitor coach were announced today by Head Coach Lawson Robertson.

Lee Bartlett, tall Union City, Mich., javelin thrower, who has been a member of Uncle Sam's last three teams, was placed in charge of the javelin throwers.

The majority of the remaining events were assigned to a five-man staff besides expected assistance from such coaches as Carl Olsen, of the University of Pittsburgh, who is handling lanky Johnny Woodruff, 800-meter star, and Fred Tootell, Rhode Island State mentor and 1924 Olympic hammer-throw winner.

Robertson meted out the remain-

Bout Is First For Negro Since K.O.

Mike Jacobs Signs Pair in Place of Ross-Canzoneri Scrap.

By the United Press.

New York, July 20.—Joe Louis, Detroit's erstwhile "Brown Bomber," will launch his comeback campaign against former Heavyweight Champion Jack Sharkey, of Boston, in Yankee Stadium, August 18.

Both fighters were signed for a ten-rounder today by the Twentieth Century Club.

The fight will be staged in place of the Barney Ross-Tony Canzoneri welterweight title scrap which Mike Jacobs, Twentieth Century promoter, was trying to negotiate for that date.

Sharkey will be the fourth former champion Louis will face. After disposing of Maxie Baer and Primo Carnera in his meteoric climb to a title bout with Jimmy Braddock, Joe was knocked out in the twelfth round by Max Schmeling, of Germany, another former titleholder, in June.

The Louis scrap will be the fifth bout in the comeback campaign of 33-year-old Sharkey. Sharkey, now a Boston tavern keeper since he retired from the ring in 1933 after losing the title to Primo Carnera, has had four fights since he decided to return to the ring last winter.

His initial return engagement was the "fiasco" with unknown Winston in Boston. Then he lost and drew in succession to Tony Shucco, of Boston. His last fight was a 10-round decision over Phil Brubaker, of Dinuba, Calif.

Jacobs did not announce the percentages but it understood each fighter will receive about 25 per cent of the net gate, expected to be around $300,000. Prices for seats will range from $2 to $10.

Louis, who had been recuperating at his home in Detroit since the Schmeling fight, now is at Black's summer camp in Stevensville, Mich., rounding himself back into shape. Both fighters are expected to arrive here shortly and select training camps near New York.

The fight will give Louis an opportunity to smash back to the heavyweight heights. Sharkey, although now a comparatively "old man" has fought Schmeling twice and apparently still retains enough of his former skill to give Louis a severe test.

The winner undoubtedly will be

Brave Hans Borowik Picks U. S.

By Gayle Talbot.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Berlin, July 20.—The bravest man in Germany generally was conceded to be Hans Borowik, one of the country's foremost athletic authorities, who, sight unseen, today picked the United States to sweep 13 of the 23 Olympic track and field events, while donating only one championship to Germany.

Borowik, a former marathon runner, predicted Finland would grab three titles; Japan and England two each; Argentina and Italy one apiece.

Without batting an eye, Borowik conceded the 100 and 200 meters and the broad jump to Uncle Sam's coffee-colored Jesse Owens. He picked Archie Williams, of Oakland, Calif., to win the 400 meters; Forrest (Spec) Towns and Glen Hardin, 110 and 400 meters hurdles, respectively; Cornelius Johnson the high jump; Gordon (Slinger) Dunn the discus throw; Henry Dreyer the hammer throw; Harold Manning the steeplechase; Glenn Morris the decathlon, and America to win both the 400 and 1,600 meters relay.

Wooderson Rated.

In Borowik's opinion, which is taken seriously in Germany's England's Stanley Wooderson is rated the favorite in the 1,500 meters over Glenn Cunningham and Gene Venzke, both of whom, he said, burned themselves out racing indoors last winter.

He gives Finland the 5,000 and 10,000 meters run and the javelin throw; Japan the pole vault and the hop, step and jump; Argentina the Marathon, Germany the shot-put, Italy the 800 meters and England the 50-kilometer walk and the 1,500 meters.

The most excited group of athletes in the Olympic village are the Spaniards, who are spending more time looking for news from home than they are exercising.

The latest arivals were the Italian and Japanese track and field squads, which have been training in Finland. As customary, they were met by the official Olympic greeting band, which has spent the past year learning over 50 national anthems.

The musicians are particularly proud of their "Star-Spangled Banner," which will be unlimbered either Thursday night or Friday morning, when the Americans arrive.

All heavy truck horses and vehicles were ordered off the Unter Den Linden and Kurfurstendamm for today as garlands were strung from buildings the full length of both streets. The garlands on the Unter Den Linden adorned the Embassy of the U. S. S. R., which doesn't recognize the Olympics.

An official pronouncement guaranteed that all hot dogs sold at the stadium would weigh 8 grams exactly and that all drinks containing caffeine would be so labeled after July 25.

ThirdHighest Pay-Off in History

Knight Warrior Winner of Feature, 10,000 Out for Card.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 20.—Smashing the New England record, the daily double at Suffolk Downs brought a pay-off of $3,289.40 today when F. G. Heller's Dilwin won the first race and Bayard Tuckerman's Petard won the third. Four tickets were sold.

The previous record pay-off in New England racing occurred July 4, 1935, when the combination of Jubilargo and Uncle Donald paid $2,450.50.

The pay-off today was the third highest in the history of this form of wagering in the country. The record high pay-off is held on the combination Wanoah and Arakay, at Tropical Park, paying $7,205.40 on March 18, 1935.

Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Knight Warrior scored by a half a length over Grayson and Lowenstein's Brown Top in the mile and 70 yard Fairhaven Purse, the day's feature, before a crowd of 10,000, to pay $8.80.

Brown Top was worth $4.80 to place and Billy I returned $2.60 for show.

Billy I broke on top out of the gate with Walter M. Jefford's Giant Killer in hot pursuit and the winner held off the pace in third place. They stayed in this order until the far turn where the winner made his move.

In the drive down the stretch Billy I faded fast while Knight Warrior's effort was a smashing one from there in.

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Visigoth from the Shadybrook Stable ridden by Jockey Parke, came with a rush down the stretch in the feature event at six furlongs at Arlington Park this afternoon and conquered the Weil Stable's Lim Rosie by three-quarters of a length.

Slim Rosie led the field of six from the start, but weakened in the final jump. The Fighter, the favorite finished fast.

Visigoth, starting last, appeared hopelessly out of the race. Parke, however, took his mount to the extreme outside where the going was the best and raced to a surprise victory.

The winner ran the distance in 1:12 1-5.

Mutuels paid $10.40 to win, $5.80 to place and $3.00 to show.

DILWIN moved up stoutly on the outside in the run down the backstretch, began moving up after rounding the far turn, bore in, bothering WROUGHT IRON, and drew out in the last sixteenth. WROUGHT IRON was prominently placed all the way, was forced to take up, but came again on the inside. Phillips lodged a claim of foul against the winner, but it was disallowed. ITSIE BITSIE displayed good speed though hard hustled to show the way, unable to stave off the bids of the first two. PAMPERED, well placed, was caught in a jam nearing the far turn and had to take back. He recovered gamely, moved up on the outside leaving the backstretch, but was unable to reach the leaders.

HAPPY BOLIVAR had good speed early, though unable to keep pace when challenged. Luther lost his whip. OLD VETERAN, quickest to begin, raced well placed though unable to keep up in the drive. ARGOAN, hard hustled from the start, fought it out gamely for the command and held on willingly in the drive though no match for the winner in the closing drive. GOLDEN DUCHESS worked her way up gradually and closed with good energy through the stretch. THE REW, well placed from the beginning, was unable to keep up in the closing drive. LADY CARROT, well placed, was unable to make up any appreciable amount of ground when called upon. TUGBOAT moved up fast on the outside to get to the front only to falter after going a half mile. WISE KING tired. PRINCE DANNY had brief early speed, dropping back steadily after leaving the backstretch.

GREAT HASTE was not hurried during the early stages, began moving up on the outside leaving the backstretch, swung to the outside for the closing test and, wearing down the leaders, drew clear at the end. ROUGH PARTY, well placed and reserved early, came stoutly in the final drive. ALL FORLORN displayed keen early speed, drew away into a good lead, began tiring inside the last furlong and had to be taken up near the end when ROUGH PARTY bore in. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KNIGHT WARRIOR, $8.60, $4.20, $2.80; BROWN TOP, $4.80, $3.20; BILLY I., $2.60.

KNIGHT WARRIOR had speed from the start, fought it out, head and head, with BILLY I. for the first 7 furlongs, drew clear in the stretch and held BROWN TOP safe at the end. BROWN TOP, under slight restraint while following the leaders, closed willingly in the stretch run. BILLY I. displayed good speed in pacemaking, was unable to shake off the winner and weakened in the last three-sixteenths. GIANT KILLER was never able to reach the leaders, racing evenly all the way. RAMSHEAD was outrun. CASCAPEDIA trailed far back and raced in dull fashion.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDEN SEPTRE, $9.20, $4.60, $3.60; COHORT MISS, $10.80, $6.40; WAR PLEDGE, $6.40.

GOLDEN SEPTRE took command in the run to the first turn, was rated along in front, held on stubbornly under punishment and lasted to hold COHORT MISS. The latter, running under slight reserve early, began moving up on the outside in the last 3 furlongs and, closing stoutly through the stretch, was overtaking the winner at every stride at the end. WAR PLEDGE was restrained early, moved up on the inside around the far turn, loomed up menacingly nearing the stretch, but was unable to improve his position in the drive. STONE MARTIN, showing improvement, forced the pace of the winner and weakened in the last three-sixteenths. MIDSHIPMAN closed some ground. BLACK MAIL, well placed, faltered in the last 3 furlongs. CROWNED HEAD, unruly at the post, was never prominent. MY PURCHASE wheeled when the start came.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:37. Off at 5:41½. Winner, J. Freedman's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANNIE, $10.40, $5.60 $4.00; JUBILARGO, $10.60, $5.20; ALLENFERN, $3.00.

MANNIE outran his field from the start, drew away into a good lead, was roused repeatedly in the stretch and was never seriously threatened. JUBILARGO, in closest pursuit of the winner at rounding the first turn, moved up briefly at the stretch turn, but weakened in the last furlong though holding the place safe. ALLENFERN, outrun for the first half mile, closed ground thereafter though never a threat to the leaders and barely lasted to stall off RUNNING HEEL. The latter, unable to keep pace early, closed with a rush. CYNWYD was unable to reach the leaders. MOISSON stumbled leaving the stalls and was outrun all the way.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:12. Off at 6:14½. Winner, William H. Gallagher's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VESTED POWER, $5.20, $3.80, $2.80; TRUE CHARM, $6.00, $4.20; SWEET BROOM, $4.00.

VESTED POWER moved up steadily on the outside while under steadying restraint, drew clear, but had to be vigorously ridden at the end to outlast TRUE CHARM. The latter was well placed from the start, closed stoutly and fought it out with good energy to the end. SWEET BROOM improved her position gradually in the last 3 furlongs and closed with good courage though no threat for the first two. HOOSIERS PRIDE was never able to enter into serious contention though closing some ground. PROSECUTOR had the most early speed, faltering after going the first 5 furlongs. SICKLE HOUR never could improve his position. HONEY SWEET tired.

Sharkey lost the title to Schmeling in 1930, when he fouled the German in the fourth round. The bout was to determine a successor to Gene Tunney, who has retired.

Cochrane Back In Hospital For Rest

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 20.—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, returned to Henry Ford Hospital for observation today. He said he had suffered a recurrence of symptoms that were diagnosed tentatively as indicating hyper-thyroidism six weeks ago. A close friend said Cochrane was fearful an operation might be necessary.

Cochrane resumed his managerial duties last week after spending 10 days in the hospital here and 12 more days on a Wyoming ranch. Apparently he had responded well to the rest cure, but he suffered from dizzy spells at Boston yesterday after working out in batting practice. He consulted with his physicians immediately upon his return home today.

Wash. Church League.

Al Wright, of Calvary M. E. Church, and Paul Pizza, of Mount Vernon M. E. Church, tied for the batting leadership of the Washington Church League for the first half of the schedule, both hitting .471. Clarence Plumb was next with .450 and also led the pitchers with three wins and no losses.

District Trio Near Top in U. S. Public Links Qualifying Test

Rippy, Burton Tied at 75 In Trial

Burrows Turns in 77; Axtell Off to Bad Start With 82.

By Dave Herman.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bethpage Park, Farmingdale, N. Y., July 20.—Undaunted by a slanting rain, a long and testing course, three Washington, D. C., golfers today turned in credible performances for the first 18-hole qualifying round of the National Public Links championship.

Claude Rippy, foremost challenger from the Nation's Capital, and Bobby Burton, paced the District Harding Cup team with 75's each, while Ted Burrows rang up a 77.

Lanky Pat Axtell, fourth member of the team, got off to a bad start and wound up with 82, thus endangering his chances of making the select circle of 64 who will open fire in the match play round Wednesday.

Rippy, Burton and Burrows, starters in a record-breaking field of 220 golfers from all walks of life, are in comfortable positions to qualify easily, provided they can produce a carbon copy of their scores in tomorrow's 18-hole round.

Playing from the red course, which measures 6,468 yards, Rippy shot a 38-37, five over par, the same score registered by his playing companion, Charlie Ferrera, of San Francisco, twice former champion.

Tackling the more difficult blue course, a 6,710-yarder, the bespectacled Burton also scored 38-37, three over par.

Dolan, a six-footer, who says he play only two rounds of golf a week, grabbed the lead earlier in the afternoon with a sparkling 71 over the red course, and a few hours later over the same layout Conolly came along to match this one-over-par performance.

Tie for Second.

Virtually assuring himself of a qualifying berth, defending champion, Frankie Strafaci, of Brooklyn, protege of Washington's Wiffy Cox, breezed along beautifully in 73 strokes, thereby proving that he will be a tough customer in this championship.

Tommy got a 74, Ralph a 75. They went right up the ladder, with the result that they pushed Brooklyn's four-man team into the van in the battle for the Harding Cup team championship by a one-stroke margin. Their Italian teammate, Olin Cerrocki, shot a 77, giving the Brooklyn team a 299 total.

With Seattle second, San Antonio third and San Francisco fourth, Washington's Harding Cuppers held fifth place with a 309 total—10 shots from the Brooklyn boys.

Sixty-nine golfers had scores of 77 or better, and three of this number were from Washington.

Burrows Star.

For a while today it appeared that a District golfer, Ted Burrows, would take over the lead. At the end of nine holes the big, fat poultry salesman, whose only competitive golf is played in the District Municipal Championship and the National—provided he qualifies—had a dazzling 35, one under par. It was one of the three best nine-hole rounds of the day. Burrows scored three birdies on that outgoing side and was going great guns until an unplayable lie on the short tenth cost him a 5. Ted made the mistake of putting too many eggs in one basket on that second nine, struggled for his 42—a far cry from that great score for the outgoing side.

Olympic Team Coaches Are Announced

Brutus Hamilton, University of California coach: Decathalon and shot put, in addition to personally supervising Glenn Cunningham, a former pupil and America's main hope in the 1,500 meters. E. C. (Billy) Hayes, Indiana University: 800 meters, excepting Woodruff; steeplechase, 5,000 and 10,000 meters and 400-meter hurdles. Dean Cromwell, University of Southern California: Discuss, 400 meters and pole vault, plus Southern Californians in other events. George V. Brown, Boston: 50,000-meter walk and marathon.

Robertson will supervise the sprinters and the 400-meter relay. The few remaining assignments, including the high jump and the 100-meter high hurdles, will be made later.

Coaches like Larry Snyder from Ohio State and Francis Welch, coach of Archie San Romani, Emporia, Kans., State Teachers, 1,500-meter star, may also be consulted.

Robertson took time out to deny that the 400-meter relay team—Sam Stoller, Cincinnati; Matthew (Mack) Robinson, Pasadena, Calif., Junior College; Foy Draper, University of Southern California, and Marty Glickman, Brooklyn—which the track and field committee named this morning, represent the selections. But he conceded it was the most likely combination with the possible exception of Robinson.

The task of solving Jack Torrance's weight problem apparently has taken care of itself. Due to a tuch of mal de mer, the big Southern shot putter dropped 16 pounds to 308. However, neither he nor officials were worried because he heaved the shot 54 feet in practice before sailing.

The University of Washington's oarsmen all regained lost poundage. Stroke Don Hume went from 159 to 165 in one day, while Herb Morris, No. 1, oar, regained five pounds to tip the scales at 172.

Flyweight Boxer Louis Laurie, of Cleveland, presented somewhat of a problem. He has eaten himself into the featherweight class, picking up 8 pounds in two days. He hopes to lose them before landing.

Police Club No. 11 Wins Over Northeast Nine

Despite three home runs in the first inning by Welch, Michael and Lombardy of Northeast Boys Club, the Police Boys Club No. 11 nine won a 10-9 victory yesterday in a Columbian League game. A double by Dickie Farr with the bases loaded in the final inning and a single by Colvin brought the Police Boys from a 9-7 deficit to 10-9.

Playground Net Semifinals Today

A quartet of young ladies aged about 15 and 16 will take the Chevy Chase Playground courts this morning at 10 o'clock to battle for the two final round berths in the annual District girls' playground tennis championships.

Champion Willie O'Steen, of Virginia avenue, faces formidable Charlotte Decker, of Janney and Lucille McDowell of Burroughs, encounters Hazel (Jimmy) Bishopp, of Takoma Park. For Miss O'Steen and Miss Decker, today's match will be somewhat of a re-enactment of their semifinal collision last year.

In that match the bespectacled lassie from Janney bowed to Willie by scores of 6—1, 6—8, 6—2, but since then she has added a strong backhand stroke to her repertoire. Her game has consequently improved immensely. Most observers term her the most improved player on the playgrounds.

Miss O'Steen, one of the tournament's most confident players, has rushed to the semifinals without losing a set, demonstrating sharp, accurate, hard-hit strokes. Charlotte's most notable triumph was her three-set victory in the quarterfinals over Helen Orme, twice a finalist in the tournament.

Welsh Enjoys Rest, Passes Up Tourney

By John R. Vosburgh.

Authorities were looking for Barney Welsh yesterday up in Brookline, Mass., but they didn't find him. Barney was some 400 miles away in Rockville, Md. The authorities—tennis authorities—were counting on the young man from Rockville because he was the No. 7 seeded man in the annual Longwood Bowl tennis tournament, but they finally had to default him.

Barney, meanwhile, was taking a much-needed rest at his Rockville residence. He was sorry he had to default his first-round match at Longwood to Jack Devalle, of Los Angeles, but Barney felt sorier for his own fatigued physique.

The truth of the matter is, young Mr. Welsh is very, very stale and he is refrigerating himself, so to speak. Barney has been playing tournament tennis without a let up now for seven straight weeks and is calling time out for a week. Next week he resumes his tournament saga at Seabright and will have four straight weeks of tennis after that.

Barney had no sooner waded through his law exams at George Washington in May than he entered the City of Washington tournament. For the next six weeks he competed in the New England States, National Clay Courts, Middle States, District, Spring Lake and White Sulphur, W. Va., annual tournaments. He won the City of Washington, New England, Middle States and District tournaments and lost to Robert Riggs, National Clay Courts champion in the Clay Courts, and to Frankie Parker, defending champion in the Spring Lake tourney.

Runners Start 'Eternal Flame' On Way to '36 Olympic Games

By the United Press.

Olympia, Greece, July 20.—Runners in half-mile relays raced through Greece tonight bearing the torch which will be used to light the "eternal flame" at the Olympic games in Berlin on August 1.

Lighted by the sun's rays at the holy altar in ancient Olympia where the games were first staged, the torch will be carried by some 3,000 youths and men in its flaming 1,800-mile journey through Greece, Bulgaria, Jugoslavia, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Germany.

Constantine Condylis, a Greek, had the honor of starting the torch on its way at 1:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EDT) today, and by the time it reaches the Olympic scene it will have passed thorugh such hands as those of young King Peter of Yugoslavia and King Boris of Bulgaria.

Greece will hold a monster festival when the torch is carried into the white-marbled Athenian stadium tomorrow night in Athens. An estimated 70,000, including King George, Crown Prince Paul, high government officials and foreign diplomats will participate.

The torch then will be carried to Mount Olympus where a fire will be lighted on Mitica, its highest summit.

Judd Is Ousted In Parks Net Tourney

Shenkin Upsets Seeded Star in Two Sets, by 6—4, 6—3.

Dean Judd and his steel racquet were tolled out of the annual Public Parks tennis tournament at Rock Creek yesterday with a 6—4, 6—3 defeat at the hands of big Herb Shenkin, the unseeded "dark horse." Big Herb thus accomplished the first upset of the tournament for the quiet Mr. Judd was seeded No. 8.

Aside from the elimination of the poker-faced veteran from the Bureau of Standards, the fourth-round matches yesterday failed to produce any startling results. Sara Moore, the defending champion of the women's tournament, swamped Edith Foye, 6—0, 6—0 to gain the quarterfinals while Mrs. Dorette Miller, Mrs. Frances Walker Bassett and Mrs. Peggy Keyser Smith, all advanced to the semifinals.

Pat Deck, the No. 1 seeded entrant in the men's event, defeated Hy Ritzenberg, 7—5, 6—0. Hy's unorthodox tactics had the top-seeded man in considerable difficulty in the first set but Deck, hitting out severely, outlasted his untiring opponent despite the latter's consistent retrieving.

Heacock Loses.

Nate Ritzenberg, seeded No. 2, took the measure of Charlie Heacock, 6—4, 6—1 and will meet Morgan (Happy) Jacob, former Georgetown University player, in the quarterfinals today at 4 p. m. Jacob is seeded No. 1, but eliminated Charlie Groff, 6—4, 6—2.

Allie Ritzenberg found a stubborn obstacle in his path in Joe Baker, but finally won out 6—1, 2—6, 6—4. The youthful No. 4 seeded played took a 6—1 lead in the third set only to see Baker come up to 5—4 before being able to pull out the game, set and match.

Arthur Simmons, seeded No. 5, is slated to play Kent Boyle, today at 4 p. m. in a fourth-round match.

Peggy Keyser Smith and Frances Walker Bassett, both of whom are making comeback attempts, each won in straight sets. Mrs. Smith disposed of Gladys Schellin 6—2, 6—3 and Mrs. Bassett eliminated Joan Bransford, 6—2, 6—2. Mrs. Miller won from Dorothy Kingsbury, 6—0, 6—4.

Ann Bono Sets 2 Swimming Records

Local Star Keeps Two Titles in D. C. Tank Championships.

While 10 new champions were being crowned in the 13 events held, little Ann Bono not only held on to her two titles in the 50 and 100 yard free style events in the annual District swimming championships last night in the Takoma pool, but smashed two existing District records in doing so.

The tiny Western High graduate flashed over the short sprint in 30 1-5 seconds to break her own mark by a fifth of a second and lead fast-stroking Ann Aronson, of the Ambassador, to the wire by a comfortable margin.

A little later Miss Bono came out and once again it was a battle between the two Anns. The champion proceeded to retain her title in the record-breaking time of 1 minute 12 seconds. Her time bettered the former record held by Rita Augusterfer by 1 2-5 seconds.

Miss Bono was one of the two competitors of the evening to retain the championships they won last year. Leonora Taube hung on to her 100-yard breast stroke diadem despite the opposition of Margaret Hoffman, former Olympic swimmer, who more or less engaged in a workout. Miss Taube also won the 150-yard medley swim, which she won last year.

The Central Y. M. C. A. again won the men's team prize with a total of 43 points, as compared with 18 for the Ambassador, its nearest competitor. Miss Aronson took the women's individual high point trophy, won last year by Miss Taube. The Ambassador girl accumulated 16 points to Miss Taube's 14, and 21 for Florence Farwell, of the Shoreham.

Miss Aronson set the one other record established during the evening, winning the 100-yard back stroke in 2 minutes 28 4-5 seconds, to break the former record of 1 minute 29 1-5 seconds, held by Miss Taube, the former champion, who finished third.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

En Route to Chicago, July 20.

Venturing into the West for the third time this season, the Washington ball club, even as a sixth-place team, is in a position to establish itself as the standout surprise of the 1936 season, or confirm the preseason suspicion that it is only a sixth-place outfit.

For all their failures on their late, lamented home stay which saw 'em lose 9 of 15 games, the Nats are only a game and a half removed from the first division, only 3½ games in the rear of second place. Their pennant ambitions, even those that existed only in the craniums of the super-optimists, appear blasted, but a high station in the league standings still awaits 'em if they can present their full strength.

POVICH.

If, perchance, the Nats, with a successful tour through the West, should climb into second place, they will qualify as the sensation of the 1936 race. Before the season started they were condemned, almost unanimously to the second division. To mention the Nats in the same breath with the Tigers and Red Sox and Indians was sure-fire to draw a laugh, yet look what we have.

With the season ten games beyond the half-way mark, Washington is only 3½ games behind the second-place Indians, 2½ games to the rear of the third-place Red Sox, and a game and a half behind the fourth-place Tigers. And the Nats, it must be pointed out, have been operating all season without the services of the man who was perhaps the greatest performer in the league last season.

If a Washington ball club that was supposed to include Buddy Myer and even then supposed to finish far down in the second division can make a vigorous fight for a first-division berth without the services of the league batting champion of 1935, then that team cannot be sold short.

Before many days, Myer is slated to return to the Washington lineup regularly. Thus bolstered, the Nats will present a batting order that figures to offset in a great measure its greatest handicap—pitching weakness.

The Washington pitching, until last week, was the surprise of the current campaign; Jimmy DeShong's flying start which saw him amass 11 victories against 4 defeats; Buck Newsom's consistent performances after the first month of the season, and Earl Whitehill's apparent return to his 1933 form kept the club in the first-division fight.

And now, Manager Bucky Harris has apparently been successful in his search for his fourth starting pitcher. Monte Weaver, after several impressive relief shifts, won his first start in six weeks with a grand performance against the Indians. Weaver, once a great pitcher, knows how to pitch and suffered only from a lack of physical strength. His stamina apparently has returned and the 16,000 who saw the hop on Weaver's fast ball at Griffith Stadium on Sunday saw a pitcher who now means much to the Nats' staff.

In the West on the current trip, the Nats will be invading hotbed after hotbed, with the Indians, Tigers and White Sox now waging a serious battle to move into a challenging position against the Yankees. The Nats are asked to meet the three clubs who are playing the best ball in the league at this writing. The current trip will make a first-division club out of Washington or probably consign the Nats to the second division for the remainder of the season.

Ionas Top Rajahs, 5-2; Gain in Race

One of the closest races in the Post Sandlot Association is being waged in the Atlantic & Pacific League in which the last place team is only two games and a half out of first place. Bokar's victory over Encore because the latter team failed to put nine men on the field put the Bokar club a half-game behind the league-leading Condors.

Pirates Defeat Yanks, 7-2, in Exhibition

Pittsburgh, July 20 (AP).—Getting good pitching from Waite Hoyt and Johnny Welch, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the New York Yankees, 7-2, in an exhibition game played before 2,500 today.

Making his first mound appearance since an appendectomy two months ago, Hoyt limited the American Leaguers to six hits in the six innings he worked and blanked the Yanks except for Lou Gehrig's home run into the rightfield stands in the sixth. The Pirates put together triples by Gus Suhr, Hal Finney and Woody Jensen and singles by Young, Hoyt and Paul Waner for six runs in the second.

Wheat Climbs, Corn Declines In Grain Pits

A Third of Wheat Acreage in Canada Reported a Failure.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Sensational reports of Canadian crop damage, with nearly one-third of Canada's acreage asserted to be now practically a failure, lifted wheat values strongly today.

New Lumber Orders Below Production

The lumber industry during the week ended July 11 stood at 66 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 60 per cent of 1929 shipments. For the thirteenth consecutive week new orders were below production. Shipments also fell below output.

Reported production during the week ended July 11 of one per cent fewer mills was 10 per cent above revised production figures of the preceding holiday week; shipments were 9 per cent below and new orders 8 per cent above that week, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

Sales of Jewelry Largest in 7 Years

New York, July 20.—"The generally improved industrial conditions, with the concomitant enlarged pay rolls, are indicated unequivocally in the persistent consumer interest in jewelry," say Dun & Bradstreet in their weekly review, which adds:

"Shifting decidedly from the low and medium-priced grades which marked the expansion of sales in 1934 and 1935, distribution for the first half of 1936 had its largest bulk in the better grades of American watches, silverware, gold jewelry, precious stones and diamonds. This lifted the volume of retail sales 20 to 30 per cent over the 1935 comparative, making the best showing for the period since 1929."

Week's Steel Rate Up to 70.9 Per Cent

New York, July 20 (AP).—The rate of operations in the steel industry this week was estimated at 70.9 per cent of capacity by the American Iron & Steel Institute today, an increase of 1.9 points.

Last week operations were 69.0 per cent, a month ago 70.2 per cent and a year ago 42.2 per cent.

Stock Tone Holds Firm With Some Irregularity Due to Profit-Taking; Wheat Higher.

New York, July 20.—Stocks were strong much of the time and no worse than mildly irregular at the worst in a turnover of around 1,500,000 shares. Confidence in higher prices was still abundant, but the change in the weather seemed to be favorable for the growth of profit taking sentiment. Bonds were higher in the Government list. Gains and cotton moved ahead. September wheat closed 1⅜ cents higher at 107⅛ cents a bushel.

Rail shares were the best of the major groups. Fractions to 2 points were scored in the active issues, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern and Union Pacific were the strongest and Southern Pacific the most active. Cotton Belts drew attention. Coppers were well liked, and especially well talked among the brokerage house board rooms. The rise in export copper prices will, it is predicted, result in an increase from the present 9½ cents a pound domestic price. Steels were firmer, and farm implements recovered 1 to 3 points. Another buoyant group was the rubbers. U. S. Rubber and Goodrich were the leaders.

Railroad equipments were mixed. Steel Foundries, General American Transportation and Pullman continued the favorites among the buyers. Amusement shares improved, as did the mail orders. Airplanes failed to move as a unit. Douglas weakened, but Sperry advanced. In the chemical sector Du Pont rose to the highest price in several years on a good earnings statement.

I. T. T. Weak.

Prices were firm in the oil and motor accessory group. Goods and tobaccos were hesitant. National Biscuit hardened, but National Dairy Products was a trifle sour. Profit taking held down Philip Morris. Consolidated Edison, one of the few utilities to show a loss last week, came back more than a point to a new high price for the year on increased dividend talk. International Telephone was soft on the communist uprising in Spain.

Motors were active. Chrysler touched the best price since 1929 in rising a point, but later receded. Yellow Truck was pushed ahead quickly on large volume. General Motors held around 70. A good deal of Consolidated Textile changed hands, most of it going at 50 cents a share.

The exchange market watched the peseta closely but nothing happened beyond a slight recession, to reflect the revolutionary movement in Spain, which had been predicted by bank officials here who had visited Spain lately. Pesetas receded to about 13.69 cents, off four points, and then recovered to about 13.70 cents. It was assumed that a few supporting orders, in a market always small, had come through official avenues through Paris or London.

Money Market Steady.

No further disturbance occurred in the money market, which has accepted the increase begun last week in acceptances. That rise was not large enough to make much difference, but it was held to indicate a trend. The market is rather expecting a slightly firmer tone in Treasury bills. At any rate, the feeling among the banks is general that the nadir of the money market has been passed, although no real stiffening in rates is anticipated for a long time.

Government bonds nevertheless continued to recover a little, but most observers set the firmer tone to Federal support and to short coverings by dealers, many of whom had gone short several days ago. Views on Government bonds are as various as those on stocks, with the consensus being that we now are having an intermediate rally, but that the decline will have ended and given way to better prices before the September financing comes along. That at least is according to "rote."

Trade Increases.

Trade news over the week end was rather cheerful, except in so far as repercussion may be felt from the rioting in Spain, where a strong current of Communism is said to be running. Spain in itself is not important enough commercially to give foreign trade a major dsturbance, but the fever of revolt is contagious. More rain fell in the arid West and the drought seems definitely in the background as a trade factor. It remains to count the cot with the autumn harvests, but improvement rather than further damage now is indicated.

On the industrial side, the steel industry justified hopes of greater activity. The operating rate this week, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, will rise to 70.9 per cent, against 69 per cent last week and 42.2 per cent a year ago. The rate this week will be the highest for any six-day week since April 27, when it stood at 71.2. It reached a peak of 74 in the five-day week of June 29. With the passing of the strike threat and the maintenance of an exceptionally high midsummer rate of operations in steel, it is difficult to conjure any violent setback in the speculative market during the next few weeks.

Tax Anticipation.

If the rate at which this week's $50,000,000 Treasury bills is awarded is not indicative of what many authorities think is a slightly firmer money market trend, the explanation probably will be set down to special demands for the bills from Chicago banks, which are credited with buying most of the bills recently offered and which fall due on April 14. This week's issue matures on April 21, 1937. Chicago banks try to obtain supplies of Treasury bills falling due immediately after Illinois's moneyed capital tax is assessed each year, namely April 1. The banks resell the securities to customers who, when they have liquid funds invested in Government securities, escape a portion of the tax. Last year Chicago banks were credited with buying some $200,000,000 of Government securities which were sold to customers in late March and resold to the banks, or permitted to mature, immediately after the tax date.

Delay.

Mention was made in this column a few days ago of the liquidation of a director's holdings in Arkansas Natural Gas, which began last September but which was not reported to the SEC until this month. It would appear that one part of the SEC act is about as good or bad as another, and that in any event those sections which are applied to one ought to be applied to all. That is nevertheless not the policy of the SEC, so far as can be learned from those who have asked a few questions at Washington.

Leniency.

Inquiry brings an explanation about as follows: SEC is taking a tolerant attitude toward firms which for one reason or another have failed to meet the requirements for reports on sales within 10 days on the previous month's business. The commission is leniently listening to excuses until all organizations have no excuse of ignorance or inability to make the proper returns. Many requests are received for delay. The matter of an officer being in the hospital, and others, are being accepted with warning. At the present time no action is contemplated, and this applies to delay in the case of Arkansas Natural Gas.

Steel Quotations.

Copper Sales To Overseas Exceed 1929

U. S. Consumption Falls Off to Half of Total in That Year.

New York, July 20.—Deliveries of refined copper by North and South American producers to consumers in the United States declined from 1,119,000 short tons in 1929 to 336,000 tons in 1932 and then rose to 580,000 tons in 1935, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Copper consumption in the United States last year was thus little more than half as large as in 1929 despite three years of expansion.

The foreign market for copper showed a much greater improvement. Deliveries to foreign consumers by North and South American producers rose from 289,000 tons in 1932 to 634,000 tons in 1935, or to a higher figure than in 1929 when foreign deliveries amounted to 587,000 tons. Whereas in 1929, the United States' market for copper was nearly double the foreign market, the foreign market in 1935 was larger than the United States' market.

Preliminary figures covering the first six months of 1936 indicate that the expansion of copper consumption in foreign countries may have temporarily come to an end in 1935. Foreign consumption in the first six months was 7.2 per cent smaller than in the same period last year. This curtailment, however, was more than offset by a continuation of the expansion movement in the United States.

Consumption of copper in this country during the first six months was 46.6 per cent larger than in the corresponding period of 1935. Consequently, world consumption showed an increase of 9.2 per cent over al year ago.

Stock Seat $130,000, Advance of $5,000

New York, July 20 (AP).—Following an increase in stock market activity last week to the highest since early May, a New York stock exchange membership sold today at an advance of $5,000.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of an exchange seat at $130,000, compared with $125,000 on July 14, the exchange announced. The latest price is a gain of $30,000, from the year's low of $100,000 on May 4. The year's high of $174,000 was on February 19.

Associated Power Output.

New York, July 20.—An increase of 10.8 per cent in electric output to 78,130,648 units is reported by Associated Gas & Electric System for the week ended July 11, in comparison with a year ago.

Industry Tops Previous Highs For Recovery

New York, July 20 (AP).—Rising another notch, industrial activity registers its seventh consecutive thrust into the highest ground for the recovery move. Measured by the Associated Press index, activity stepped up to 93.1 of the 1929-30 average, compared with 92.6 last week and 71.7 a year ago.

Total carloadings rose sharply to the best level of the year with merchandise and grain shipments forcing the index to a five-year peak.

Residential building also made a new top. Contracts for new homes continue to be let in greater numbers though the seasonal peak has passed.

Steel operations rebounded from last week's drastic decline, with orders holding up well. Automobile output slipped less than was expected because large retail sales have been steadily cutting into stocks.

The index, its seasonally adjusted indices based on the latest available statistics, and with 1929-30 as 100, follows:

Lead Production.

The American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports June lead production in the United States totaled 38,818 tons compared with 41,551 in May and 33,002 in June, 1935. Shipments amounted to 37,736 tons against 33,125 in May and 26,978 a year ago.

DIRECTORY of the CAPITAL'S MOST DESIRABLE APARTMENTS

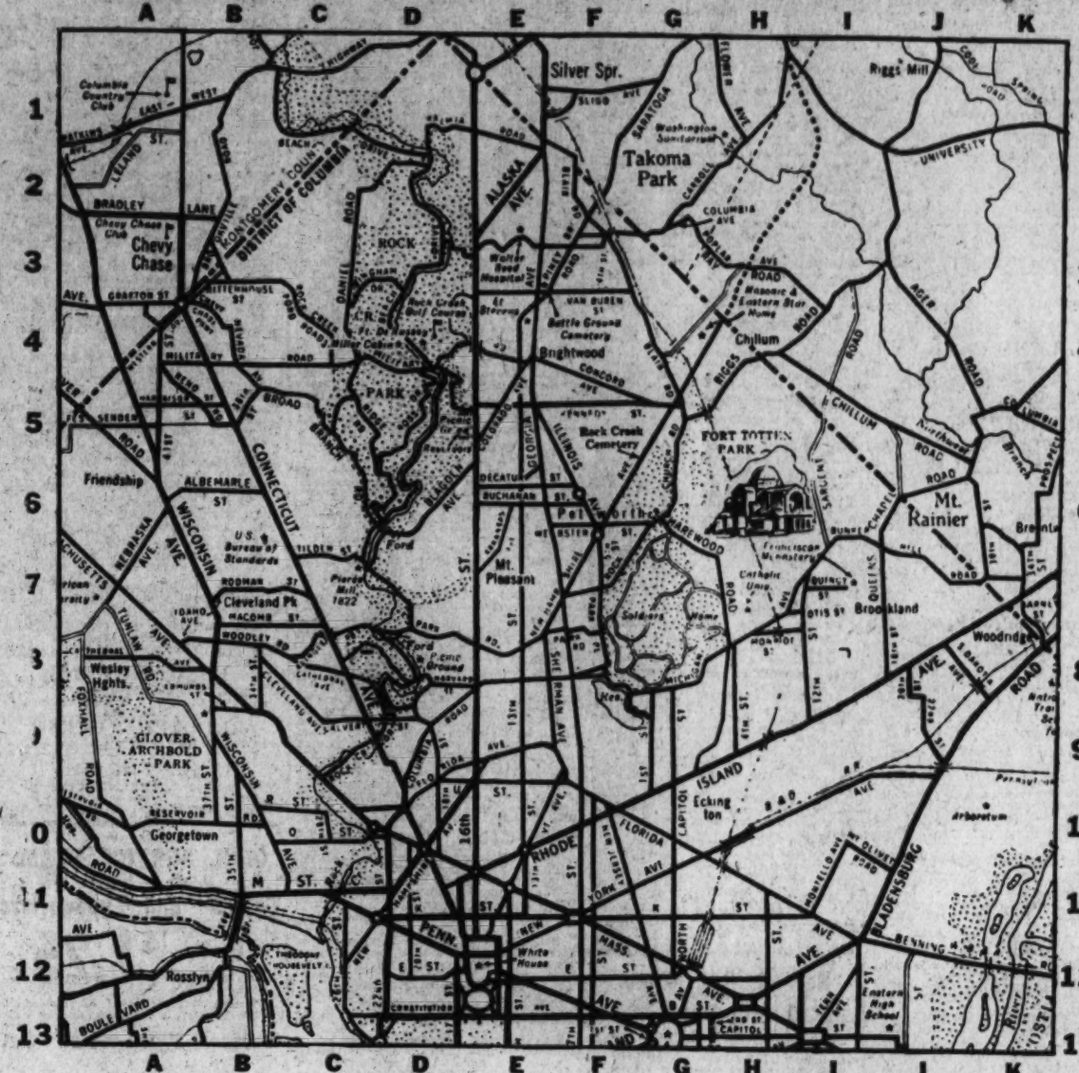
—AND HOW TO FIND THEM



Courtesy of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

YOU'LL FIND THAT THE BEST APARTMENTS ARE LISTED IN THE CLASSIFIED COLUMNS OF THE POST

Credit to China Given by U. S., Tokyo Reports

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, July 21 (Tuesday).—Reports on an agreement for a large American credit to China to purchase airplanes, automobiles and railway rolling stock were contained in dispatches from Shanghai printed in vernacular newspapers today.

A majority of the papers treated the reported plan as a menace to Japan's interests in China.

The Nichi Nichi's correspondent asserted Arthur Campbell, a United States financial representative, and T. V. Soong, president of the Bank of China, signed the agreement at the United States consulate at Shanghai July 15.

"Since the credit was virtually used to bolster China's national defense, Japan cannot overlook it," the newspaper said.

Limited to Silver Deal.

Accounts of the reported agreement differed, but most of them said it was linked to the recent silver purchase program negotiated in Washington between Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and K. P. Chen of China. Under that plan the United States will purchase silver worth $26,000,000 from China in 1936.

Nichi Nichi asserted the new transaction "is far larger than the 100,000,000-yuan Sino-German agreement" reported by Japanese sources, June 27, which was said to include purchase of about $30,000,000 of German products by China.

It is said the British firm of Arnold & Co. and the British Hongkong-Shanghai Banking Corporation participated in the Sino-American negotiations at Shanghai, and that a British understanding which might include participation evidently was obtained.

Pact With Filipinos.

The same newspaper asserted Chen, while returning from the United States, stopped at Manila and concluded a pact between China and the Philippines under which the islands would agree to restrict imports from Japan and increase purchases from China.

The correspondent declared "this pact contains further provisions which will surprise Japan."

An official spokesman, however, declined comment, saying he lacked information.

Deaf Alumni Expected To Reopen Controversy

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., July 20.—The vociferous assault of deaf alumni of the Virginia School for the Deaf and the Blind against the administration of Superintendent Howard M. McManaway is expected to be renewed here this week when the alumni association holds its annual convention.

Stonewall Jackson Hotel will be convention headquarters, and approximately 200 former students of the State institution are expected to attend. Entertainment planned includes a reception at the hotel at 8 p. m. Thursday, outing in Gypsy Hill Park on Friday evening and a banquet Saturday evening.

For several years the deaf alumni have severely criticised the administration of Superintendent McManaway and his method of teaching the deaf. Several commissions have made investigations at the school, and the board of visitors has conducted a number of public hearings.

Sailor Is Drowned In Plunge From Ship

Baltimore, July 20 (AP).—A 27-year-old Dutch sailor, Charles Koster, fell from the steamship Jobs' Haven into the harbor today and drowned.

Police said they were told Koster lost his balance while sitting on the rail amidships. The police boat Robert D. Carter recovered the body.

A. Kwikas, a fireman, and Y. Emory, a steward on the vessel, threw Koster a life preserver and a rope, but he sank and failed to reappear.

Will Fight the Battle of Manassas

Manassas Battle To Be Restaged This Afternoon

Soldiers and Marines Ready for Event; Throng to See Spectacle.

ginia hills and fields will be littered with the wounded and the dying. But today will have a happier ending. When the exhibition is over at 4 o'clock the soldiers, in their denim uniforms, will get up and march away to join their companions-in-arms.

In the sham fighting 150,000 rounds of ammunition will be fired, sending up clouds of smoke and tongues of flame as the cries of the wounded soldiers echo above the tumult of the battle. Primitive, horse-drawn ambulances will carry away the injured while the drummer boys urge the men in uniform on through the thick of the firing.

No detail has been overlooked in making the re-enactment seem realistic, those in charge of the exhibition announced yesterday. Soldiers of the United States Army will represent the Confederates while the Fifth United States Marines will take the part of the Federals.

A brief concert by the Marine Band at 1:30 p. m. today will start the proceedings. At the conclusion of the musical program the Right Rev. H. St. George Tucker, Bishop of Virginia, will pronounce the invocation and then, at 1:45, State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, presiding officer, will introduce several officials of the celebration.

Gov. Peery of Virginia will present Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Richmon editor and biographer of Robert E. Lee, who will give a narrative account of the battle at 2 p. m. over a loud speaker system. At the conclusion of the narrative the fighting will begin with Maj. Stonewall Jackson portraying the famous general for whom he was named, and Col. Charles J. Miller commanding the opposing forces.

When the last shot has been fired and the last soldier has left the battlefield, cavalry and artillery exhibition drills will be presented, followed by combat manuevers of the Marine Air Force.

Admission to the scene of the re-enactment is free. The entire celebration has been planned by the Manassas Battlefield Park Association, the National Park Service and the Manassas-Prince William County Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with the State Commission on Conservation and Development. In addition to observing the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle, it marks the beginning of the development of the Manassas battlefields as a unit of the National Park Service in Virginia.

Yerkes Confirms Finding of Comet

Williams Bay, Wis., July 20 (AP).—Discovery of a second comet was announced tonight by Yerkes Observatory astronomers engaged in studying Peltier's comet.

The new comet was first sighted by a Japanese star gazer named Kaho on July 17, observatory officials said. He messaged Yerkes requesting them to confirm his find.

Pangborn, Centennial Split Over Paris Flight

Dallas, July 20 (AP).—In an atmosphere of tense disagreement, Clyde Pangborn left in his "flying wing" airplane today on a series of short hops to New York—still hopeful of ultimately flying to Paris.

The Texas Centennial Exposition, through Frank N. Watson, publicity director, said it had canceled its sponsorship agreement. Pangborn also admitted a split, asserting the Centennial had given him nothing but a name for his ship and some publicity. Watson said the agreements were canceled because flight backers had not lived up to their agreements.

All Slot Machines Gone at Deadline

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 20.—With the deadline at last midnight for the withdrawal of all types of gambling machines from places of business in Washington County passed, county authorities announced today they had been informed that all of the machines had disappeared. Some of the machines have been sent by owners into adjacent States where their operation is not unlawful.

Last week Sheriff Max Malott announced that he would confiscate slot machines and all other types of gambling machines found either in operation or displayed in places of business, and would prosecute the possessors. The sheriff's action came after a deluge of complaints.

Ship Collision Blamed by Pilot On Bay Vessel

Its Position Responsible for Crash, Officer on Freighter Says.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 20.—The Federal Board of Steamboat Inspectors heard testimony today that the position of the bay steamer State of Virginia was responsible for the collision that jarred its 200 passengers Tuesday night.

Officers and crew of the freighter Golden Harvest, which rammed the excursion boat amidships outside the harbor, testified the passenger vessel was on the wrong side of the 400-foot channel at the time but the freighter with which it collided was in correct position.

Tomorrow, members of the crew of the State of Virginia will give their version of the crash that brought a near-tragic end to the excursion-convention of the Automobile Trade Association of Maryland.

Both Ships Damaged.

Gov. Harry W. Nice and other State officials were aboard the steamer at the time. No one was injured seriously. Both ships were damaged badly, the steamer later grounding and filling with water.

Capt. Paul H. Tyler and David C. Young, steamboat inspectors, are conducting the inquiry into the hitherto unexplained collision in the darkness off Seven Foot Knoll.

Capt. Jesse Foster, pilot aboard the Golden Harvest, said:

"I should say the chief cause of the collision was the inbound ship's being on the wrong side of the channel. There is nothing else."

Light Was "Discernible."

Capt. Foster said the green light on the right side of the State of Virginia was "clearly discernible" as she came into the channel.

"We sounded two whistles and continued on our course without a change in speed," he said. "The Virginia answered with two whistles and continued on the west side of the channel without altering her course. We sounded two more blasts which were also answered.

"The State of Virginia suddenly swung to her right across our bow and then for the first time we could see her red light on her left side. That was but a few seconds before the crash. We swung hard to our right and reversed the engines but could not avoid the collision."

Tanker's Crew Arms For Fighting in Strike

New Orleans, July 20 (U.P.).—Officers of the oil tanker Henry M. Dawes, docked upriver at Destjehan, tonight armed themselves with shotguns and revolvers in answer to a threat to "pull the crew off the ship."

A score of pickets of the International Seamen's Union from New Orleans reportedly were gathering for a second all-night vigil just outside the Pan-American Petroleum Co. wharf, where the tanker was moored.

The pickets sought to prevent the tanker's sailing early tomorrow without union recognition.

Virginia Lutherans Hear Dr. C. B. Foelsch

Massanetta Springs, Va., July 20 (AP).—An address by Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, of Sunbury, Pa., marked the opening tonight of the eighth annual summer assembly of Virginia Lutherans here.

Dr. J. Luther Sieber, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Roanoke, and dean of the assembly, presented members of the faculty and guest speakers.

U. S. Fights Child Paralysis Spread in Southern States

In its fight to keep infantile paralysis from spreading beyond the borders of Alabama and Tennessee, the United States Public Health Service has sent Dr. Alexander G. Gilliam to Kentucky, it was learned yesterday. He will use there the same spray preventive Dr. Charles Armstrong invented and is using in the epidemic areas.

Although no cases have been reported in Kentucky, the people there are concerned over the epidemic, Health Service officials explained.

The disease within the last week, they reported, has shifted the center of its attack from Alabama to Tennessee, but is on the wane in both States.

In the seven-day period ending last Saturday night, 29 new cases were reported in Alabama, a drop of 53 from the preceding week. Within the same period in Tennessee, however, the cases increased from 12 for the week ending July 11 to 23 for the week ending last Saturday night.

Concentrate on Border.

Health Service officials pointed out that infantile paralysis is reaping about the usual harvest throughout the United States this summer, a condition that is considerably better than that which prevailed last year, when an epidemic raged in Virginia and parts of Maryland. Last week there were 135 cases reported throughout the country. A year ago last week there were 191. Average for the same seven-day period in the last eight years is 128.

Fourth Death.

Nashville, Tenn., July 20 (AP).—Tennessee registered its fourth infantile paralysis death and the disease struck into the ranks of Alabama's public health service today, while Mississippi reported no new cases in a tri-State outbreak.

Dr. W. J. B. Ownings, Escambia County health officer, was one of three stricken, Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama health officer reported monday.

Of the total, Alabama has 178; Tennessee, 38, and Mississippi, 11.

Dr. W. C. Williams, Tennessee health commissioner, and Dr. Charles Armstrong, of the U. S. Public Health Service, opened an intensive central campaign, meeting with health authorities at Lawrenceburg, and explaining an experimental nasal spray preventive.

The spray, 100 per cent effective in animal tests, already is being extensively used in Alabama, where Armstrong visited last week.

Diner Wounded; Assailant Flees

Edward O'Brien, 30, of the 2100 block of F street northwest, was shot and painfully wounded in both legs early today during an agrument in a restaurant near Second street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

The vfctim refused to name his assailant, with whom he had been drinking and dining. The gun wielder, police learned, escaped in an automobile.

O'Brien was given first aid at Providence Hospital. He then was transferred to Gallinger. Physicians said his condition is not serious.

Man's Body Recovered From Eastern Branch

The body of James Allen, colored, 30, of Chapel road, Md., who was drowned in the Eastern Branch near the Benning viaduct, Sunday, was recovered in front of Bailey's boathouse last night.

Alfred W. Booth, of 616 Minnesota avenue northeast, found Allen's body. It was taken to the District Morgue and identified by an aunt of Allen's.

Address of Glass Attacked by Page

Richmond, Va., July 20 (AP).—State Senator Henry T. Wickham revealed today that Roswell Page, one-time candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia, had criticized Senator Carter Glass' speech at the Hanover County Patrick Henry bicentennial celebration last Friday.

Senator Glass said in his extemporaneous speech that "we have a Government of privilege and discrimination" such as Henry denounced before the House of Burgesses.

Wickham said in reply to Page that he regretted to see the Glass speech had been used "to give aid and comfort to the enemies of Mr. Roosevelt," but that "Senator Glass was privileged to say what he pleased."

"We never have lost any votes by recognizing the right of free speech," the State senator added today. "Hanover can be counted upon to give its full Democratic vote to Mr. Roosevelt."

New Amplifiers For Watergate On Wednesday

Mullikin Says Reception of First Concert Proves Need.

Thomas J. Mullikin, chairman of the board of directors of the Washington Summer Concerts Association, yesterday announced arrangements for future concerts and expressed his appreciation for the reception which greeted the first concert of the season on Sunday night.

"The enthusiasm and interest shown at our concert Sunday night," he said, "more than amply repays us for any efforts we have made to give this series of summer concerts. The attendance of approximately 10,000 people confirms our belief that the people of Washington want these concerts and desire only the opportunity to hear them."

Simultaneously, he announced the new amplification system will be in use at the Wednesday night concert at the Water Gate.

"We regret that our amplification system was not in operation on Sunday," he said. "The system which we contemplate using is designed primarily for high fidelity production, the apparatus for which must be obtained in other cities."

Mullikin explained the seating arrangements at the programs and asked that those who attend with 25-cent tickets use upper level entrances and those with 50-cent tickets use the lower level entrances.

Meanwhile, Alfred Wallenstein, who directed the orchestra Sunday night, was flying down from New York in preparation for the next concert. With him he is bringing Eunice Norton, concert pianist from Philadelphia, who will appear Wednesday night with the orchestra as guest soloist.
